CONGRESS BILLS PASS ESTIMATE HOOVER WARNS

Says TheyExceed Figures by $163,000,000 and Would Boost Deficit.

HOUSE PASSES PLAN FOR GASOLINE LEVY

Hale to Insist That Senate Start Night Sessions; Robinson Agrees.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Resuming his weekly check on congressional spending, President Hoover yesterday made public an official tabulation showing that departmental appropriation bills passed or reported in the House this session exceed the combined budget estimates for the departments involved by $163,000,000.

The White House statement warned that if the pending bills finally are enacted they "will make an increase in the estimated deficit by that amount."

Whereas, the first four bills reported from the House appropriations committee authorized combined expenditures of only about $35,000,000 in excess of the budget estimates, the four-department measure reported last week carried $128,000,000 more than was called for in the December budget.

Additional Increase.

An additional increase of $1,268,480 in this bill is called for in the form of deferred items, to be covered by later appropriations. On this basis, the White House computed the combined committee increases in 1934 expenditures for these four departments—State, Justice, Commerce and Labor—at $129,804,295 above the budget.

Adding these increased expenditures to those enumerated in the previous analysis of appropriation measures, on January 20, the White House arrived at total increases to date aggregating $163,319,442 over the budget program.

Thus far only five of the general appropriation measures have been put in such form in the House that definite comparisons can be made with the budget recommendations, but sections of other bills already approved in committee call for various further increases in expenditures which may bring the total regular appropriations for 1934 to approximately $250,000,000 more than the executive budget.

No Definite Computation.

Since no annual supply bill has yet passed through all the legislative steps on Capitol Hill, the final net effect of the vigorous drive for governmental economy which was launched by Chairman Byrnes of the House Appropriations Committee last December can not be definitely computed at this time.

Man Is Fatally Hurt In Auto Bomb Blast

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A dynamite bomb placed under the hood of Joseph Minor's automobile fatally injured him today when he stepped on the starter. Minor, whose real name, police said, was Joseph Mogavro, was a middle-aged food merchant. He died several hours after the explosion, which ripped the car apart.

Within a short time after the explosion, police arrested Minor's wife, Anna, and her brother Frank de Goris, also of Buffalo. Police said Minor and De Goris had quarrelled recently over the distribution of the proceeds of a maturing insurance policy held by Minor.

NEW GRADE SCHOOL BELIEVED FEASIBLE

Holaday Declares Sufficient Sum Can Be Cut From Other Estimates.

A plan for revising public school building estimates, to provide funds for an additional eight-room elementary school building, has been taken under advisement by the House District appropriations subcommittee, it was learned last night.

The proposal, under which other school building estimates might be shaved, and the reductions pooled to take care of additional elementary school needs, was made by Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois.

Need for more up-to-date elementary school structures was brought out recently when investigation of alleged insanitary conditions at the Truesdell school developed this is not the only elementary school building of obsolete design and accommodations in the District.

The Holaday proposal, on which no final action has been taken, resulted in Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou being called on to submit a list of the sections most in need of new elementary school facilities.

Although the Truesdell structure recently was alleged to be not only overcrowded, but injurious to the health of students, that building was placed fifth in point of need by school officials, in the list submitted, it was said last night in an authoritative quarter.

Representative Holaday believes construction costs have come down on many of the projects provided in the 1934 budget and by taking a little from a number of building items, the approximately $100,000 necessary for a new building could be raised.

The 1934 budget provides for one new eight-room elementary structure in the vicinity of the Logan, for beginning construction on the new Reno High School, and for new 10-room additions to the Browne and Deal Junior High Schools.

A proposal to discontinue use of two incinerators, in Georgetown and Southeast Washington, and dispose of refuse instead by hauling it to a Virginia dump, also is being considered by the subcommittee. A study is being made of the cost of operating the incinerators, as opposed to the cost of dumping.

The subcommittee may start marking the $39,743,270 District bill today. It probably will be reported to the House sometime next week.

Wife of Lionel Atwill Undergoes Operation

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lionel Atwill, wife of the motion-picture actor, was reported tonight to be in good condition at the hospital where she underwent an emergency operation yesterday. Her surgeon declined to divulge the nature of her ailment.

Mrs. Atwill is well known to Washington society. She is the former wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

Idle Man's Resolution to Read Bible Uncovers $80.63 Check.

Etowah, Tenn., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Temporarily unemployed, Amos Carson, a Louisville & Nashville Railroad shops boilermaker, turned the pages of the family Bible to carry out a New Year's resolution to read it more.

From its pages dropped an uncashed check for $80.63, dated September 3, 1928, made out to his widowed sister and representing the savings of her son, who then it was drawn was employed by an automobile company in Detroit.

The Bible, itself, handed down from his great-grandfather, is more than 100 years old, Carson said.

BAKER HELD LIKELY ENVOY TO ENGLAND

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Organization of the new Democratic government took shape rapidly here today as President-elect Roosevelt went into conference with his closest political advisors.

Tonight the following appeared to be certain Cabinet members:

Senator Glass, of Virginia, Secretary of the Treasury.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, Attorney General.

Miss Frances Perkins, of New York, Secretary of Labor.

There was reason to believe also that pressure will be brought to bear on Owen D. Young, New York financier and economic authority, to become Secretary of State.

Young Still in Picture.

That he had written a letter asking not to be considered went undenied here, but those in "the know" were inclined to keep Young's name still in the picture.

With less than five weeks to go before taking office, Mr. Roosevelt got down to business on the vexing job of making more than a thousand new appointments of men to assist him in the direction of the Government.

James A. Farley, national chairman, and Louis M. Howe, political secretary, the two men who were in the high command in the campaign, talked over the patronage situation. The President-elect gave not the slightest hint of his Cabinet choices or whether these had been discussed.

Diplomatic Appointment.

But the gathering of Democratic leaders here stirred plenty of speculation. It ran the gamut of Cabinet offices and appointments, to the Diplomatic Corps and lesser offices.

The speculation on diplomatic posts turned on Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, for London; Judge Robert W. Bingham, Louisville publisher, for Paris; Robert Dunham, of Chicago.

'Finder' of $30,000 Confesses Hoax

Marylander Admits Fabrication on Being Told of Income Tax Due.

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Vance Butler, filling station operator, tonight admitted his report that he had found $30,000 in old gold and silver coins and paper money in an old kettle near here was a hoax.

More than a week ago Butler said two Negro youths, whom he had hired to clear some newly purchased land near here, had come upon an empty vault and when some of the bricks were removed, the kettle was found. Although some of his friends have been skeptical of his report of the discovery, the filling station operator, his wife and two Negro youths steadfastly held to the original story.

His admission that the treasure was mythical came after he had been told he would have to pay approximately $3,600 income tax.

Beating of Man, 75, Veiled in Mystery

Told Family That Group in Soldiers Home Grounds Attacked Him.

William H. Ridgeway, 75, of 737 Morton street northwest, was reported in a serious condition at Providence Hospital suffering from injuries suffered under circumstances not clear to police.

The elderly man was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon in a semi-conscious condition. He was badly bruised about his chest and shoulders. He is said to have told the hospital authorities he had been beaten a week ago Sunday on Soldiers' Home Grounds by a group of colored men who had threatened him with death if he made a report to police.

His family told police the man was suffering severe pain from injuries to his chest and scalp when he came home on the afternoon of Sunday, January 22. The family physician was called. When his condition became worse yesterday, the physician ordered him taken to the hospital.

BANKRUPTCY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Farmers and Railroads Are Particularly Benefited by Reform Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Senate response to the farmers' increasing cry for relief yesterday was passage of an unprecedented measure drawn to ease in particular the strain on the farmers and the railroads.

Other individual debtors and corporations were included also in the wide scope of the bankruptcy reform measure which was rushed to the Senate by a 201-to-43 vote. There is strong sentiment for it there, but a determined attempt will be made to modify it along lines recommended by Solicitor General Thatcher.

The overwhelming approval was under rigid suspension of the rules.

Opponents of the emergency bankruptcy bill lambasted it heartily during two hours of debate, but sentiment was so strong for it that leaders of the opposition accepted a standing ballot and did not ask for a roll call.

"Members of this House have shed many crocodile tears over the plight of the farmer," Representative Tarver (Democrat), of Georgia, said during debate. "Let us see what you will do now. This is the only bill that may

Spitale and Bitz Fail In Efforts to Get Bail

New York, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, the Lindbergh kidnapping case underworld "go-betweens," were denied bail today and must remain in jail to face charges of murdering a gangster last August.

Efforts of their attorneys to obtain their release proved unavailing when the two men were arraigned in Homicide Court. They were charged also with illegally carrying pistols. Spitale and Bitz, according to the charge against them, are suspected of killing Antonio (the Champ) Pentiano, reputedly a rival gangster.

SECOND SENATE UNIT APPROVES BEER BILL

Finance Body Votes, 12-5, as Drys Cool Heels Outside Hearing Room.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The lagging beer bill moved forward a bit in the Senate yesterday when the Finance Committee upset announced plans and favorably reported the measure by a vote of 12 to 5, while disappointed and angered dry leaders waited in vain outside committee doors to get another chance to protest against it.

The Finance Committee was the second Senate committee to pass on the measure. It previously had been passed on by the Judiciary Committee, which gave its approval to its constitutionality by a vote of 8 to 6, but the two votes did not mean that enactment of the measure this session is assured.

Judiciary Committee members who agreed to report the bill out of their body included several who served notice of reservations about its provisions and of their purpose either to oppose it in its entirety or to move to amend it. Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, who voted against favorably reporting the bill out of the Finance Committee yesterday, said after the committee meeting that some who had voted for the favorable report would oppose the measure when it was brought up for consideration on the Senate floor.

Undaunted by the committee action the several dry leaders who had gathered at the committee doors announced their purpose to hold a public meeting of protest on Friday night, and Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman

$625,000 for District Relief Ready as Hoover Signs Bill

Another $625,000 May Be Available for Last Half of 1933; Commissioners Seek Reconstruction Finance Corporation Loan Authorization.

While the District Commissioners were seeking congressional authority to borrow up to $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for local relief purposes, $625,000 became available yesterday for District unemployment aid, when the President signed the first deficiency bill.

The $3,756,000 first deficiency measure, which will tide the District over the first six months of this year, was passed by the Senate Saturday. An additional $625,000 appropriation, covering local relief the last six months of 1933, probably will be provided in the District appropriations bill to be reported next week.

Meantime, the chairmen of the House and Senate District Committees, at the request of the District Commissioners, yesterday introduced in both houses a general unemployment relief bill, empowering the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan $2,500,000 to the District, at 3 per cent interest.

The District would be permitted to borrow from the fund over a 2-year period, providing the Commissioners attest the necessity for the loan, and the inadequacy of existing funds to cope with demands for aid. The borrowed money would be placed in the United States Treasury, and expended by the Board of Public Welfare in providing employment or direct relief.

ORIENT ACCORD IS HELD VITAL IN SOLVING DEBTS

COOPERATION IN EAST TO FACE CONFERENCE

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, will leave for London tonight to bring to the government of Ramsay MacDonald the formula of President-elect Roosevelt for the forthcoming Anglo-American debt conference. The American debt program was explained to the ambassador during his three-hour conference with the President-elect at Warm Springs Sunday. Yesterday afternoon at the British Embassy Sir Ronald went over some of the phases of his talk at Warm Springs, but declined to reveal any of the definite points that had been stressed there. However, a general agreement on the following lines was finally arrived at:

First, the British debt delegation will probably arrive in Washington March 5 or soon after.

Far Eastern Policy.

Second, the preliminary conversations that have so far taken place have succeeded in shortening the margin of time that will be required before the delegates of the two countries "get down to business."

Third, an Anglo-American agreement on Far Eastern policy is seen as the sine qua non of any definite debt understanding between the two countries.

Fourth, return to the gold standard of the British pound, under conditions to be worked out at the Washington conference.

It was learned from sources close to the President-elect that one of the predetermining considerations in his mind that overshadows any final settlement of the Anglo-American debt issue, is the prospect of cooperative policy in the Far East. This was emphasized in the Warm Springs conversations and it is believed Sir Ronald in his report to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will expose the Roosevelt view on this matter, in advance of any other bargaining point.

Calls on Stimson.

Sources close to the British Embassy last night indicated that some progress had already been made toward this end. Great Britain is just

Coast Guard Requested To Hunt Missing Dredge

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 30 (U.P.).—The Coast Guard late today was asked to make an extensive search for the Army dredge Chinook, which has not been reported since Saturday, when high winds and waves lashed the mid-Atlantic coast. The vessel was en route to Norfolk from Delaware Capes Saturday.

The Army engineers' office, which requested the search, said the exact number of men aboard the craft was not known, but that the dredge usually carries 60 or 70 workers and crew.

Police Halt Holdup, But Bandits Escape

Gulf Station at Twenty-fourth and M Streets Scene of Shooting.

An attempt by two neatly dressed young men to hold up the Gulf gasoline station at Twenty-fourth and M street northwest last night ended in a shooting affray when the pair were interrupted at their work by two motorcycle policemen. The robbers obtained no money.

Privates C. C. Johnson and W. K. Bowen said they noticed something suspicious in the actions of the three men in the station. As two of the men emerged, the third, Clyde D. Owens, assistant manager and victim of the holdup men, motioned for the officers to arrest the fleeing men.

"I grabbed one of the men," Bowen said later, "and as I did so he pulled a gun from under his coat. I let loose and backed away. Both men turned and ran and we opened fire. I don't know whether we hit them or not."

HITLER NAMING FOLLOWED BY FATAL RIOTING

Kaiser Glad

Regards Hitler's Success as Progress Toward Ending Exile.

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The impression was gathered tonight from statements by several members of the former German Kaiser's household that he regards the change in Germany's government as "A step in the right direction."

Wilhelm, however, is not very hopeful that the new chancellor, Adolf Hitler, will be able soon to recall him to Germany, as was rumored among Doorn villagers.

If Hitler were not dependent on Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, and others less favorably disposed to the monarchy, there seems little doubt, it was said here, that the former Kaiser and his family would have already started preparations for an early departure.

Amsterdam, Holland, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—The Laborite newspaper Het Volk today alleged that former Kaiser Wilhelm II, now an exile at Doorn, Holland, is actively preparing to return to Germany.

The paper printed a report that he recently bought four new automobiles and added that the Prince Consort Henry proceeded to Germany last week from Doorn, accompanied by a Doorn house official and a quantity of Wilhelm's baggage.

PASTOR IS INDICTED IN ATTACK ATTEMPT

Coed, 18, Is Involved; Striking of Choir Master in Church Charged.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, pastor of the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal Church here, was indicted by the Delaware County grand jury today on charges of attempting to attack an 18-year-old high school girl and also of striking his choir master.

The minister, who is 55 years old, married and has five grown children, surrendered to Sheriff Fred W. Puckett. Bond was fixed at $3,000 on the charge of assault and battery with intent to commit rape, and $500 on a charge of assault and battery.

The Rev. Mr. Conway will face a church trial soon for alleged imprudent conduct unbecoming a minister. The trial will be held before Bishop Edgar Blake, of Detroit, and twelve members of the Methodist Episcopal Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Huffman and their daughter, Helen, 18, were recent witnesses called by the grand jury.

During a preliminary church hearing, held by Dr. Frank K. Dougherty, district superintendent, Miss Huffman testified, Dr. Dougherty said, that the Rev. Mr. Conway invited her into his automobile last December and attempted to attack her. The minister, however, denied the charges, asserting that enemies within his church were responsible for the accusations.

The trouble became a matter of public knowledge following the services Sunday evening, January 22, when the Rev. Mr. Conway knocked Willard F. Aurand, choir master, over the chancel rail. His action was attributed to reports that Aurand had been active in gathering evidence against him. Aurand denied this.

The minister conducted services yesterday morning and presided at the Sunday evening services while a member of the congregation delivered the sermon.

Pony Boy

Chula, Ga., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Toby Cook, 7-year-old boy, who rode his shaggy pony 330 miles to shake hands with Franklin D. Roosevelt last fall in Atlanta, is getting ready for an 800-mile ride to witness the inauguration in Washington.

His plans are to use four ponies, riding one while the others follow along in an accompanying truck. Resting them in that manner, he expects to cover about 75 miles a day. Negro servants will go along, riding in the truck.

He is looking to Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., of Georgia, to prepare a place for him and a pony in the inaugural parade.

2 Persons Killed And Several Are Hurt.

STRIKE URGED BY RED ORGAN

Fighting Comes After Nazi Leader Tells of Peace Aims.

Berlin (Tuesday), Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A general strike, as labor's answer to Adolf Hitler's coming into power, was advocated today by the Communist organ Rote Fahne, which said representatives and workers' councils of 2,000 organizations had resolved to agitate for a strike.

"Through force of a strike, the Kapp Putsch in 1920 (an anti-Republican movement) failed," the workers' resolution read. "So must Hitler's government tumble."

Socialists, on the other hand, are asking their members to keep cool, while Dr. Wilhelm Frick, new cabinet member and a Nazi lieutenant, said the government was prepared to take the sternest measures against a strike.

Meanwhile, disorders occurred in many cities in Germany even before the second day of Hitler's government dawned.

Two Persons Killed.

In Oranieburg three persons were seriously injured in fighting between Nazis and Communists. Two persons were killed in the clashes in Berlin, one a Nazi and the other a policeman who was a member of a detail escorting 180 Nazis home after a demonstration in Wilhelmstrasse. He was fatally wounded by shots from a darkened house.

In another fight between Nazis, who were on their way home, and Communists, two Communists were injured, one severely. Police said they had reestablished order not long after midnight.

Scores of smaller fights occurred throughout the capital.

At Koenigsberg Nazis and Socialists and Communists engaged in a fight after the Communists' newspaper had been banned.

One Believed Dying.

A Nazi celebration in Mannheim was marred by a fight with knives. One victim was believed to be dying.

Police in Berlin were forced to use clubs to disperse crowds in the working districts, which were flooded with Communist handbills urging that a general strike begin at 7 a. m. today.

Hitler achieved his long-sought goal—the chancellorship of the Reich—yesterday, and Nationalist Germany was thrown into a paroxysm of joy at the union of President von Hindenburg and the Nazi leader in a common effort to pull the fatherland out of the mire.

Hitler, having at last attained the coveted goal, must now show whether the Messiah-like hopes of 13,000,000 Germans in his statesmanship are justified.

The efforts of the Hitlerites as well as of the Nationalist followers of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg at last triumphed in bringing together the three great movements of the right—the Nazis, the Nationalists, and the

DAKOTA JOURNALIST BACKS PRICE FIXING

(Associated Press.)

Attacked by the big meat packers before the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday, the domestic allotment farm relief bill found a ready champion in W. R. Ronald, South Dakota newspaperman and one of the leaders in the development of this plan of aid for agriculture.

The hearing disclosed that the Institute of American Meat Packers issued from 200,000 to 300,00 pamphlets to hog producers and commission men, asserting the bill would be harmful and advising them to protest to members of Congress.

While the hearing on the big price-boosting bill continued, another Senate group, the Banking Committee, went to work on two measures aimed at refinancing the farm mortgage debt.

G. F. Swift, of Chicago, president of Swift & Co., and chairman of the committee on public relations of the Institute of American Meat Packers, told the committee that enactment of the bill would raise the price of pork, ham and bacon 100 per cent and make a large part of the production of hogs unsalable.

Boston Man Sees Disaster.

F. S. Snyder, of Boston, also representing the institute, predicted the bill would "lead to disaster" and result in "serious damage to the American farmer." He added that in the East pork would become 25 per cent higher than beef, with disastrous effect upon the sale of pork in that region.

A copy of the pamphlet issued by the institute was produced by Chairman McNary (Republican), Oregon, who said it had been called to his attention by Senator Frazier (Republican), North Dakota. Swift readily testified that it had been paid for by his group and circulated "quite widely."

Taking the stand in support of the bill, Ronald, editor of the Evening Republican, Mitchell, S. Dak., outlined changes he thought might be made advantageously in the measure as passed by the House.

Answering the arguments of the packers, he said their contentions as to the results were justified unless control of production were established in advance of levying the tax and paying the adjustment charge.

How Program Works.

Under the bill, the packer and other processors of wheat, cotton, tobacco, hogs, rice, peanuts and dairy products would be taxed to provide a bounty to the farmer to bring his price up to the pre-war level. In return the farmer must cut production 20 per cent.

Ronald hit out particularly at the contention which has been advanced that the bill constitutes a "sales tax" on necessities, to benefit the farmer at the expense of another class.

"Now it has been said that this proposes a tax upon the consumer," he said. "We deny that. That can not be supported, unless it is proved that the pre-war exchange value for foods constituted a tax on the consumer."

The Senate Banking Committee meanwhile considered bills by Senator Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, to refinance the farm mortgage debt at 1½ per cent and by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, for permitting the Reconstruction Corporation to lend $3,000,000,000 within the next three years for refinancing farm mortgages. The loans would be made on condition the mortgages be reduced.

Passage of McMillan Bill To Lease Airport Is Likely

Solid Front of Civic and Trade Organizations Favoring Government Control and Improvement of Washington-Hoover Field.

Members of local trade organizations, Government officials, both District and national, Arlington County authorities and several aviation experts are expected to present a solid front asking favorable action on the McMillan bill, designed to effect the lease of Washington-Hoover airport to the Government, on which final hearings will be held tomorrow before the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

It is understood that members of the committee will call Harry Fellowes, chairman of the Arlington County board of supervisors, to the stand to present Virginia's views concerning the proposal.

At earlier hearings various officials have indorsed the proposed legislation as the only solution to the city's airport problem. It is expected that Mr. Fellowes will follow suit, stating that Virginia has no objection to the bill as it is now drawn.

The pending legislation calls for the Government leasing of the Washington airport and Hoover field from the present owners for $100,000 a year. Military road would then be taken out and the two sites joined, thus removing the existing flying hazard of heavy traffic operation from Washington airport. Concessions would be let out by the Government and it has been estimated that the leasing of these privileges would bring in about $60,000 a year.

Local aviation authorities have told members of the committee that unless the pending legislation is enacted Washington may lose her local airport facilities, admittedly the most advantageously located of any major city in the United States. It has been pointed out that in nearly every large city in the country the airport is owned by the municipality and that private airport ownership for the most part has not been successful.

A companion bill to the McMillan bill, introduced by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, is pending in the Senate. Last session the latter body acted favorably on an airport purchase bill and aviation authorities do not anticipate much difficulty if they are successful in getting the McMillan lease measure through the House.

PRESIDENT WARNS MEASURE EXCEEDS BUDGET ESTIMATES

expenditures, the House yesterday approved extension of the Federal gasoline tax of 1 cent a gallon.

This measure, expected to yield $137,000,000 in the next fiscal year, is the first bill passed in the present session embodying any of the revenue proposals urged by the Treasury last December. It provides a little less than one-third of the $492,000,000 in new revenues recommended in the Executive fiscal program as submitted at the opening of the short session.

Night Sessions Threat.

Meanwhile, the legislative jam on appropriation measures in the Senate brought a threat of night sessions this week from Chairman Hale of the Appropriations Committee. After the Senate had again sidetracked the Postoffice-Treasury supply bill yesterday for a general discussion of things in general, Chairman Hale reiterated from the floor that the entire appropriation program is jeopardized by the existing parliamentary situation.

"Unless we speed up, we are not going to get the appropriation bills through this session of Congress," Senator Hale said. "Tomorrow I am going to insist that the Senate start holding night sessions."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, expressed cordial agreement with Senator Hale, adding that in his opinion the Senate already had spent too much time on the Postoffice-Treasury bill.

Adjournment was taken last night before a vote could be reached on an amendment by Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, of Tennessee, to cut in half the $10,000,000 authorized by the House for air-mail contracts. The McKellar amendment is not generally supported by the Senate Democrats, but it has served well thus far as a talking point to block all action on the appropriation and economy programs in the Senate.

As the 1934 fiscal program of the Federal Government now stands, with five general supply bills still to come out of the House committee, the prospective deficit for next year stands at $661,000,000.

The basic deficit as shown in the December budget message was $307,000,000. Since that time there has been official acknowledgment that the $326,000,000 carried in the income account as due from foreign governments on their war debts probably will not be received. Next, the item of $165,000,000 in over-the-budget appropriations must be added to the deficit.

These three items give $798,000,000 as the 1934 deficit, but against this is set the $137,000,000 expected from the gasoline tax, bringing the net paper deficit to $661,000,000.

These compilations assume that revenue yield from existing laws will be up to the Treasury estimates, which, in view of the continued poor state of business, appears extremely unlikely. Unless drastic economies are realized as the supply bills pass through the Senate, therefore, another deficit in excess of $1,000,000,000 already is clearly in prospect for 1934.

White House Statement.

The White House statement follows in full:

"The appropriation bills for the next fiscal year for the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments, together with the independent offices bill, have now been reported out from the House Appropriations Committee.

"The President recommended total appropriations for these services of $1,058,741,556, including permanent appropriations amounting to $81,104,588 or $977,637,003 excluding permanent appropriations.

"The House committee recommended $1,106,172,816 excluding permanent appropriations or $128,545,813 increase over the President's recommendations. To this should be added $1,268,480 for deferments which will be required in the fiscal year making a total increase for these services of $129,804,293.

"Since the statement of January 20, which showed on the same basis net increases of about $35,000,000 for the Departments of Agriculture, Interior, Postoffice, Treasury and War, further action by the House on the War Department bill has modified this figure to about $28,500,000.

"The totals of the increases over the President's recommendations to date are therefore $163,818,643 and if finally adopted by the Congress will make an increase in the estimated deficit by that amount."

CAPPER STRESSES D.C. BEER EQUALITY

Beer legislation for the District at this time "is somewhat out of line with orderly procedure," Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District Committee, declared last night in a radio address broadcast over Station WMAL.

Senator Capper said there seems to be "very little active interest in the proposed beer legislation," judging public opinion by the number of letters received by the committee.

Conceding his belief in national prohibition, the Senate District Committee chairman nevertheless said he thinks the District "should get the same treatment as the rest of the country, in regard to prohibition or repeal."

Discussing every local issue, from the question of unemployment relief to the dispute over the new Taft Junior High School cupola, Senator Capper devoted much of his talk to the Black-Tydings bill to provide 3.2 per cent beer for the District.

Felt Unconstitutional.

He said beer legislation at this time would be "unconstitutional" in his opinion, unless the eighteenth amendment is altered.

"I do not think the District should be singled out for special legislation on beer or whisky or any other intoxicating drink. If a change is to be made, the District should change with the rest of the country."

He said he thinks the country generally wants the eighteenth amendment repealed.

Commenting on the relief situation here, Senator Capper said appropriation of $625,000 in the first deficiency bill "does not begin to meet the problem of feeding, clothing and housing the destitute of this city." He said he thinks the needed additional aid may be provided by loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and suggested that part of the money obtained be used to help needy single men, now unprovided for.

The Senate District Committee chairman favored reduction of mortgage interest rates in Washington.

"Reductions in the interest rate will help everybody who has an interest in real estate in the District, be it ever so small," he said.

"In the meantime, until some relief of this kind is provided, I think it is the duty of public authorities to do something about foreclosures on small homes in Washington."

Too Much Attention.

Senator Capper said the cupola fight should have been settled without ever bringing it to Congress.

"I think that, with all the really important matters to be considered in connection with the District budget, too much attention is being paid to the cupola," he said.

He favored pending legislation to convert alley dwellings to commercial uses, and the Copeland bill to create a Housing Board to improve housing conditions in the District. He also favored the Rau report, now before the House District appropriations subcommittee, recommending a municipal power plant for the District. He opposed return of taxi meters, asked by the Public Utilities Commission, holding it would increase unemployment by forcing off the street cabs whose owners could not afford to buy meters.

Thomas Urges Inflation Through 30-Year Bonds

(Associated Press.)

Inflation of the currency through 30-year bond issues, against which money would be issued, was sought yesterday in a bill by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, one of the Senate's leading champions of moves to cheapen the dollar.

In reading several newspaper articles and editorials into the congressional record, Thomas told colleagues he gathered President-elect Roosevelt favored "some reasonable expansion reflation of the currency."

Prize English Bulldog Is Given to Roosevelt

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A new canine guardian of the White House, General Grant, snow white $2,000 prize-winning English bulldog, will leave Los Angeles by airplane Wednesday to take up his new duties as idle companion to President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

General Grant is a gift from Saul Almond, of El Monte, Calif., breeder of dogs. It weighs 48 pounds.

Mr. Roosevelt has asked that the dog be delivered to the Roosevelt town house in New York and said he would be there to extend a welcome.

General Grant will fly first class, being crated for passage in a warm passenger cabin and accompanied by a flying stewardess who will supervise its feeding. Exercises will be taken during stops in Chicago and Cleveland.

ARMY CHIEFS MAKE PREPAREDNESS PLEA

Cite Possible Impending War as Women's Defense Conference Opens.

Dangling the specter of possible impending war before the eighth Women's Patriotic Conference of National Defense which opened last night at the Mayflower, four speakers—three military leaders and the national commander of the American Legion—vigorously advocated preparedness as the only panacea insuring peace.

In impassioned tones, Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, Third Corps Area commander, called the conference to realize that his name would be "obliterated from his tombstone before the nations of the world would be willing to make the necessary sacrifices to insure permanent peace."

Recalling moments of his World War experience as a brigade commander when American soldiers went into battle unfamiliar with the operation of the weapons they were to use, he asked the women to make sure that such would not happen again.

Johnson Is Speaker.

Louis A. Johnson, legion commander, pictured this Nation as "sitting on the proverbial powder keg. Our war debts have been repudiated in spirit at least, and the hatred behind such action has dropped its mantle of diplomacy."

When Mrs. A. Alford Blackburn, chairman, opened the conference of 28 participating groups, she reiterated its former policy favoring the national defense act of 1920, the London Naval Treaty and adequate air forces.

Marine Corps Plea.

A plea for the Marine Corps was made by Brig. Gen. George A. Richards, U. S. M. C. "In their service, the Marines do avert major wars," he said. "If it be the statesmen who start wars, then it is the Marines who end them. The Marine Corps and its traditions must not perish."

That the training of reserve forces for all branches of military service must be maintained through the National Guard, Citizens Military Training Camps and Reserve Officers Training was stressed by the three and Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy.

Outlines Naval History.

Admiral Upham outlined the history of the Nation's naval problems and brought particular attention to the closely knit relations between the Navy and the merchant marine.

The meeting opened with a concert by the Marine Band Orchestra and a parade of flags borne by members of the participating organizations. Invocation was by the Rev. Albert Evans, associate pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Reuben Ross Holloway led the salute to the flag.

Sessions of the conference at which resolutions will be formulated and adopted will continue today and tomorrow.

NEW YORK LIFE BARS IOWA FORECLOSURES

Insurance Company Waits on Legislation to Aid State's Farmers.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The New York Life Insurance Company announced today that it had suspended foreclosure of mortgages on farm properties in Iowa.

The company's action was explained in the following statement issued by Thomas A. Buckner, president of the company:

"Pursuant to the request contained in the proclamation of the Governor of Iowa, the New York Life Insurance Company has issued instructions to suspend the foreclosure of mortgages on Iowa farms pending further consideration of the farmers' difficulties by the legislature of that State.

"For some time past it has been the practice of the New York Life Insurance Company not to foreclose farm mortgages for nonpayment of rent or taxes, although they may be long past due, provided the company is satisfied that the owner living upon the farm is endeavoring to keep up the property and is doing his best to meet his obligations.

"It has not been the company's practice to institute foreclosure proceedings for nonpayment of curtailments of principal. The company is fully aware of and is deeply interested in the problems confronting the farm population today, and has long since notified its correspondents of its willingness to renew farm mortgages upon the most liberal terms consistent with the company's obligations to its policyholders."

The company did not disclose whether it contemplated similar action in other districts.

FOUR SEEN CERTAIN FOR CABINET PLACES

for Berlin, and Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher, for Tokyo or Rome.

All these names together with others were said to be "in the hat" with some shuffling around of the assignments possible and probable. The name of John S. Cohen, another Atlanta publisher, also was in the talk of the day for high office.

Mr. Roosevelt stuck to his determination to make no Cabinet announcements at this time and his associates believed none would be made before he sailed on a fishing cruise next Saturday.

But the Cabinet gossip persisted strongly through the day. It brought up the names as "dark horses" of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, for Secretary of War; Archibold McNeil, of Connecticut, as Secretary of the Navy, and Frank Murphy, of Minnesota, for Secretary of Agriculture.

Cutting's Selection Likely.

There still seemed to be doubt about the Republican Independent whom Mr. Roosevelt wants in his Cabinet. The name of Senator Cutting as Secretary of the Interior still stood. There was some mention of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, as Secretary of Agriculture, also of Henry Wallace, of Iowa, for the same post.

The office of Secretary of Commerce seemed to be a puzzler with Bernard M. Baruch and Jesse Straus, of New York, spoken of together with Henry I. Harriman, of Boston, the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

It seemed to be definite only about Senators Glass and Walsh and Mr. Farley for the Cabinet, although some insisted it was "all fixed" for Miss Perkins, the New York State Commissioner of Labor, for the Labor Department office. With the whole country to pick from as a result of the sweeping Democratic victory in November, there is no sign that the President-elect is regarding geography as an elemental factor in picking his close advisers.

It is also clear that he is not worrying about the job of shaking the selections and is going to pull some "surprises" from the field of younger Democrats to fill out the Cabinet structure around the veterans Glass and Walsh.

Gore, who is also a publisher of some Florida papers, is mentioned in the discussion for high office, possibly Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

He will be host to the inner family of Democratic leaders at Miami next week while the President-elect takes his fishing vacation in privacy aboard the yacht of Vincent Astor, a distant relative. Farley, Walker, Flynn, Senator Barkley and several others will be members of the Miami group.

House Reminded of 51st Birthday of Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

The House was reminded just before it adjourned yesterday that this was the birthday anniversary of President-elect Roosevelt.

Representative Ludlow, an Indiana Democrat, said:

"When our chosen servant takes the oath of office the prayers of 120,000,000 people will bear mute testimony to a sorely stricken nation's trust and confidence, and on this anniversary of his natal day, while he makes ready to shoulder the staggering load the faith of his countrymen has placed upon him, let us all join in wishing good luck and godspeed to the next President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is 51 years old today."

Roosevelt Honor Guest At 2 Birthday Parties

Canada May Lift Ban On Rum Trade to U. S.

Ottawa, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Col. C. S. Robinson, Conservative member from Essex West, introduced a bill in the House of Commons today proposing the lifting of the ban on liquor shipments to the United States.

It will be discussed later in the session.

CONGRESS LIBRARY SHORT LEGAL BOOKS

John Vance Says $400,000 Necessary to Modernize His Department.

Charges that the law library of the Library of Congress is sadly in need of renovation and unable to meet demands made upon it were made last night by John T. Vance, librarian, before a meeting of the Federal Bar Association at the University Club.

Mr. Vance declared that it would require the purchase of 75,000 volumes to bring the library up to date and that the volumes would cost approximately $400,000. The library has 275,000 volumes to date.

Charging that the law library has not had the support from Congress that it deserves, Mr. Vance said that because of the number of persons using the library it is unable to serve its purpose in an efficient manner.

He said that the law libraries of many universities far exceed the law library in the number of law books and valuable foreign collections.

For a period of years until 1930 the law division of the library was receiving only $3,000 a year from Congress. In 1930 the appropriation was raised to $80,000 per year, but reduced to $35,000 per year in 1932, Mr. Vance said. He added that to keep the library abreast of the times, once it is brought up to date, it would require the expenditure of approximately $30,000 a year for books alone.

Mr. Vance then related the many demands made upon the library and recited incidents where its rare volumes have figured prominently in the settlement of cases of international interest.

Mr. Vance concluded his talk with a recitation of the history of the library and the important part Thomas Jefferson played in its organization.

The meeting was concluded with an explanation of the electoral college by William B. Vallance, assistant legal adviser of the Department of State, and president of the association.

Senate Committee Calls Trio to Appear at Probe Feb. 21.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, investigating Stock Exchange practices, announced tonight that subpenas had been served on the following to appear before the subcommittee at Washington on February 21:

Gordon Rentschler, president of the National City Bank, of New York.

Smugglers Caught In 300-Mile Chase

Mexican Brothers Accused of Killing Juarez Customs Men.

Juarez, Mexico, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Mexican customs authorities today announced the arrest of Celso and Valentin Magallanes brothers, charged with being members of a smuggling band which killed Customs Inspector Casimiro Lopez and his civilian aid, Antonio Salcido, on the Rio Grande near Jaures, January 19.

The officers were slain in a fight with smugglers who were taking a load of radios and lard to Juarez. The men were trailed by Juarez customs guards for 300 miles through the mountainous region in western Chihuahua, infested with roving bands of Yaqui Indians.

Two other men assertedly named by the Magallanes brothers, are being sought as the actual slayers, authorities said.

HOOVER VETOES BILL TO LET INDIANS SUE

Oil Located After Seminole School Land Was Sold at Auction.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday vetoed an act authorizing the Federal District Court in the Eastern District of Oklahoma to hear certain land claims of the Seminole Indian nation, holding that the land concerned had been properly sold at public auction as provided by law.

The President, in a brief message, said "the rights of the Indians, if any, could be adjudicated by the Court of Claims, without authorizing determination by the Federal District Court."

"There would seem to be no justification," he said, "for now authorizing a committee of the tribe to bring a harassing suit against a private owner, who bought and paid for this property in good faith many years ago. Moreover this legislation might prove to be a precedent for private litigation affecting many other titles and large sums of money through other than the regular procedure."

Secretary Wilbur, in a report attached to the presidential message, pointed out that the tract of land involved consisted of only 320 acres, which was used for school purposes. After the school was discontinued, the land was sold at auction for considerably more than the total appraised value of it.

After the veto message was read in the Senate, Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, author of the measure, indicated on the floor he would seek to have it overridden, asking that the message and the bill be held on the clerk's desk for future consideration.

He explained that the bill was sponsored by him because after the refusal of two Indian chiefs to agree to such procedure, the Secretary of the Interior sold land of the Seminole Indians on which oil later was discovered.

"The Indians have never been satisfied," Thomas said. "The bill merely authorizes the Indians to go into the Federal court in Oklahoma and set forth their claims for damages."

FINANCE GROUP, SECOND SENATE BODY, VOTES BEER BILL, 12-5 of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, issued a caustic statement in which she said the Finance Committee was afraid to have presented facts the drys were prepared to present showing the bill is, in effect, a move to nullify a provision of the Constitution.

Senator Smoot said that the committee had decided to consider only the revenue aspects of the measure, although he had proposed full hearings should be held to give proponents ample opportunity to present their views. His proposal was voted down without a record vote, as was also a proposed amendment by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, proposing to levy an excess profits tax ranging from 10 to 30 per cent on brewers.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills was the only witness heard by the committee, and he added nothing to what he previously had told the Ways and Means Committee of the House when the bill was before that committee two months ago. He estimated the proposed tax of $5 a barrel would yield between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000 a year to the Federal Treasury and said that he believed a $5 tax would yield more revenue than a higher or a lighter tax.

The beer bill will not be brought up for consideration on the Senate floor until after the pending repeal resolution has been considered. Containing many qualifying provisions, this repeal resolution has been on the calendar with no indication that there was any great rush to consider it. Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, chairman of the judiciary subcommittee which framed it is trying to find a spot in which he can get the repeal resolution up for consideration, but when he will find such a spot remains uncertain.

There are still several contentious matters to be disposed of by the Senate, if it is to carry out the legislative program mapped for this session. Entitled to legislative right of way on the floor are several appropriations measures which must be passed before the Congress ends on March 4 and involved in these are several prospective warm battles. Democrats are anxious to get these passed at this session so they will not be in the way of their economic relief program for the extra session. Besides no one very seriously expects to see a prohibition repeal resolution enacted at this session and if there is passed one which conforms to the Democratic platform pledges President Hoover is expected to veto it.

Six Democrats on the Finance Committee voted to report the bill, and three voted against reporting it favorably. Six Republicans voted for and two voted against.

Those voting against—Republicans, Reed Smoot, Utah; Henry W. Keyes, New Hampshire; Democrats, Tom Connally, Texas; Thomas P. Gore, Oklahoma, and Edward P. Costigan, Colorado.

Pair Face Hearing In Liquor Shooting

Victim of Battle at Blue Plains Remains in Serious State.

Robert O. Crouch, 26, of 906 North Columbus street, Alexandria, Va., and Louis J. Edwards, 21, of 9 North Washington street, also of Alexandria, will be arraigned in Police Court today on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the shooting of Edward Monroe, 730 North Columbus street, Alexandria, in an alleged hijacking battle at Blue Plains, D. C., Sunday morning. Daniel J. Alexander, 26, of 900 North Long street, the third man arrested in the case, was held as a Government witness.

Monroe is still in a critical condition in Casualty Hospital with a bullet in his head.

The shooting occurred following the alleged theft of several cases of whisky by Edwards and Crouch. Alexander was with Monroe.

CLASHES FEATURE FORD BODY STRIKE

Briggs Employes Ignore Work Deadline and Two Men Are Injured.

Detroit, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The first minor disturbances in the week-old strike of Briggs Manufacturing Co. employes occurred today, as the 6,000 men who walked out last week ignored the deadline set for their return.

Ten persons, three of them women, were under arrest and two men were treated in hospitals following clashes between pickets and persons who, police said, attempted to enter the employment gates of the company's plants. An expected rush of unemployed at noon, when the company said they would open their offices to all applicants, failed to materialize.

Meanwhile, automotive circles awaited word from Henry Ford, whose factories throughout the country were closed because his officials said, their supply of auto bodies from the Briggs plant was cut off. Ford officials have indicated they would, if necessary, go into production with bodies in his own plants.

A Ford spokesman said tonight that the company would wait a few days before taking whatever steps may be necessary to resume production.

The Briggs Co.'s statement early today that several hundred men returned to work was countered with a statement from the strike committee that "only a few" had passed the line of jeering pickets to enter the employment offices. State police guarding the company's plants said a few had gone into the plants, "one or two at a time." The company declined to state the number of men who returned.

Pickets who marched in circles about the plants set upon two men who they declared attempted to enter the gates to seek employment. Arthur Noblet was beaten about the head. Stephen Lawrence was cut about the face when pickets threw a brick through the window of his car as the drove near the employment gates. A force of State police held the pickets back, and took both men to hospitals for treatment.

Sum 32 Per Cent Less Than Appropriated in 1932; Demands Growing.

The recommendation of the budget committee for the distribution of $1,915,438.35, pledged to the Community Chest, was approved yesterday by the board of trustees of the Chest, after reviewing the allotments to be given the 63 welfare and relief organizations which will aid 140,000 residents during 1933.

The sum appropriated is 32 per cent less than the amount appropriated in 1932 because of the fact that the campaign for 1933 fell 20 per cent short of its goal and because 10 per cent more than was raised in 1932 was required for the needs of the current year.

In order to make it possible to get through 1932, the board of trustees cut down the fiscal year to eleven months, beginning the 1933 fiscal year in December, 1932, and conducted the 1933 campaign in November, 1932.

The new appropriations include $319,575.19 distributed during December, the first month of the new fiscal year. It also includes the $100,000 advanced to the District of Columbia committee on unemployment to help carry over unemployment relief families cared for by the District of Columbia Emergency Relief Division until Congress could meet and make appropriations.

The largest appropriation this year goes to thirteen family welfare and relief organizations which will use $524,294.34 for twelve months; or $480,572.50 for eleven months.

LONG AND BROUSSARD IN FIERY SENATE ROW

"Kingfish" Answers Charges and Brands Them as Falsehoods.

(Associated Press.)

Louisiana's bitter political enemies, personified in its two Democratic senators, Long and Broussard, flared into the open yesterday in fiery denunciatory Senate debate.

Long, the State's self-styled Kingfish, who led a campaign fight last year that resulted in Broussard's defeat for renomination by John H. Overton, took the floor to answer what he assailed as "propaganda, lying and vituperation," which he asserted had been circulated against him.

"I didn't claim I was nominated," declared Broussard, who has succeeded in obtaining a Senate investigation of the primary in which he was defeated. "I don't claim any office. The State of Louisiana has been degraded to such an extent that I felt the corruption, bribery and intimidation, even of the bankers of the State was such that a man is afraid to offer himself for public office."

Pass Without Speaking.

So deep is the personal animosity between Long and Broussard that they do not speak, even though they pass each other in the Capitol's corridors many times daily. When Long presented himself to take his oath of office, Broussard did not escort him to the chair.

A Senate committee, headed by Howell, of Nebraska, is to leave for New Orleans within a few days to conduct the investigation. Long expects to be there, too.

Yesterday he followed up his assertion that he was being extensively maligned by having the charges against himself read by a clerk, from newspapers and others sources.

"I have been silent for what I thought a gracious act," he said. "I have never assailed a defeated opponent and I never after election was a lion in victory, nor, I hope, have I been craven in defeat."

Is Termed Falsehood.

He added that his opponents had stated publicly they did not expect to win the election and asserted that they "wanted to build up a case to bring to the United States Senate." He termed "a damnable falsehood" a printed charge that the organization with which he is connected "arrested Broussard election officials" on the day of the primary. He said that only a few persons were arrested, the Long supporters "incarcerated and kept in prison for the day," but Broussard advocates released.

Long read a report of an arbitration committee which described the election as "one of the most peaceful and orderly held in many years," said a Broussard man was chairman and signed it and denied that deductions from salaries of State workers went into campaign funds for Overton.

LEAGUE DISCUSSED BY TOKYO CABINET

Session Held Behind Closed Doors and Delegate Is Informed of Stand.

Tokyo, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—An extraordinary session of the cabinet was held today to consider whether Japan is prepared to withdraw from the League of Nations in the event the "worst happens" over the Manchurian crisis.

The session was held behind closed doors, at 1 p. m., with only the aging Minister of Finance Korekiyo Takahashi absent with a cold. He is 87 years old.

The cabinet members remained secretive concerning the deliberations, and no announcement was made regarding what action was tentatively decided upon. It was intimated that at previous meetings word had leaked out prematurely resulting in advantages to China in the Manchuria dispute at Geneva.

The ministry, however, apparently was preparing for action in the event the league's committee of nineteen considering the Manchurian dispute places the blame on Japan for warfare in the area under consideration.

Foreign Minister Uchida visited Emperor Hirohito following the cabinet session. It was understood he informed the ruler the government had instructed Yoshuke Matsuoka, chief delegate at Geneva, of Japan's attitude on the committee of nineteen's December resolution, together with a statement on why Tokyo refuses to alter its stand.

Mukden, Manchuria, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Japanese troops were reported today to have repulsed the third attack in four days at Chiumenkow, the Pass of Nine Gates through the Great Wall of China.

A determined Chinese assault was broken up, a Japanese communique said, and the attackers retreated to the west after suffering heavy losses. No Japanese casualties were reported.

5 in Flogging of Woman Cleared by Florida Jury

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Five men charged with aggravated assault in the alleged flogging of Ola Bell Gilstrap here last October 18 were acquitted by a criminal court jury tonight. The men were E. M. Rabb, C. C. Rabb, L. C. Bowers, Horace Starling and W. A. Jackson. The trial started last Friday. All asserted their innocence.

Miss Gilstrap charged the men abducted her and Mrs. Sally Geringer, her mother, from their home last October 18 and took them into the woods and flogged them.

Woman Adviser Accused of Theft

Dr. Mary D. Walsh Reports $80,000 in Securities Are Missing.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Edna V. O'Brien, said by the Attorney General's office to have been widely publicized as an investment counsel to women, was arrested today on a charge of converting stock securities valued at $80,000 to her own use.

Booked on a complaint by Dr. Mary D. Walsh, Miss O'Brien said she was 26 and gave her address as Rose Hill, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Dr. Walsh said she turned the securities over to Miss O'Brien in 1930 while acting as coexecutor with her brother of the estate of her mother, the late Mrs. Mary M. Walsh. Mrs. Walsh's will was probated in Baltimore May 14, 1930.

U. S.-BRITISH ACCORD IN EAST HELD VITAL IN DEBT PROBLEM

as anxious as the United States for the preservation of the open door in Manchuria and other parts of China, and, at the present time, British statesmen concede that the future of the open door is largely a matter dependent on cooperation between London and Washington.

Sir Ronald called to pay his compliments to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson last night and to give him a diplomat's eye-view of the Georgia conversations. The ambassador will leave here today at 11 a. m. and will sail aboard the steamship Europa at midnight for Southampton. He will probably be in London Sunday next and is expected to report immediately to Prime Minister MacDonald.

Anxious to Cooperate.

The British diplomat was evidently anxious to cooperate in so far as his official duties would permit yesterday in his conversation with newspapermen, but the sum total of his observations boiled down to this:

"I am going to report to the British cabinet a lot of things that Gov. Roosevelt suggested to me yesterday."

Several questions he mulled over in silence before returning noncommittal answers. He was unable to say whether or not the Ottawa Agreement regarding international tariffs and trade agreements would be altered to meet the new situation created by the debt confrence.

Different Points of View.

He was likewise unable to say whether or not the Anglo-American experts for the economic conversations would meet in advance of the debt discussions. Finally, he declared:

"The most important element in the negotiations is the element of time. As a result of the meeting with President-elect Roosevelt, the conversations between representatives of the British Government and of the American Government can begin at the important phases of the problem without any further preliminaries."

There still exists between the British acceptance and the Roosevelt debt invitation a considerable gap due to the divergence in points of view of the role of economic questions in the general discussion. President-elect Roosevelt indicates his preference to have the debt conversations "concurrent with and conditional upon" economic discussions. The British debt program is more cautious and does not go beyond a perfunctory review of the economic aspects of the war debt problem without committing the British delegation in any way to a decision on any of these economic problems. "Such a decision," the British point of view holds, "should be arrived at only after consultation with all the other powers interested in the success of the World Economic Conference." The British preference is for a specific agreement on the debts due this country from Britain and after this agreement has been made by the two Governments, they can sit down again to discuss the other economic problems of the world untrammeled by anxiety over war debts.

Would Coordinate Problems.

However, as President-elect Roosevelt declared in his invitation to the debtor Nations, he is anxious to coordinate the two problems in one conference, so as to assure the protection of American interests in the entire economic field. The debt conversations will be directed personally by the President-elect, irrespective of the final choice he will make for his Secretary of State.

The President-elect was represented last night as being determined more than ever on personal supervision of the debt conversations. The recent presence of Prof. Raymond I. Moley at the Department of State is reported to have been responsible for a slight, but nevertheless important, mix-up in the preliminary debt negotiations. Heretofore, the discussions of intergovernmental debts has been subjected to remote control from either New York, Albany, Hyde Park or, more recently, Warm Springs. Col. Stimson has been cooperating with the President-elect and with the President-elect's alter ego, Prof. Moley. This exchange of direction naturally resulted in the Department of State's immediate acceptance of any suggestion of Prof. Moley as emanating from the President-elect himself.

The Moley Incident.

As the President-elect has been confining the supervision of the debt details to the Barnard College professor of public law, the recent suggestion of Prof. Moley relative to the invitations to other debtor nations was naturally accepted by the State Department as having the Roosevelt stamp of approval. It is now understood that the professor unconsciously expanded the scope of his instructions to include other nations besides Great Britain, although Mr. Roosevelt intended to finish first with the British debt problem before receiving any more debt delegations.

This has determined more than ever the President-elect to take full and personal charge of all the debt negotiations from now on. The visit of Sir Ronald to Warm Springs was in large part dictated by the determination of the President-elect to supervise personally from now on all the preparations for the Anglo-American debt conference.

Local Driver Arrested As Hitch-Hiker Is Hurt

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A hitch-hiker identified as Stanley Kaslack, 50, of Pittsburgh, is in a serious condition in St. Agnes Hospital here from injuries received when struck last night by an automobile as he was walking along the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

Louis H. Otto, of Washington, driver of the automobile, was placed under a technical charge of assault and was released pending the outcome of Kaslack's injuries.

Crusade Reduces Boulevard Speed

Laurel Traffic Charges Cut to Eleven by Maryland Safety Drive.

The war to reduce speeding on the Baltimore boulevard is succeeding, as shown by the diminished number of speed cases in the Laurel Police Court yesterday. There were only 11 cases, as compared to a usual haul of 30 or more during past weeks.

Three of those who were convicted or forfeited collateral yesterday were charged with doing more than 60 miles an hour, and were the first to be arrested on these charges during the present drive. The fine in the 60-mile cases was $100 each. There were four cases over 35 miles, two over 40, and two charged with driving at a speed greater than reasonable and proper. Fourteen State Policemen have been working 12-hour shifts to check excessive speed on the boulevard.

Lacy Shaw, of Silver Spring, president of the Montgomery Board of County Commissioners, forfeited $5 for failing to pass another car on the left. His offense occured on the Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn on January 27, according to State Policeman E. C. Langrall, who arrested him.

Two Held Pending Marlboro Inquest

Wounded Man in Fatal Gun Fight at Home Is Near Death.

Two men are being held in the Marlboro, Md., jail pending an inquest Thursday night into the fatal shooting of John Calton and the serious wounding of William Chaney at Chaney's home, near Queen Anne, Md., early Sunday morning.

The men held are Ben Jackson, who says he remembers nothing of the fight, and Carol Jett, of Croome, a neighbor of Jackson. Jett is being held as a witness. Police say he accompanied Jackson to the dance, and Jackson was arrested at Jett's home. Two bullets of the caliber used in the fight were found in Jackson's possession, but the gun has not been located.

Chaney was said last night at Casualty Hospital to be in "fair" condition. He was shot twice, once in the nose and once in the abdomen. Calton was killed by a ragged wound in the heart. Chaney's bride of a few months, who was a witness of her husband's shooting, watches over him while he struggles for life. The inquest will be held by Magistrate Horace Taylor in the court house at Marlboro.

Italian Air Chief Sails To Prepare Ocean Flight

Naples, Italy, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, who will be in command of the flight of 20 seaplanes from Italy to Chicago in May, sailed today with his wife for the United States, where he will make preliminary preparations for the flight.

The squadron of planes, under present plans, will take off on May 24 from Orbetello, 60 miles from Rome.

DEBT SESSION HELD BY LONDON CABINET

Personnel of Mission to U. S. Not to Be Named Until Lindsay Arrives.

London, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald presided over a half-hour cabinet session at 10 Downing street today on the American war debts, after which there was no indication of any change in the British debts policy as outlined in Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain's recent Leeds speech.

It was stated that today's cabinet meeting on the debts was arranged late last week and was not specially convened on account of the developments connected with the visit of Sir Ronald Lindsay, Britain's Ambassador to the United States, to President-elect Roosevelt.

Britain's whole position regarding the war debts was formally reviewed by the ministers for the first time since the impending discussions with the United States were arranged. No decisions were taken and no new British debts move is expected until after Sir Ronald's return to London.

The method of selecting the personnel of the British debt mission to Washington was authoritatively outlined tonight. No move will be made in this connection until the ambassador's return and the cabinet has completed a comprehensive study of his formal report and has decided what kind of mission is needed to conduct the negotiations along the lines Mr. Roosevelt desires.

If only experts go to Washington and the main negotiations are conducted through diplomatic channels, Sir Ronald would continue in his present role, assisted by such experts as the cabinet considers necessary.

If a ministerial mission is needed, names will be suggested by the heads of the government departments concerned, such as the foreign office, the board of trade and the treasury, and then the prime minister will make the final selection and, if deemed necessary, will head the mission.

Police Bill Barred By Sandy Spring

Council Decides Against Extending Force; Zoning Measure Urged.

Following considerable discussion stressing the need for a substation and additional police for the Sandy Spring area, the Community Council of Sandy Spring, Md., decided that the time is not ripe for urging additional expenditures of money. The council voted to ask that police patrols be augmented through the section, but not to ask for creation of additional police at this time.

The council voted also to urge passage of a bill giving control of zoning in sections of the county outside of the metropolitan area to the county commissioners. Metropolitan district zoning is handled by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Indorsement of the proposed additions to the Sherwood School was voted and plans for the work approved. The council was informed by Samuel McCeney, State roads commission supervisor, that road work in the vicinity of Sandy Spring is being contemplated. The grade in front of the firehouse is to be changed and the curve at the Ashton crossroads will be widened.

Adm. Southerland Is Dead Here at 81

Funeral Services on Thursday for Retired Naval Commander.

Funeral services for Rear Admiral William Henry Hudson Southerland, 81, U. S. N., retired, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Church of the Covenant, followed by military burial in Arlington National Cemetery. He died early yesterday at his home in the Carlton Hotel.

Admiral Southerland was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, in which he commanded the gunboat Eagle and was instrumental in the capture of three vessels. He served on a number of sailing ships, including the famous frigate Constellation.

He was retired in 1914, 45 years after his appointment to the Naval Academy. Just before his retirement, he commanded the Second Division of the Pacific Fleet. His last service was as a member of the general board of the Navy.

Admiral Southerland is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Rodman Southerland, and two daughters, Mrs. Butler Wright and Mrs. Louis Bacon, of Boston.

Col. Buckley Assigned To Peiping Legation

Orders detaching Lieut. Col. William W. Buckley from Marine Headquarters here and assigning him to duty as second in command of the American Legation guard of Marines at Peiping, China, were issued yesterday.

Col. Buckley is at present assigned to the war plans division of Marine Headquarters here. He and Mrs. Buckley live at 3331 P street northwest.

Robert Burrows Funeral Is Today

Services for Retired Local Contractor in Charge of Masons.

Funeral services for Robert Burrows, retired Washington contractor, who died Sunday following a protracted illness, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today from the Kidbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

The services will be in charge of William R. Singleton Lodge, No. 30, F. A. A. M., of which Mr. Burrows was a member. He was a native of Washington and for several years conducted a cement contracting concern. He also held membership in the Junior Order of Mechanics.

Mr. Burrows, who was 78 years old, is survived by three sons, Leonard, Paul, and John Burrows, of Washington, and three daughters, Miss Frances Burrows, Miss Mary Burrows, both of Washington, and Mrs. S. Boulanier, of Gulfport, Miss.

Phone Alexandria 523.

Mrs. Roland B. Howell, of Louisiana, national vice president of the Southern Division, American Legion Auxiliary, was the guest of honor at the meeting of the executive committee of the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Virginia, held yesterday in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria.

Mrs. Howell opened her talk with a tribute to the late Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, of Alexandria, the second national president of the organization, also the first department president of Virginia and the first president of the Alexandria unit. She said that when she heard of Dr. Barrett and her achievements she thought that Virginia had given of her greatest, then when she met Mrs. W. P. Mathews, of Richmond, the present president, and Mrs. W. W. Townes, past department president, she realized that Virginia is still carrying on. She urged the women to build up the membership of the auxiliary, and to watch and participate in the legislative program of their respective community, that at present the country has been left to people who have sought office not for the honor and service they can be to the country, but for the privileges that the office gives them.

She urged the women to take an active part in their community, no matter how small that community may be, because after all the National Government is only an accumulation of the problems that arise in each individual community.

She touched on the present demand in nonservice organizations for the lessening of veterans' benefits, and in speaking of the so-called nonservice connection compensation, said the legion did not ask for that, that is was a piece of political applesauce tacked on by politicians. She said that permanent greatness can be achieved only wherever there is unselfish service to fellow men, and the country must get back to the ideals on which it was founded.

The meeting opened with a luncheon, at which Mrs. L. L. Spofford, State president of the American War Mothers, and Mrs. Norman L. Williamson, local president of that organization, were guests, also Harry Breckenridge, committeeman for the Eighth District American Legion.

Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, president of the Alexandria auxiliary, welcomed the guests and Mrs. W. P. Mathews, department president, responded. Department officers present were: Mrs. Mathews, president; Mrs. N. O. Akers, of Bristol, second vice president; Mrs. Charles McKinney, of Staunton, treasurer; Mrs. W. W. Townes, of Petersburg, secretary; Miss Frances Beverly, of Winchester, historian. Mrs. Richard B. English, child welfare chairman for the American Legion, gave a talk on her work.

Department committee chairmen present were: Mrs. W. P. Sadler, Warrenton, rehabilitation; Mrs. W. Samuel Scott, Fredericksburg, legislative; Miss Frances Beverly, Winchester, constitution and by-laws; Mrs. E. T. Hornet, Richmond, radio; Mrs. Rathbone Smith, Alexandria, national defense; Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, Alexandria, music, and Miss Cora A. Vaughn, Franklin, child welfare.

District committee chairmen present were: Mrs. W. Samuel Scott, first; Mrs. George A. Williams, second; Mrs. Robert T. Barton, seventh; Mrs. W. G. Trow, eighth, and Mrs. N. O. Akers, ninth.

Resolutions on the death of the department chaplain, Mrs. C. D. Lam, of Covington, were presented by a special committee composed of Mrs. Charles K. Brown, of Staunton, and Mrs. W. P. Sadler and adopted.

Mrs. Howell presented to the Portsmouth Unit, through Mrs. George A. Williams, a citation from the national organization for outsanding community service work.

All of the delegates to the executive board are also delegates to the National Defense Conference in session at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, and others from Alexandria include Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, Mrs. Wayland C. Kidd, Mrs. Richard B. English and Mrs. Leroy E. Peabody.

Mrs. George Sloane, of Warrenton, cochairman with Mrs. Julian Keith, also of Warrenton, of the Virginia State branch of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, will be the speaker at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the George Mason Hotel, under the auspices of the local group. An invitation is extended all interested to attend, and all who have signed the membership cards are particularly requested to be present.

Lieut. Edward Trumball, U. S. M. C., a native Alexandrian, recently returned from Nicaragua, where he was commandant of the Nicaraguan National Militia Officers Training School at Managua, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Alexandria Rotary Club at 12:30 o'clock today. Col. Clarence Deems, U. S. Army, retired, program chairman for the month, will introduce the speaker.

Melvin Pitts, 9 West Walnut street, reported to the police yesterday that his home was broken into between 7 and 9 o'clock Sunday night, and a number of articles of jewelry taken. The value of the stolen articles has not been estimated, but among them was a diamond wedding ring, lavalier, white gold wedding ring, ear rings, boy's rings, and other articles.

The silverware and other articles stolen from the home of Beverly May on December 23 last has been recovered in Washington, where fifteen colored men were arrested when loot was found in a house in K street.

Judge William Stuart Snow, police justice of Alexandria, announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for reelection to that office subject to the Democratic primary to be held in August next.

Frederick L. Flynn also announced yesterday that he will be a candidate in the general election in November, for the position of civil and police justice.

Club at Fort Meade Is Swept by Flames

The Officers Club at Fort George G. Meade, Md., was partially destroyed yesterday afternoon by a fire of unknown origin, which threatened for a time to spread to other buildings in the civic center of the camp.

The post fire brigade succeeded in preventing further spread of the flames. Soldiers at the post removed most of the furniture from the two-story frame building before the flames reached their height. No estimate of the damage was given.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

A NEW era in home comfort for the American people is foreseen by Russell E. Backstrom, insulation engineer, national committee on wood utilization, Commerce.

R. E. Backstrom

Through extraordinary accomplishment of science and industry, the day is not far off when most homes will be mechanically equipped so as to provide cool or warm air at the home owner's option, reports Backstrom, who has just returned from Cincinnati, where he participated in the annual sessions of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers.

"Undoubtedly, air conditioning more and more is drawing attention of America. This no doubt is due in large measure to the possibility of its wide application in practically all types of construction."

Air conditioning already is being widely employed in all types of office buildings, and the next step will be toward applying it to the homes of the country. Not only is this new development suitable for new homes, but progress also has been made to the extent that old dwellings can be readily equipped to provide comfortable air temperatures.

ORGANIZING progress of the American Federation of Government Employes has been so rapid that its District of Columbia department of 30 lodges here is confronted with a problem of finding quarters to accommodate meetings of various lodges activities.

In its early stages headquarters at 1726 Pennsylvania avenue northwest was ample, but as new lodges came along and the older groups grew larger, the expansion of activities of the national office slowly crowded out the lodge meetings. They have been held at various hotels. District Department leaders feel there should be a central place for all the department's activities.

To survey available locations a special committee has been appointed by Michael D. Schaefer, president of the department. Samuel Sacco, president, Adjutant General's Office Lodge, is chairman, assisted by Miss Mary Turner, secretary, Labor Department Lodge; T. C. West, Public Buildings and Parks Lodge; S. T. Linnard, Agriculture Department Lodge. National Organizer A. J. Oliver will be adviser.

The committee is considering various propositions and is especially interested in those which provide large enough space for meeting rooms, lecture hall, and accommodations for social functions which it is expected the different lodges will make part of their monthly program.

The Navy Department Building is the new housing place for the working model seadrome recently on exhibition at Commerce, arranged by E. R. Armstrong. Col. Clarence M. After nearly sixteen years' service, Charles W. Garnett, 1906 Sixth street northwest, employe in the chief clerk's office, Veterans Administration, will be retired today.

Also Mrs. Madge C. Bartis, 5425 Connecticut avenue, Finance Service, Veterans Administration, on duty since January 26, 1918, will be retired today. She has been a diligent worker, well liked by her coworkers.

To stamp collectors: The new Oglethrope commemorative postage stamp will be available at the Philatelic Agency, city postoffice, February 14. And, of course, Mrs. M. C. Shaughnessy will be there to wait on the anticipated endless line of applicants. Postmaster General Brown yesterday approved the Oglethorpe design, the work of Victor S. McCloskey, Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

MARSHALL V. ANDREWS.

Mr. Andrews, 170 Otis street northeast, associate attorney, retirement subdivision, U. S. Veterans' Administration, is being retired today, after over 41 years of service in the Government, having reached the retirement age of 70 years on that date.

Born in Windsor, Broome County, N. Y., January 31, 1863, Mr. Andrews was graduated from the Binghamton (N. Y.) High School in the class of 1883; was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of New York in 1889, and obtained the degree of master of laws at Georgetown University Law School in the spring of 1893.

Mr. Andrews was appointed to a clerkship (class 1—$1,200) in the Bureau of Pensions, November 14, 1890, his duties after entering the Pension Bureau being connected with the adjudication of claims, but from about 1895 he served as a member of the Board of Review, first as a legal reviewer and afterward as a legal reviewer in the retirement division where he was assigned to duty immediately after the approval of the original retirement act of May 22, 1920. January 1, 1925, he was made associate attorney and since that time has performed the duties of law officer of the civil service retirement branch of the Government service: John S. Beach, chief of the retirement subdivision, says:

"Mr. Andrews, during his more than 12 years service in the retirement subdivision, has acquired a fund of knowledged and information in regard to the provisions of the various retirement laws and the decision and procedure in connection therewith which is not excelled by any person in the service of the Government."

YANKEEDAM, W. Va., Jan. 30 (Special).—Washka, the Alaskan homing bloodhound, hot-footing his way from Sitka to Washington, trying to arrive in time for the Federal Diary ball at the Shoreham in Washington, D. C., Thursday evening, late tonight shifted into low gear, although Washka had been considered a shiftless dog until his recent trek across the American Continent.

The Blue Ridge foothills loomed ahead for Washka. Low gear gave him more power and less speed.

Latest reports of Washka's progress were chronicled simultaneously with reports from Washington that Swarmi Fedd has not been seen around his haunts in the Capital City the last 24 hours. Word that Mr. Fedd had fared forth to meet Washka could not be immediately confirmed. Amalgamated Press dispatches are being scrutinized for word of Mr. Fedd's whereabouts.

Meanwhile, the sixth installment of Washka's famous profile and galloping frame is shown below:

SWARMI FEDD has been mighty mysterious about his plans for the great Federal Diary Dance in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel this coming Thursday night, but when interviewed by heliotelegraphy late last night revealed that his silence was due to the fact that he was compelled to disappoint so many in the matter of tickets that he did not want to make their regret more poignant by revealing the elaborate schedule of entertainment which he has arranged.

After he had been gently persuaded with two baseball bats, however, he did condescend to reveal that beginning at 8:30 there will be an hour's floor show under direction of Jack Mullane, maestro of the well-known local theatrical booking agency. Eccentric dancers, comedians, vocalists and instrumentalists will be seen and heard in this program, and immediately following their presentation the Swarmi has again expressed his intention of selecting his own personal candidate to enter The Washington Post's contest to select a queen for the Century of Progress Exposition.

In his invitations to this gala affair, Swarmi Fedd specified the hour of 8 p. m. Dancing, to the music of Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra, will begin at 10 p. m. and continue until 1 a. m. and the Swarmi has promised to fill in the preceding hours with a diversified entertainment that will appeal to every one of his guests. Underwood & Underwood, internationally famous photographers, will also give an exhibition of portrait photography in which the Swarmi's selection will be utilized as a model. Two other young women also will be given appointments at the Underwood & Underwood studio, where their protographs will be made without charge.

Tomorrow: How to Make a Folding Table.

AND here's some dope on the new Oglethorpe stamp. When a stamp is authorized G. A. Huston, in charge of designing, Alvin B. Meissner and Victor McCloskey get busy at engraving.

Postmaster General Brown doesn't like abbreviations on the stamps. They must read "United States Postage," not "U. S. Postage."

Sometimes a finally approved design is the composite work of all three artists. The best features then are combined and the finished product is the little 75-100 inch by 87-100 inch lickem-stickem we apply to keep the addressee from being greeted with "portage due" stamps.

Did we tell you John M. Smith, superintendent, postage stamp division, Engraving, is quite proud of that two-team bowling league at the Bureau? For five years now, they've been rolling 'em down the alley, those eight men. It's a very exclusive league, this two-team affair.

THERE'LL be plenty of shuffling tonight when the Federal Bridge League gets going at Hotel Carlton with sixteen teams matching skill, starting at 7:30. Treasury Team and Standard's XYZ's are pressing the leaders, Standards Phychems, closely, although the latter is the only team to average a winning percentage of three-fifths of its boards to date and kabitzers are predicting Harry Wensel's bidders, doublers and redoublers will snatch the Federal News pennant. Line-up for tonight's go-'round:

Standards Phychems vs. Standards XYZ's, Interstate No. 1 vs. Veterans' Administration, Fixed Nitrogen vs. Geodesy, Aftons vs. State-Navy, Interior vs. Hydrographers, Standards Engineers vs. Treasury Amateurs, Interstate vs. General Accounting Office, St. Elizabeths Hospital vs. Foreign Commerce Aces.

INCINERATOR FIGHT LOOMING IN COUNTY

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309 Clarendon, Va.

The groundwork for a fight against the District in the event that two District incinerators are closed down is being laid by Arlington County officials, who believe that should such eventuality occur, the District would seek to dump its trash in Arlington County.

The proposal to eliminate the operation of the two incinerators is before the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Those who are aligned against the plan are Arlington County Manager Roy S. Braden, Health Officer P. M. Chichester, and civic groups of the county.

Clarence R. Ahalt has been reelected president of the Virginia Title Insurance Co., Inc. Other officers are John G. Graham, vice president; A. L. Kelley, treasurer, and W. E. Van Deusen, secretary.

Members of the board of directors are Fred A. Gosnell, Thomas A. Lee, Frank G. Campbell, Clarence R. Ahalt, John G. Graham, A. L. Kelley and William Bastian.

Suit for $15,000 damages was filed in Arlington County clerk's office yesterday by Henry R. Helmholtz, an infant, by nearest friend, Robert H. Helmholtz, against the Washington Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., for alleged injuries.

The suit alleged the child and its mother were passengers on one of the company's buses on or about August 15, 1932, when it is claimed the rear door opened and the child was thrown to the ground.

Papers were filed by Attorney William B. Wright.

Continuing its study of the cost of county government, the special committee of the Arlington County Bar Association will meet tonight with County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, at which time school matters will be considered. Tomorrow night the committee plans to meet with Mrs. Elizabeth Magruder and John C. Gall, members of the board.

Rye Agent

Janitor Drinks Before Him; Bottle Breaks; Another Found; Jail.

Warding off the cold with Maryland rye is illegal, and it is also unwise when the rye is administered in a U. S. commissioner's office in the presence of a dry agent, as Lawrence Wood, janitor of Commissioner J. Frank Parran's office in Marlboro, Md., will testify.

For Wood committed this faux pas yesterday, and is now in Marlboro Jail under bond of $500, charged with possession of liquor.

Act I—Commissioner Parran instructs Wood, who is commonly known as "Spider," to build a fire in the office stove. "Spider" takes a half-pint bottle from his pocket and takes a drink, according to testimony.

Act II—Mr. Parran upbraids "Spider" for drinking and tells him to stop. Enters the dry agent, who grabs "Spider" and the bottle. There is a struggle and the bottle is broken, the liquor spilled. "Spider" triumphant.

Act III—The dry agent searches "Spider" and finds another half-pint, neither broken nor empty. Denouement.

Story of Dust Blasts Clearly Told Wins $5

For her interesting story on dust explosions, Miss Katherine Bowland, 1717 G street northwest, Chemistry and Soils, Agriculture, wins the current week's Diary prize, redeemable for $5 in merchandise at Woodward & Lothrop.

We omitted to say in Miss Bowland's story that in normal times 28,000 plants in the United States are subject to dust explosion hazard and that 1,325,000 persons are employed in these plants.

A little ink, a pen and some thought often round out the best reading matter for the week. For, after all, what is more interesting than stories about persons who serve the Government in their everyday routine? We're a big family and we have ever so many stories to be told. Let's tell them.

LEHMAN ASKS STATE RETAIL SALES TAXES

Also Urges Gross Levy on Personal Incomes to Balance Budget.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A retail sales tax on everything except food and motor fuel, already taxed; a gross tax on personal incomes and a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax were among measures to raise $34,000,000 in new revenue recommended to the Legislature by Gov. Lehman tonight as means of balancing a proposed budget of $364,993,831.

The proposed budget is the lowest submitted to the Legislature since 1926. The governor's tax proposals are intended not only to meet the State's financial needs for the fiscal year beginning July 1, but to wipe out a $106,000,000 deficit remaining from President-elect Roosevelt's administration.

The proposed Lehman budget total is 23.8 per cent lower than the appropriations during the last year of Mr. Roosevelt's administratoin as governor.

Gov. Lehman made no recommendations regarding a beer tax, but reserved the right to change his revenue recommendations if Congress changes the national prohibition law.

The budget contains no appropriation for unemployment relief. A little more than half of the $30,000,000 approved by the voters last fall for relief purposes remains, and in addition Gov. Lehman has asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a $45,000,000 advance on highway funds for relief purposes.

The proposed reduction in salaries for the State's 30,000 employes who receive more than $2,000 a year ranges from 6 per cent on the first $2,000 to 33.9 per cent on the portion of salaries which exceed $15,000.

Standard tread . . . 4-cylinder Red Seal engine . . . Winged Power, the new and wonderfully restful riding sensation . . . double cantilever rear springs . . . 3-point balanced chassis . . . weight carried like a racing car . . . 4-wheel steeldraulic brakes . . . 4 hydraulic shock absorbers . . . safety all-steel body . . . safety glass windshield . . . aviation type instrument dials . . . needle bearing universals . . . anti-shimmy steering . . . silent-second, instant shift transmission . . . beautiful, durable upholstery . . . distinctive interior fittings . . . a hundred other things for which you have been paying hundreds of dollars more. The Beacon makes history. It marks a turning point in the entire automotive industry. Continental is the first manufacturer to pass on to you all the savings made possible by low overhead, present day prices of raw materials and efficient, experienced methods of plant operation.

CONTINENTAL
RED SEAL ENGINES

WHEN you consider that Continental has been a vital part of the automotive industry for more than thirty years and that only five other manufacturers of passenger cars are as old . . . that it has produced more than 3,500,000 Red Seal motors . . . that it has powered more than 100 different makes of passenger cars . . . that it furnishes engines to 53% of all the companies building trucks . . . that, in 1932, it sold more aircraft engines in its power class than all other manufacturers combined . . . that it has provided engines to almost 300 manufacturers of industrial and agricultural machinery . . . that it supplies engines to many makers of buses and boats . . . that its 75 acres of modern plants in Detroit, Muskegon and Grand Rapids operate with an exceptionally low overhead that permits the UTMOST ECONOMY in manufacture . . . then you realize what stands behind Continental's entrance into the passenger car field and guarantees not only the quality of its three new cars, but the fact that they represent a BRAND NEW CONCEPTION OF MOTOR CAR VALUES.

SAVE MONEY

This is the BEACON 5-passenger, 4-door Sedan, for only $395, f. o. b. factory.

Continental engineering has given the BEACON performance comparable to that of far higher priced cars. The world's leading masters of body design and modern coachcraft have made it even better looking than the average car of twice its cost. Yet it is the most inexpensive full-sized car to buy, to own and to operate that any manufacturer has ever produced. It will go 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It takes only 4 quarts of oil to a filling. Its lighter weight is not only in keeping with the most advanced engineering thought and practice, but it saves you money on tires and on license fees. Because of its lower purchase price, depreciation, carrying charges and down payment are all brought within the limits of a 1933 budget. An accurate Transportation Estimate, which any Continental dealer will gladly give you, proves that, if you drive a Beacon for three years, you will actually save enough money operating it over that period to buy a brand new one. Cut your transportation costs with a Beacon.

NOTICE

The Continental Beacon is the answer to Family Problem No. 1 question: What to do about the car?

SAVE MONEY.
BUY A BEACON.

There are about 25,000,000 automobiles in use today. More than 17,000,000 of them are at least three years old . . . most of them older. Nobody really enjoys driving a car that old. And the older it gets the more it costs to keep it running. That is the situation which the Beacon was created to correct. It is the first definite, decisive step toward less expensive transportation. Its greatly reduced purchase price and amazingly low upkeep permit you to replace your old car right now . . . and be money ahead. That's why the Beacon is the answer to FAMILY PROBLEM NUMBER 1. IT IS THE FIRST FINE, FULL-SIZED AUTOMOBILE EVER PRICED WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERYONE. SAVE MONEY. BUY A BEACON.

President Hoover yesterday gave his approval to some of the plans for inaugurating his successor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, next March 4.

The President signed a joint resolution providing that troops to participate in the inaugural ceremonies can be quartered in some of the public buildings here.

Coeds Have Equal Chance In Post's $10,500 Contest

Young Students Compete With More Mature Girls in Search for 51 of Character and Charm for World Fair Court of Honor.

In its search for 51 charming girls to dedicate officially the Century of Progress International Exposition in Chicago during the first two weeks of June, The Washington Post is not seeking mere perfection of features, but the more subtle indications of character and femininity that may be expressed in photographs submitted to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post."

It is equally possible that a youthful coed may be given the high distinction of queen, together with the $5,000 in cash that will accompany the award, or that the great honor will be bestowed upon a girl of more mature years whose face reflects the sweet charm that is the result of greater experience. In a word, there is no age limit in this unique contest that is sponsored under the exclusive authority of the Century of Progress Exposition, but, because of the dignity that will naturally be looked for in a queen, it is not recommended that pictures of girls under the age of 16 be entered.

In addition to the $10,000 in grand prizes that will be distributed in final selections at Chicago, The Washington Post is publishing a series of pictures of entrants in the contest in its Sunday Rotogravure Section and will pay $5 to each girl whose picture is so published. Checks were mailed yesterday to the 10 girls whose pictures appeared upon the front page of last Sunday's rotogravure section.

Any unmarried girl or her relatives or friends may enter her picture in the queen contest by affixing the transmittal coupon, printed elsewhere in this paper today, to the back of the photograph. If desired, the same information may be written upon any sheet of paper instead.

Only professional stage girls and artists' models and employes of The Washington Post or members of their families are barred from the competition.

There are no entrance fees nor any other item of expense or obligation involved in the contest. The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune will pay all costs of transportation, entertainment and hotel bills in Chicago during the first two weeks of June and including the cost of gorgeous costumes for each of the 51 girls who will receive this international recognition of their outstanding feminine charm.

Gen. McIntyre Returns From Daughter's Rites

Maj. and Mrs. Frank McIntyre have returned from Denver, Colo., where they were called last Monday by the sudden illness of their daughter, Margaret, who died of appendicitis on Wednesday before her parents could reach her bedside.

Funeral services took place at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Denver on Friday. Miss McIntyre was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery there.

THREE CONVICTS DIE UNDER QUARRY SLIDE

Fourth Has Leg Fractured in 400-Ton Avalanche at Folsom.

Folsom Prison, Calif., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Three convicts were killed and one injured today when they were caught in the prison quarry by two landslides of approximately 400 tons of huge rocks and earth.

The dead: John Mitchell, 28, sentenced from Los Angeles for second-degree robbery; William Hughley, 36, Negro, sentenced from San Diego for burglary, and Austin Jackson, 39, Negro, serving five years to life for robbery in Alameda County.

The injured: Clark C. Vansickle, 28, convicted in Los Angeles of burglary. He suffered a broken leg.

The landslides occurred about 15 seconds apart.

The first buried Hughley, Mitchell, Jackson and Van Sickle rushed to rescue their buried companion and were caught by a second tremendous avalanche of mud and rocks from the face of the 100-foot cliff flanking the quarry.

Warden Court Smith went into the quarry to take personal charge. He found rescue work difficult because some of the granite boulders that crashed onto the quarry floor "were as large as half of a bungalow" and weighed more than 200 tons.

The quarry crew at the time of the accident totaled 800 men. All were sent back to their cells and a select rescue crew of 50 convicts, including trusties, rushed to the scene from the prison farm, was set to work with air drills, picks, shovels and the quarry derrick.

It was believed five or six men had been caught by the slide, but a double check of all convicts in the prison, one on the line as it passed into the buildings and another after the convicts were locked in their cells for the night, showed only the four victims were missing.

Vansickle was rescued first. Then the workers found the bodies of Hughley and Mitchell. Later Jackson's body was discovered pinned beneath a granite boulder, estimated to weigh at least 150 tons. He was identified by a strip of shirt showing his convict number and later checks showed him to be one of the missing men.

Members of the rescue crew were set to work drilling the boulder over Jackson's body. A charge of dynamite split it and at last his crushed form was freed.

The warden said Guard R. B. Todhunter had passed on the safety of the precipitous earth wall before the men were sent into the quarry today, but that the recent rains undoubtedly had loosened the face, causing it to fall without warning.

New York Legislature Fights R.F.C. Publicity

(Associated Press.)

A formal request by the banking committee of the New York State Legislature, that publicity on Reconstruction Finance Corporation bank loans of less than $100,000 be stopped, was placed yesterday in the hands of the State's representatives in Congress.

State Senator Nelson W. Cheney, chairman of the joint legislative committee on banking, handed to Senator Wagner and Representative Reed, of New York, a copy of a resolution by his committee, which said that many small banks were reluctant to apply to the Finance Corporation for funds because of the publicity.

LABOR AND INDUSTRY URGE TARIFF BOOSTS

Commission Hears Appeals to Halt Flood Due to Depreciated Money.

(Associated Press.)

Labor and industry yesterday united in pleas for tariff increases which they described as immediately needed because of depreciated foreign currencies and falling scales of foreign wages.

Before the Tariff Commission they urged that values of imports subject to duty be assessed on the basis of the American selling price instead of the foreign value of the article. The hearing ended an investigation ordered by President Hoover. The commission intends to report to him within a few weeks to enable him to present recommendations to Congress before March 1, if he desires.

Meanwhile before the House Ways and Means Committee, representives of workers and manufacturers appeared to support the Hill bill which would provide automatic increases in tariff rates on goods from countries which have lowered the value of their currency.

Importers Press Objection.

Both proposals met with the objections of James W. Bevans, of New York, representing the National Council of Importers and Traders.

Matthew Woll, president of the American Wage Earners Protective Conference, and Michael Flynn, of the American Federation of Labor, supported the proposal for changing valuation methods.

Thomas J. Doherty, of New York, tariff counsel for the American Iron and Steel Institute, decribed the present valuation method as "antiquated."

Protests of Silk Dealers.

Horace B. Cheney, of New York, appearing for concerns in the silk industry, said that in Japan the item of wages has become nearly impossible to compute in the silk industry, that in many cases no cash is being paid the worker who receives his compensation in the form of food and shelter.

Complaint against the pressure of Japanese imports also was made by E. G. Ackerman, of New York, representing the Glass Containers Association.

Arthur L. Faubel, New York, secretary of the American Tariff League; John E. Dowsing, New York, representing the United States Potters Association; John S. Lerch, New York, who said he represented "100 per cent of the chemical industry;" John Gall, New York, secretary of the American Manufacturers Association, and Warren N. Watson, Washington, secretary of the Manufacturing Chemists Association, also appeared in support of the American price basis.

What Is it about CHESTERFIELDS?

Well, I can't tell you much of anything about what is in Chesterfields

BUT I smoke a good deal, and I noticed that they said that Chesterfield Cigarettes were milder and tasted better; so I smoked a package or two and found it to be true.

I also noticed that the cigarettes were well-filled, seemed to be the right length and the right circumference, and burned uniformly—not up one side and down the other.

I liked the aroma—very pleasing. I liked the appearance of the cigarette—the paper, dead white. The package rather appealed to me.

I don't know exactly what it is, but I just like 'em. It's about the only luxury that I enjoy; so I think it's all right for me to have a good cigarette, and I believe Chesterfield is just about the best.

COVERING BROAD GROUND.

The British Ambassador departs for London today after a conference with President-elect Roosevelt in which the fact has been made perfectly clear that the United States will insist upon some compensation in return for revision of the British debt.

The British government had hoped to confine the discussion to revision of the debt. It seems to be believed in London that a presentation of Britain's desperate situation will be sufficient to induce the United States to reduce the debt, without requiring concessions in return.

These viewpoints must be reconciled if the discussions are to be successful. Matters of great importance require that the United States and Great Britain shall work in harmony. Failure of the forthcoming conferences would impair the good relations of the two countries and would render more difficult the adjustment of questions of greater moment than the debts.

Inasmuch as President-elect Roosevelt will personally direct the American side of the discussion, it is desirable that a British representative possessing plenary authority should meet him. The presence of Prime Minister MacDonald in Washington would be an assurance that the negotiations would not be confined within narrow limits, but would explore all avenues by which the two governments might reach agreement.

Economic considerations alone may fail to furnish the basis for debt revision. Britain may be unable to offer economic inducements which would be satisfactory to Congress or the people. But it is widely believed in this country that these two great nations can give powerful assistance to the world by agreeing upon a common program having world peace and economic recovery for its objective. This opinion has been expressed by influential men in Congress. It is believed that Mr. Roosevelt shares this view, and that he has consented to a prompt discussion because he is convinced that world conditions can be improved by Britain and the United States.

The American people are not demanding that the British debt question shall be discussed on the basis of dollars and cents, as is suggested by British spokesmen. There is no benefit to the United States in a mere scaling down of war debts, and no arguments attempting to prove that the world will collapse unless America takes over the debts have any weight with the public. The debtors are asking for tangible concessions, and will be asked what tangible concessions they can make in exchange. These concessions may not take a monetary or economic form, but they must be substantial and satisfactory to Congress and the people, or all the discussions will have been in vain.

CHANCELLOR HITLER.

Adolf Hitler has finally achieved the German chancellorship. His high office, however, is hedged about with conservative members of the cabinet who are expected to exercise a restraining influence upon the fiery chief of the National Socialists, and, furthermore, his government has yet to undergo the dubious test of securing majority support in the Reichstag. Notwithstanding all restraint that will be brought to bear there will be tension among the nations of Europe until it is clear just how much authority Chancellor Hitler will exercise.

The anti-republican demands of the long National Socialist campaign will likewise be the subject of much concern to the German people until the new program is announced. Hitler's threats against parliamentary government may withhold from him the Centrist support he needs for a Reichstag majority. If the Center parties vote with the Socialists and Communists in opposition his government cannot stand, unless it should be given emergency power by the president to dissolve the Reichstag.

The Nazi campaign against the Versailles treaty has been discounted in large measure by the virtual abandonment of reparation payments and the later assurance that Germany will be accorded equality in the matter of armament. The remaining vital point affects territorial questions, and undoubtedly the most dangerous issue that can be raised would be for Hitler, now that he is in power, to renew his demand for the return to Germany of the Polish Corridor. This is the most serious trouble spot in Europe. That Poland will resist such a move and count upon the assistance of France there is no doubt, and how many nations would be involved in such a struggle can not be foretold.

The convening of the Reichstag, which was to have met today, has been postponed for at least another week, which will give time for further efforts to secure majority support for the Hitler cabinet. The difficulty of accomplishing this lies in the demands of Catholic Center and Bavarian parties for guarantees of the preservation of constitutional government, and while it seems doubtful that Hitler will be allowed to overthrow the republican machinery, pledges at the very outset of his regime would be in humiliating contradiction of the objectives of his long fight for power.

Hitler will be surrounded with a cabinet of strong men. There is every reason to hope that his government will be given a chance to rule, for, whether there is agreement with his policies or not, there is little prospect for a restoration of political peace and orderly economic recovery until they have been given a trial.

AID FOR TRANSPORTATION.

The highly complicated problems confronting transportation in the United States are receiving practical attention. Members of the National Transportation Committee visited the Capital last week for consultation with the Interstate Commerce Commission before completing their report, which both Chairman Bernard M. Baruch and Alfred E. Smith announced would be forthcoming in about a fortnight. This committee, originally headed by the late Calvin Coolidge, is performing valuable service in making an independent investigation of the serious condition in which the railroads find themselves today.

While continuing to carry probably 95 per cent of the freight and passenger traffic of the country, reduced volume and the intensive competition have reduced the railroads to a critical position in which they feel that the timely support received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation must be supplemented by stricter regulation of their principal rivals, the truck and the bus. Another important agency recently formed by those interested in motorized traffic is the National Highway Users Conference, which has provided the motor interests for the first time with a national organization to look after their combined interests.

A conference has just been concluded in New York by the Joint Committee of Railroad and Highway Users. After months of preliminary study these interests met and were able to agree upon various points of major importance that have been in conflict, such as taxation, coordination of highway administration, and grade crossing separation. It was probably inevitable that the first general session could not agree entirely upon rates and the disputed points of length and weight of road vehicles. These points will be given further study by committees. The report of the joint conference will be submitted to the National Transportation Committee.

WRITING DOWN FARM DEBTS.

Plans to relieve the farmer of his debt burdens began to take definite form when Senator Robinson offered a bill to create an emergency agricultural refinance corporation with a capital of $1,000,000,000 to be subscribed by the Government. Hearings on this measure will soon begin, and the whole problem of helping the owners of heavily mortgaged farms will be explored.

The desirability of making some adjustments on farm mortgages is everywhere recognized. The only question involved in the discussions at Washington is how far the Government should go in extending credit to farmers in this emergency. In a number of States adjustments of farm debts are already going forward on a broad scale. Iowa, for example, has set up county organizations to promote arbitration between debtors and creditors. Each section is endeavoring to meet the problem in its own way. As a first principle, Congress ought to refrain from any action that would upset these commendable efforts of the States and counties.

It must be recognized, also, that many farms are mortgaged for more than their value, and that some one must take the losses before such farms can be refinanced on a sound basis. Virtually all economic groups have been forced to write down the value of their property and their assets. Holders of farm mortgages must expect to do likewise. The world has gone through a period of drastic deflation. It is idle to pretend that farm land has retained its value any more than city real estate or stocks and bonds. The best that can be anticipated from the farm-mortgage situation is an orderly process of absorbing the losses and allowing farmers to go ahead once more on a sound basis.

If the Federal Government undertakes an extensive program of farm mortgage relief there is grave danger that losses will be written off at the expense of taxpayers. Unless mortgage adjustments are made, it is questionable whether a Government loan would be a kindness to a farmer. It might serve to perpetuate a huge debt based on an exaggeration of the value of his land. In that case the Government would be merely relieving the mortgage holder. The real burden would either be fastened more securely to the farmer's back, or transferred to the back of taxpayers.

It is difficult to see how the Government can do more than to strengthen the Federal Land Bank system and maintain its policy of making loans only on a sound business basis. It is not the duty of the Government to assume losses that have been incurred through overvaluation of land in boom times. Such a policy would bankrupt the Government and plunge the country deeper into the mire of depression. If Congress maintains the land banks on a stable footing, the more delicate task of aiding in the adjustment of farm debts might well be left to local authorities.

NEW SOURCES OF ENERGY.

While many observers are blaming a too-rapid advance of science for the ills of the world, scientists themselves are convinced that they are only at the beginning of their conquest over nature. Unemployment has brought resentment against the powerful agencies that are now used in place of human labor. Superficial thinking leads to the belief that the continued advance of technical knowledge makes the economic status of the average man more precarious. But science is not deterred. Secure in the knowledge that its findings will ultimately be used for the benefit of the human race, science goes forward without much regard for the fluctuations of business indicators.

One of the foremost points of scientific attack at present is the atom. For many years the atom resisted every attempt to break it down. Science struggled in vain to unloose its boundless energy. But recently startling progress has been made. The atomic structure has been penetrated, and powerful new devices are under construction for further experiments that are expected to reveal its secrets.

It is interesting to read from the pen of Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, that this field "is open and relatively so little explored that we can not predict what will be discovered." But great discoveries are anticipated. "We should not be surprised", says Dr. Compton, "if the next generation should uncover the most exciting and far-reaching developments in the whole history of science".

The world is still in a state of dynamic change. It is not improbable that the tremendous energy stored within the nucleus of the atom may be harnessed for the production of the necessities and luxuries of life. Instead of arresting its work while the world makes adjustments to the changes that it has brought about, science is pushing into new fields where it may find energy enough to revolutionize the whole economic system.

Energy will continue to become cheaper and more available in supplying the wants of man. What the world needs now, of course, is more intelligent application of the energy at hand. Every year reduces the demand upon mankind for physical labor and accentuates the demand for intelligence.

All the casings for hot dogs consumed in the U. S. are furnished by Soviet Russia. Why do the 800 professors who urge recognition overlook this diplomatic argument?

Appropriation bills reported by House committees carry an increase of $163,319,642 over the President's recommendations. Economy comes high.

But there is nothing to indicate that crabs, kingfish, mudcats or any other varmints are to be allowed in the White House swimming pool.

WORLD CITY

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

A visionary idea with a certain practical significance comes out of Belgium, the work of a Prof. Paul Otlet, who is chairman of the Union of International Associations. It is Prof. Otlet's dream to build a neutral, self-contained city on the banks of the River Scheldt, opposite Antwerp, from which the various nations would carry on their economic and socio-political activities in Europe. It would be called World City.

The plan for this international community evidently owes some debt to the tradition of the old Hanseatic League, an association of the principal cities of the Baltic world which flourished with great prosperity in the fourteenth century. These cities were virtually free states operating together under a trade agreement, managing to curb the flagrant piracies of the era and to dominate the commercial life of the entire continent. World City would have the same independent character, but its influence would extend into parts of the earth not even known to the merchants and mariners of six centuries ago.

Prof. Otlet's first plan was to establish his international settlement on a 1,000-acre plot adjoining the new League of Nations Buildings in Geneva, but the site on the Scheldt has certain advantages over the other location. It would have direct connection with the ocean by means of the river, and docks could be built to accommodate ships of large tonnage. A newly constructed vehicular tunnel under the Scheldt already connects the region in question with the busy City of Antwerp. Offices would be built to accommodate business representatives and bureaus of the various countries desiring space in the free city.

The special American feature of the plan is perhaps less practicable than any other part of the scheme. Prof. Otlet proposes that Belgium should wipe out its debt to the United States by contributing the required amount of money to World City, which would then pass it on to America in the form of special bonds. Sale of real estate and taxation within the international community would take care of interest and redemption of these bonds.

Prof. Otlet is an ambitious man, but it is doubtful if he is ambitious enough to undertake to sell this particular proposition to the United States Congress.

The Magnificent Pauper.

POST HASTE

The repudiated debt baby has been adopted at the Little White House—and how it is growing!

Our wager is that the senator who makes a spectacular bid for more will not be really peeved about "propaganda" against him unless an attempt is made to charge him advertising rates for it.

Possibly the Southern could build a detour around Washington so that Warm Springs visitors might avoid the annoyance of official contacts.

"Five hundred automobiles snowbound in California." Florida is endeavoring to suppress the news in all the Eskimo papers.

Congress begins to feel a little more chummy toward the French deputies, since they also default on balancing the budget.

What is Col. House going to say about another Young candidate being eliminated from the Cabinet slate?

It will soon develop whether the Briggs strikers who are strong on bodies are short on brains, considering the number of idle workers.

Budget worries might be lightened a bit by printing 10,000,000 copies of that book listing Federal jobs and selling them at $10 each.

State and local government costs are more than twice as great as Federal expenditures. To begin with, the automobile makes it practical to combine four counties in one.

John Bull will attend an individual debt parley, though somewhat embarrassed by the parlez at Lausanne.

Fewer persons were killed by automobiles last year. A lot of folks have been reducing and are more agile.

If the two Senate Robinsons could be permanently paired with leave to print it ought to save time.

Rest assured Japan has inside information about the League's sanctions and knows they have faulty teeth.

It now appears that the early aversion of the President-elect to conferences was that he prefers to enroll his own.

Yes, it was Lord Ronald who gave Lady Clare the doe, but try to get a buck out of our Sir Ronald.

PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A PRESIDENT DEPARTS.

This was the manner of his going:
Just one soft bugle call;
No bitter weeping and no knowing,
No footsteps in the hall;
But swiftly, without terror showing,
A sigh—and that was all.

'Tis strange that death no pomp paraded
That morning chill and gray,
But quietly his room invaded,
As if it heard him say
He'd like to venture forth, unaided,
When he must go away.

Simple as are the hills of granite
He lived his life-long term through,
As one, who trusted God to plan it
And give him tasks to do;
As if some purpose high began it
He deeply felt and knew.

Thus when that purpose was concluded
And ended was his day,
A truth to which he had alluded,
One morning cold and gray
Death the calm room he loved invaded
And bore his soul away.

The Repentant Prodigal Was Rewarded, But None Gave Him Another Fortune.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YEARS ago, when the West was wild, a miner discovered gold in the hills that inclosed a certain green valley.

As though by magic a town appeared, with a saloon and a dance hall in every third building, and two men established "general stores."

Gold dust served as money; tramps made fortunes; eggs sold at $5 the dozen; and the two merchants made enormous profits.

In the course of time the valley was divided into farms, good women appeared, and a church began to compete with the dance halls.

Then men discovered that the vein of gold was picked clean and the boom was over. Miners packed their gear and left to find other bonanzas; most of the saloons went out of business; the nights were no longer noisy; coins smaller than a quarter were no longer despised. The hills were empty, but the farms remained.

One of the town's two merchants seemed unaware of the change. His stock of goods, his prices, his staff of clerks were unaffected. "I'm not quitting," said he. "Something will happen to restore normal conditions. Somebody will discover another vein of gold and we'll have easy money again."

The other merchant sold his "fancy goods" at any price he could get, adjusted his stock to the needs of farmers and prepared for a new era.

"The boom has busted," said he, "and it can't be unbusted. But this is a good country and I can still sell calico and plows at a fair profit."

Now which of these merchants remained solvent and prospered in later years?

Which man is building on solid ground today—the one who makes his plans to live under present conditions, or the one who lives in hope of some miracle that will restore the postwar boom?

It was the war that gave America a great foreign trade. Other nations bought freely because we loaned them the money. Now that trade is gone—and the money, too.

We lived high on credit and it spoiled us. We forgot the normal times of 1913 and thought the boom days normal.

Waiting for a miracle won't get us anywhere. We spent our substance in riotous living, and the sooner we lose faith in Santa Claus the fewer husks we shall eat with the swine.

POLITICAL COMMENT

A Wet Congress.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Although prohibition played a secondary part in the presidential election, there is no mistaking the sentiment on that question as expressed in the State referendums and the choice of new members of both House and Senate. For the first time, Congress will have wet majorities of working strength. Modification is now unmistakably at hand.

On the basis of preelection declarations by the candidates, 20 new Democratic senators-elect and one Republican favor repeal. One new senator of each party has declared himself for submission. Two of the successful Democratic candidates support prohibition. Of the senators who will hold over, ten Democrats and four Republicans are committed to repeal and four Democrats and six Republicans to submission. The views of 31 holdover senators and three newly elected are not definitely known. This means that the Seventy-third Congress will have a Senate of which 47 members are frankly wet, favoring either modification or repeal.

In the House 159 Democratic members-elect and 44 Republicans are committed to repeal, 11 Democrats and 10 Republicans are committed to submission. That is a total of 224, or 6 more than a majority. Submission of a constitutional amendment requires a two-thirds vote in both houses, but modification calls for only a simple majority. So whether the pressure of necessity for more income drives the short session to legalize beer under a taxation program, the incoming Congress is sure to take up the matter. And when it does, it will have majorities on the wet side of the question.

Procrastinatin' Critter.

Macon Telegraph.

It is beginning to look as if immediate beer is around that same corner.

Machines Make Libraries.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Paderewski may be right in saying that the machine is fatal to culture. But where would all our libraries, museums and swell universities be but for the crystallized products of a machine age?

Hurrah for Walsh.

Detroit News.

In Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, President-elect Roosevelt apparently has obtained for Attorney General in the next Cabinet a man whose record compels respect for his independence, confidence in his legal equipment and admiration for courage throughout a long public life.

It will be widely hoped, we think, that the report of Senator Walsh's selection is both true and typical of the judgment and discrimination to govern the formation of the entire Roosevelt Cabinet.

Way to Economize.

New York Times.

For several reasons the policy of the Democrats in Congress on veterans' relief has been a matter of special interest. Their party platform pledged them to "an immediate and drastic reduction" of expenditures in Washington, "to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of Federal Government." Much was made of this bold promise during the campaign by every Democratic speaker, from the President-elect to the least important candidate for Congress. But it was clear then, as it is now, that no such reduction can be made without "immediate and drastic" retrenchment in the Veterans' Administration.

Hard to Learn.

Charleston Mail.

Economy is a word the meaning of which politicians will have to learn if they expect to remain in active political life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Watch the Drys" Hints Old Campaigner Who Has Studied Political Psychology.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think the letter Dr. Clarence True Wilson recently wrote to new congressmen urging them to heed the voice of conscience in connection with a reinspired dry movement which is going to sweep the country is less visionary than some people may think.

Just now its significance does not seem to be very startling. As members of the Seventy-third Congress take their seats it will be to laugh, although most of them are old enough to remember what a peaky thing the dry agitation of preprohibition days was.

But within 12 months from now, as the headway of the dry propaganda gets stronger, they will begin to wonder whether there is much satisfaction in the idea that the day of the wet-dry straddle is gone. The activities of their dry rivals and the embattled dry citizens back home will get on their nerves and they will begin to wish a straddle would do some good. But it will be too late.

Getting down to brass tacks, I wouldn't wonder if Dr. Wilson has the last laugh. The people were not under the influence of liquor when they voted a change of administration last fall. They were in the state of stampede which always goes with hard times. For such a condition to run its course in less than a decade is not usual. Under the circumstances, the drys are not overconfident in thinking they have a good chance to stampede the voters back on their tracks.

So you should not be surprised if a "dry" Congress is elected in the fall of 1934. OLD CAMPAIGNER.

Senate Holds Respect, but Could Do Better by Cutting Out Useless Debate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with your correspondent, Shaemus O'Sheel, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who protests that it is unfair for the newspapers "to abuse and ridicule the Senate for going about its lawmaking with care and deliberation." But I don't think it's a good thing for legislation when "lawmaking with care and deliberation" gets befuddled in long-winded speechmaking.

The people at large still have a good deal of respect for the dignity of the Senate, and that is a good thing. But in my case it takes the starch out of senatorial dignity when from day to day they let windy time-killers get by with a filibuster. The presiding officer backed up by the Senate ought to be able to draw the line between careful deliberation and disorderly verbosity.

And while I am at it I would like to remark that the Senate would set a useful example by putting its rules in gear to shut off unnecessary and undignified verbiage. My experience is that in this day of typesetting machines and swift printing presses there are too many sermons, lectures, special articles, editorials and even good books which would have more kick and be a whole lot more convincing if they were cut down by at least a half. It is a bad plan to heap details on details till your reader or hearer hasn't room to think.

"Examples may be heaped until they hide the rules which they were meant to render plain." It is truly astonishing that the solid sense of this has not been applied to the proceedings of the Senate.

FEDERALIST.

Get Rid of Eighteenth Amendment and End the Farce of Beer, Says Wet.

What nonsense for Congress to be arguing about 3.2 per cent beer, when anyone with a taste for alcohol can easily buy a bottle of tonic containing 22 per cent of alcohol, and no questions asked. We have had a ten-year farce. It is the earnest wish of thousands of decent, temperate, loyal citizens (many total abstainers) that this law shall be repealed, outrightly and completely, very soon, leaving no mention of it in the Constitution of the United States; then in the States taking all proper means to build up temperance, beginning in neighborhoods.

SO-CALLED "WET."

Thoughts of an American Lady on the War Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some 20 or 30 years ago an English editor devoted a column or two to a vehement lament over the failure of England to give full recognition and active assistance to the Southern Confederacy, declaring she had missed her chance. "Why," he exclaimed, hysterically, "if something doesn't break up that nest over there in another generation they'll bully all Europe!" We ask, "Who is bullying now?"

A united, though not corporate, Europe admits that she owes the United States $11,000,000,000 and then calmly suggests that the United States accept $1,000,000,000 and call the account squared. (One wonders if the "U. S." signed to such a release would be thought "over there" to stand for Uncle Shylock.)

If such a proposition should be made to the fast-approaching Washington conference, it is to be hoped that the American delegation will say, "Gentlemen, we consider one billion much too thin a camouflage for a defalcation of 10 billions. If the United States can afford to forgive 10 billions, she can stretch her generosity just a little farther and bid you keep that one billion. The debt has been scaled down to the vanishing point. Let the point vanish, but do not forget the quid pro quo."

It is a sad reflection that it is not among the impossibilities of a darkening future that those very armaments, for which the American taxpayer has incurred such heavy obligations, may some time be turned against his own beloved America.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS NAMED AT Y. W. C. A.

312 Applicants Were Placed on Jobs Last Year, Report Shows.

The board of directors was elected last night at the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association in Barker Hall, at the association center, Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Those reelected are Mrs. Daniel L. Borden, Mrs. Thomas E. Brown, Mrs. William K. Cooper, Mrs. David A. Skinner, Mrs. George Winchester Stone and Mrs. Mary Jane Winfree. New members are Mrs. Russell J. Clinchy, Mrs. A. Montague Stone, Mrs. McFall Kerbey, Mrs. Frances J. Nickels and Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant.

The nominating committee for 1933, chosen last night is composed of Miss Elizabeth Eastman, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Emilie M. White and Mrs. Fred E. Wright.

Activities of the association during the past year showed the industrial group had received 1,225 applicants for work, an increase of 499 over 1931. Of this number 312 were placed in jobs, an increase of 171 over 1931.

There was a total attendance of 222,657 at Y. W. C. A. events during the year at the K Street Center, and an additional 24,274 attendants at events of outside organizations held there. Out of 5,201 applicants at the rooms registry, 4,405 were placed in rooms. There were 1,337 registrations in general education activities including 149 in a free dictation class and 122 who received a Gregg stenography review. There was an attendance of 11,196 at the Sunday music hour and other musical events and an attendance of 53,084 at health education activities for which 7,261 individuals registered. In addition to all these activities, the food service handled 260,918 meals during the year.

Explorer Shows Sound Film Of Primitive Brazil Tribes

Members of Archeological Society Taken on Two-Hour Trip to Dreaded Matto Grosso Country, Where Col. Fawcett Vanished.

Presenting the first sound moving pictures ever taken of a primitive people, Vinzenzo M. Petrullo, of the University Museum of Philadelphia, last night took members of the Archeological Society of Washington on a two-hour trip into a lost world of the Brazilian wilderness.

Mr. Petrullo's pictures, which have never been given a showing to the general public, are probably the most remarkable of their type ever made. They encompassed a journey of one year into the Matto Grosso territory of Brazil in 1931. Mr. Petrullo and his party were the first explorers to enter the mountainous part of this region since the disappearance of Col. P. H. Fawcett in 1927.

The Philadelphia explorer talked with Indians who last saw Col. Fawcett and flew over the country where his last camp fires were seen. He made it plain, however, that he was not on a searching trip for the famous explorer.

Actual encounters with jaguars and other wild animals, in which they were shot, speared and caught alive, brought gasps of wonder from members of the society. The Indians, it was shown, still hunt the jaguar with bow and arrow and regard the tiger as a sacred symbol.

The men and women shown in the pictures go unclothed, except for a cord around the loins, and practice a unique culture, which includes the making of arrows, baskets, mats and houses. They live as tribes lived hundreds, perhaps thousands, of years ago.

Dances and other amusements of the primitive people were revealed and one heard their language recorded on the sound film. That these Indians have striking histronic ability and intelligence was proven in many of the scenes.

One interesting sequence disclosed a young boy hunting alone and without fear. Men of the tribes were seen twirling the bull roarer to keep the women away. Men, it was also shown, take to their beds after a woman bears a child, while the woman goes about her daily duties.

The first part of Mr. Petrullo's trip was along the Paraguay River and gave views of the Bororo tribes. The second was into the highlands of Matto Grosso, among the Xingu River tribes, including the Yawalapti, who at first attempted to shoot arrows at the airplane in which the explorer was traveling and then offered food, after he dropped a bag of presents; and the Mekinahu and Aura, who came to the rescue of Mr. Petrullo when he and his party lost their canoes, and finally the Caribs, who last saw Col. Fawcett alive.

Mr. Petrullo gave a view of the three men who took Col. Fawcett across a river on his start into the deeper country never explored by whites, from which he never returned.

Thomas D. Bailey Seriously Injured

Unidentified Driver Brings Him Home Following Road Accident.

Thomas D. Bailey, 63, publisher of the Arlington County Chronicle, was seriously injured late yesterday when struck by an unidentified driver in front of the Greenwood Garage on the Lee highway near Cherrydale, Va.

It is believed he was taken to his home in Clarendon by the driver of the car which struck him. His wife was called to the door and found him lying on the veranda. The man helped carry Bailey into the house, but left before she could learn his name.

Realizing her husband was in a serious condition, Mrs. Bailey called the Clarendon Fire Department and he was brought to Emergency Hospital, where it was reported that he had a possible fracture of the left leg.

MOTHER PRINCIPAL IN VAN WINKLE WILL

Former Police Bureau Head Leaves Small Bequests to Several Others.

Mina C. Van Winkle, for many years head of the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, named her mother, Mrs. Hilda Ginger, of Maplewood, N. J., the principal beneficiary of her estate, it was disclosed in District Supreme Court yesterday when a will dated October 2, 1932, was filed by Mrs. Van Winkle's brother-in-law, Arthur Lesser, of Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Van Winkle died in her home at 1425 Thirty-fourth street northwest on January 16. She had been ill for years and had retired from her position as lieutenant in charge of the Women's Bureau.

The residence on Thirty-fourth street is to go to Mrs. Van Winkle's sisters, Mrs. Louise Lesser and Frances Ginger. After numerous bequests of silverware, jewelry and clothing, the mother is to receive the balance. There was no estimate of the value of the estate.

Besides the home, the sisters are given several pieces of jewelry and silverware. Four persons listed as friends were given small gifts. They were Van Winkle Todd, of Matawan, N. J.; Guerin Todd, Nelson Todd, and Rodwell Todd. Others who are to receive articles of silverware or jewelry are Gretchen Todd Starck, Edmund Todd, jr., Lieut. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Women's Bureau; Mary Radford, of the Associated Charities; Helen Findlay, Veronica Devlin, and Mary Gainey, of the Police Department, and Edna Todd, of Gladstone, N. J.

Bessie Poe, Vylla Poe Wilson, both of 1731 Twenty-first street northwest, and Mrs. Elizabeth Poe Fitzhugh each get specially named pieces of silver. Cash bequests of $1,000 to Mrs. Annie Ginger; $2,000 to William G. Ginger, and $200 each to Helen Findlay and Rhoda Milliken also were provided for. Waldron Ward, and Arthur Lesser, both of Newark, N. J., are named executors.

BILL SEEKS CLOSING OF NORMAL SCHOOLS

Three Would Be Affected; Maryland Income Tax Also Proposed.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30.—Bills authorizing the closing of one of three normal schools and proposing a constitutional amendment to provide for State income tax were introduced in the Senate tonight as the House received the gasoline tax bill sponsored by the County Commissioners Association.

The normal school at Bowie is not affected by the school bill, which would close one of the white school. The saving of this economy measure would range from $40,000 to $280,000, depending upon which school is closed. The choice of schools is left to the State department of education. Such a measure has already been conditionally approved both by the Republican senators and the economy bloc in the Upper House.

The income tax measure was introduced by a Republican and has already been disapproved by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie. The amendment it proposes must be submitted to the people of the State before it becomes effective.

Absolute repeal of his county's prohibition law is called for in a bill introduced by Delegate Phillip H. Dorsey, jr., of St. Marys. Another bill, extending the open season on squirrels in Charles County also was introduced tonight. The measure provides that squirrels may be killed by landowners and tenants when they are actually destroying crops between August 1 and September 15. The present open season does not begin until September 15.

Three-Day Record Set by Auto Show

Miniature of Modern Plant Is New Feature of Annual Display.

Picking up momentum after two draggy evenings, attendance at the thirteenth annual Washington Automobile Show last night forged ahead of the record for the first three days of last year.

An interesting new feature found its way into the display at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon. It is a miniature of one of the country's most modern motor car plants and reproduces in detail both the equipment and mechanical processes of actual automobile manufacture. The exhibit shows the assembly of cars from the beginning to the end of the production lines. It is known as the world's greatest toy and was built at a cost of $20,000.

HOW MUCH WILL YOUR INCOME TAX BE IN 1933?

A well-managed corporation builds up, out of current income, a special fund for the payment of taxes.

A man who manages his personal finances in a businesslike manner will follow this same plan with respect to his various taxes. The procedure is a simple one—

Estimate the total amount of your 1933 taxes, adding a small amount for contingencies.

Divide that amount by twelve, thereby determining how much money you should set aside each month in your tax fund.

Then deposit that amount each month in a savings account opened for that particular purpose.

Start your income tax savings account today!

JOHN J. ASTOR 3D ENGAGED TO ITALIAN

Annapolis Friend Says Bride Will Be Daughter of Prince Torlonia.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The marriage of John Jacob Astor 3d and Donna Christiana Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia, of Rome, and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, of New York, probably will take place in April, a close friend of Donna Christiana said here today.

It was through a letter of this friend, Luisa Maria Camperio, to her father, Admiral Camperio, retired, in Milan, Italy, that first news of the engagement was made public.

"We have known about it for a long time," Miss Camperio said today, "but it was only recently it was announced. I don't believe the date has been set, but it will be some time in April."

Miss Camperio said she believed there was some objection on the part of the prospective bridegroom's mother to the marriage on account of his youth, but added she did not believe this was serious. Astor was 21 years old last August; Donna Christiana is a year his junior.

Miss Camperio has been asked to be a bridesmaid in the wedding and said she was waiting final settlement of the date for the wedding before making plans to sail to Italy, where the marriage is to take place.

Young Astor and Donna Christiana met at Cortina D'Ampezzo, an Italian Alpine resort, last summer and fell in love immediately. He is the posthumous child of the late Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster on April 15, 1912, and the son of Mrs. William K. Dick, formerly Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

He is heir to $3,000,000. His father stipulated in the will that this amount was to be held in trust until the child was 21 years of age.

Miss Camperio is visiting at the home of Mrs. Mason Porter Cusachs. Her father recently returned to Italy. Her mother is the former Eleanor Perry, daughter of the late Admiral Perry.

Fairfax County Plans To Conquer Diphtheria

Beginning this week the Fairfax County Health Unit, under the direction of Dr. A. L. Carson, health director, will continue the fight against diphtheria started this year by the County Medical Association.

Clinics will be held in the various school centers throughout the county at stated periods when the children who did not take advantage of the special offer of their family physician during the past month, will be given the treatment.

Tondorf Portrait To Be Presented

Providence Alumni Honor Memory of Expert on Earthquake.

A portrait of the late Rev. Francis A. Tondorf, S. J., for many years director of the seismological observatory at Georgetown University is to be presented to the university by the Georgetown alumni of Providence, R. I.

Dr. Michael Mullaney, president of the Providence alumni group for the last 11 years, commissioned Wilfred I. Dumphiney, of that city, a well-known New England painter, to do the portrait. He brought the unfinished portrait to Washington Sunday to show to Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the university, and the Rev. John L. Gipprich, S. J., regent of the medical school. The formal presentation will not be made, however, until after the June commencement.

For years before Father Tondorf's death the Providence alumni had shown active interest in his work. On more than one occasion they had made generous contributions toward the purchase of seismographs for the observatory. Dr. Mullaney is an alumnus of the Georgetown School of Dentistry and on the occasion of Dr. Nevils' inauguration as president of the university he received an honorary degree from the institution.

Scout Executive To Speak Tonight

J. Harold Williams to Talk at Annual Meeting of District Council.

The annual meeting of the District of Columbia Boy Scout Council will be addressed tonight by J. Harold Williams, Scout executive of the Narraganset Council, which has its headquarters in Providence, R. I.

The meeting will be held at Willard Hotel. Among other speakers will be Brig. Gen. George Richards, of the United States Marine Corps. Election of officers will be held and Troop No. 8, of All Souls Episcopal Church, Woodley road and Cathedral avenue, will present the pageant, "Mightier Than the Sword."

Officers of the council are: George E. Hamilton, president; Dr. Paul Bartsch, Julius Garfinckel, and Samuel Kauffmann, vice presidents, and George Hewitt Myers, treasurer and commissioner.

Wyoming House Passes Dry Law Resubmission

Cheynne, Wyo., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Wyoming House of Representatives by a vote of 43 to 18 today completed enactment of a measure to submit to the voters in 1934 the question of repealing the prohibition amendment to the State constitution.

The Senate previously had given an affirmative two-thirds vote, making the Governor's signature unnecessary. Gov. Miller, however, said he would sign the resolution.

Kansas City Veterans' Hospital to Be Closed

Kansas City, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. W. E. Chambers, head of the United States Veterans Hospital here, was informed today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Adminstrator of Veterans' affairs, that the hospital will be closed June 30.

The 200 patients will be transferred to a new hospital on the National Military Home grounds near Leavenworth, Kans. The property here is leased from the Christian Church Hospital Association.

Ocean Will Claim Ashes of Poetess

Medical Examiner Rules Sara Teasdale's Death Was Accidental.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Sara Teasdale wanted no trace of her left after death. This wish, often expressed to friends, will be observed. The poet's ashes will be sifted over the sea Wednesday.

Miss Teasdale's death was ascribed today by Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, to accidental drowning in the bathtub of her Fifth avenue apartment.

The first thought among relatives and friends, after the body was found yesterday, was that Miss Teasdale, whose poetry won for her the Pulitzer prize, took her life.

Mrs. Arthur O'Brien To Plan Wets' Meeting

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform today named Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, of New York, and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, of Washington, D. C., to head committees to make arrangements for the fourth annual conference of the organization on April 5 and 6 in Washington.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found as a child by Kali, a lioness, and raised with her own cubs, Ruka and Dogo, fights his way up to the leadership of a pack of lions with the aid of a knife which a native hurled at him. When a drought makes game scarce on the veld, they raid the natives' stockade and the natives complain to the deputy commissioner, Martin Sefton, who in turn reports their complaint to his superior, Loudon Grant. A Canadian newspaper publisher, Horton, hears about the lion-man and offers 500 pounds as reward for his capture alive. Cloete, a veteran Dutch hunter, sets out after Kaspa, and when he reaches the vicinity of Kaspa and his pack, he lays a trap for him. As Kaspa passes under a hidden net, it collapses upon him.

CHAPTER X.

THE movement of the shadowy object above his head caused him to leap wildly for safety, but he was too late. The clinging folds enveloped him; his thrusting arms and legs pushed through the interstices and were snared; he tripped and rolled upon the ground, fighting silently, and in a moment the net was swathed about him, binding him to immobility.

At last he lay motionless, growling his wrath and fear.

Ruka and Dogo pounced upon the end of the net, tearing and biting at it, but their efforts merely jerked their bound leader about the clearing without liberating him. At length they too desisted and crouched growling beside him, impotent. Kaspa remembered Mua. In just such a way Nguvu had striven to liberate her, until exhausted by his efforts. He was convinced his fate would be that of the lioness, and he broke into a paroxysm of struggling again. At the end of five minutes neither his efforts nor those of his brothers had benefited him. He lay still, gasping and considering.

The men who had done this thing were afraid of him. They had never molested him since the affair of the dogs, why then had they entrapped him like this? Perhaps the traps had not been set for him, but for one of his followers. Kaspa recognized that the immunity he had enjoyed was not extended to the true lions. Men sought to be revenged upon the slayers of their cattle, but him they pardoned. He had eaten their beasts within a few yards of them and they had not attempted to harm him, whereas a similar theft upon the part of Ruka or Dogo had produced arrows and bullets.

He began to think that he had been caught by mistake and would not be harmed. With the morning would come the hunters to the number of a hundred and more, and if they were disposed to kill him he could not prevent it. He must abide the issue, but he had no intention of allowing his pack to suffer by his mistake. His brothers must go and leave him to his fate, as Paka and Nguvu had left Mua to her fate.

He communicated his thoughts to the lions, but they would not leave him. Mala, having discovered Simba in the tree, was making determined efforts to knock him out of it, but he was beyond her reach. Dogo went to her assistance, launching his magnificent body in huge leaps at the branch whereon the man crouched, but Simba had chosen his position with care and he was safe enough. Kaspa tried to impress upon Ruka that he must take the pack away; they would all be killed if they stayed there.

"Remain with me until the morning and then go, for the men are too powerful for you by daylight," he grunted. "Remember the attacks we made upon the herds, how the men could not resist us until they had gathered all their people, and then how they killed the two old lions that came up from the thorn country to join us. It is true that the old lions killed some of them, but it did not stop them. I tell you if you are here at dawn you will not save me, and will get killed yourselves."

Ruka was of opinion that he could kill all the men in the district if only he could get his claws upon them. He looked forward to doing so. Mala sided with him. Simba had prodded her with a spear as she jumped at him, and she desired nothing better than to fight it out to a finish. Kaspa reasoned with them. He dreaded that they would be there in the morning to throw themselves uselessly against the spears of the Bomogo. He knew the blind rage to which his people were prone when wounded, and the cunning of the men who took advantage of trees and arrows to defend themselves against the furious frontal attacks of their enemies. The pack gathered about him and listened to his advice. He was their leader, and the habit of obedience was difficult to shake off.

Kaspa began to hope that his counsel would prevail, but the affair was suddenly taken out of his hands. Simba's shrill whistles, disregarded by the lions, had reached the ears of the waiting hunters, and now they were advancing to secure their catch, with lanterns and firebrands to scare the lions. The veld became busy with lights and shoutings.

Kaspa saw the bearded face of the white man, lit by the radiance of many lanterns. These people were newcomers, and might not be disposed to treat him with the deference of the Bomogo. He began to struggle again, roaring out to the others to fly and save themselves. Mala and Ruka sprang to meet the men. There was a stunning report and the lioness collapsed in a kicking heap. "Go! Go!" roared Kaspa. "Leave them! They will kill you all!"

Ruka pulled up and crouched, snarling. A second shot tore past his ear. He leapt into cover behind a bush.

With shouting and firing of guns the men came on, and the lions, alarmed by Mala's fate, retreated before them. Cloete stood over Kaspa, examining his captive by the light of a lamp, but so thickly was the net wound about the recumbent form that he could distinguish little.

"We've got what we wanted, anyway," he said. "Pick him up and carry him back to camp."

They bound ropes about Kaspa; tied him to a long pole and lifted him up to swing between them. As the procession made its way over the veld the lions followed, roaring mournfully. Kaspa uttered one sound as he was borne away. It was the signal for retreat, and reluctantly his brothers obeyed it.

They took him down to the river, and there, after having fastened him securely to a tree, left him to his bitter thoughts. He was frightened and bewildered. What was to be done to him he had no idea. His captors had left him still tied up in the net, and had gone away to gather about fires and talk until the morning.

He had suffered all the pangs of helpless rage and fear. To a wild creature, which Kaspa was, it is a frightening experience to be brought into contact with things he does not understand, and to be subjected to treatment in which he can see no profit or purpose. He could not see that men could have any use for him other than to kill him. They had not killed him, therefore why did they not let him go? He lay exhausted and miserable in his bonds, listening to the ripple of the river close by and the faint calling of his brothers out on the veld—a message of love and sympathy, but hopeless as his own thoughts.

With morning his captors approached him, untied the ropes which bound him to the tree, and thrust him into a large wooden cage with bars across the front of it.

The bearded man poked a knife through the bars, cut the cords of the net in every direction he could reach to and stood back to watch Kaspa free himself. When he had done so, the Dutchman looked narrowly at him, and allowed his breath to escape in a long exclamation. "Allemachtige!"

He said nothing more. He stood watching the captive for an hour without moving, and Kaspa, crouched on the floor of the cage, stared back at him. Then he went off to his breakfast, and his place was taken by a dozen astonished natives.

They brought cooked meat and thrust it into him, and also a bowl of water. Kaspa did not move; he crouched there glaring at them.

In half an hour Cloete emerged from his tent and roared orders. The camp was struck! Long poles were brought to which the cage was securely fastened; natives shouldered it, and the party trekked.

In four days they reached the government post of Nyoka. Kaspa still crouched on the floor of the cage. He had neither eaten nor drunk; he was dying by inches. At every halting place Cloete had talked to him and offered him food, but no coaxing would induce him to eat. In desperation Cloete got him to Nyoko and hurried into the office with his tale of woe.

"Mr. Sefton, I have caught that wild man, but he will not eat or drink. He will just snarl at me and die."

Sefton jumped up from his desk. He was a slightly built, fair young man, with thin, handsome features and a sensitive mouth. For a moment he stared at the Dutchman incredulously. Then he said, "Where is he?" As yet it did not dawn upon him that Cleote's captive was other than an animal. He had expected the lion-god to turn out some hybrid native ape. He was interested and eager to examine him.

Cleote led the way to where his men had put the cage down under a tree. Sefton walked up to it and stood staring. He saw something crouching down upon the floor of the box—a man, but such a man! He was enormous! His arms and shoulders bulged with rippling muscle that slid under the skin in time to his breathing. His face was half hidden by a mane of curling yellow hair, but Sefton could see that his brow was broad, his nose straight and his eyes set wide apart. Then he looked into the man's eyes and gasped.

It was the savage yellow orbs of the lion that stared back at him. Kaspa's eyes were a light hazel, and they had that remote brooding expression that can be seen in the eyes of the king of beasts when he lies behind bars and regards his persecutors with contemptuous unfriendly gaze.

The man's skin was a clear olive brown, seamed with the scars of old wounds and scratches.

"My God, this is a white man!" cried Sefton at last.

Cloete was almost weeping. "I know, Mr. Sefton. What can I do with him? He will not drink and he will surely die."

Sefton thought rapidly. This was a man, and you could not treat him like an animal; at the same time you could not treat him like a normal person. To all intents, he was a lunatic, and a savage one at that. One restrained lunatics for their own good and, if necessary, fed them forcibly so that they should not starve themselves to death. He felt justified in treating Kaspa like a lunatic.

"We must feed him forcibly," he said decisively. "The man is to be treated like an invalid—some one who is mentally unbalanced. You can not keep him in a cage like this, Cloete; we must get him up to my house and keep him there."

The Dutchman threw up his hands in a despairing gesture. "But how? Man; he is like a gorilla. If we let him out he will kill the whole lot of us!"

Sefton was forced to recognize the sense of his objection. Kaspa appeared to have the strength and ferocity of a wild beast, endowed with some of man's intelligence. Sefton had never seen anything look quite so dangerous.

"He has a monkey skin round his waist, with a knife on a thong," he said, peering into the cage. "Surely he must understand some language if he wears native garments?"

Cloete shook his head. "I've tried him all ways, Mr. Sefton! He's just like a wild lion—he don't know anything."

Sefton made a decision. "Bring him over to my house. We will board up a window and turn him loose in one of the rooms; he can't get away from there."

There was a spare unfurnished room at the back of the commissioner's bungalow. The window was blocked up with heavy battens of wood, the door strengthened, and Kaspa's cage placed inside. Simba opened the door of the cage and fled for his life; the white men watched from gaps in the window-bars.

Kaspa came out of the cage with a single bound. He ran quickly round the room on noiseless feet, seeking a way of escape, and, finding none, retired to a corner, where he crouched. Sefton had been amazed at his bulk in the cage; he was still more amazed at the sight of him erect and moving. He judged him to be about six feet four, but so broad and thick that he looked shorter. Cloete and the commissioner watched the wild man for some time, but as he made no further move they went off to have tea and discuss the matter further. The result of that discussion was that the Dutchman retired to his camp by the river, leaving Sefton to the task of taming Kaspa.

Power Company Delays Answer on Rate Slash

S. R. Bowen, counsel for the Potomac Electric Power Co., yesterday again delayed the formal answer of his company on the last proposal of the Public Utilities Commission for ending litigation over electric rates, this time until tomorrow, when the directors of the power company meet.

This postponement will prevent the inauguration of a rate reduction on February 1, as predicted by the commission, though any subsequent cut may be made retroactive.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

THE first detailed news from Paris and the new collections of the Haute Couture have come in at last! Ever the breathless expectancy, the certainty that this or that famous house will launch something entirely and radically new—followed by the realization that such a thing can not happen, and that to expect it is contrary to our intelligence and the modern woman's conception of the mode.

Innumerable details are always new. Trends which have been tentatively advanced sometimes for several seasons, sometimes for only one season, are often emphasized—and to the unnoticing damsel, may seem like a new style. To us who must be "in the know" there isn't anything new or unexpected, even though some of our predictions as to which trend or idea of last season will survive and which will die fail to materialize.

The sleeve is an example. During the last season it was all important, so much so indeed that the skirt was given scant consideration. Now 'tis summer styles we see, and fewer and shorter sleeves—hence the artistry of the couturiere must center elsewhere on the garment. It is natural, therefore, that blouse or bodice, and skirt details are more important, sleeves less so. Whilst necklines, so near indeed to the sleeve, have positively outdone themselves in ingenuity!

The whisper of fringe and the rustle of taffeta are heard once more in the style world. And lace and chiffon again offer themselves for summer wear. Some of the chiffons are, sh--h-h-h-h, printed! But more of that anon.

And the evening gown has at last made up its mind about length—ankles and pretty slippers will show, that's all. Even more—if you wish. Especially is it noticeable that summer resorts wear is shorter in length, although the skirt length for spring and summer town wear maintains its elusive and mysterious indecisiveness.

Today's French.

All about time, this will be. S-o-o, tout de suit (toot d' sweet) said as though it were one word. Tout a l'heure (toot-tal-lur). So says the dictionary—but it is used in farewell, meaning what we mean when we say "See you soon." Bientot is similiar—means "good-bye for the present," but is usually in a farewell which presupposes another meeting. Pronounced "(be-n-toe)" with the accent on the "n." One says "a bientot!" pronounced "ah."

And this week's illustrated leaflet is of Oriental designs, ten of them! Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it if you would like it. Each design is individual—some Buddhas, but only one dragon! And a couple of Nautch dancers—which means that Oriental doesn't mean only Chinese. You'll like these designs, and find them useful for all sorts of hand decorations—even for cross-stitch work on the tea sets we will have for you next week. Better send for these designs!

Something About Pins.

The first pin was undoubtedly a thorn—there followed bronze and bone pins. Some have been found which date from prehistoric times—some even with ornamental heads. Some are shaped like hairpins, others like our modern safety pin! More tomorrow—we'll get to "pin" money pretty soon!

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

I HAVE seen many women who reduced pounds and inches and gained immeasurably in beauty thereby. I have seen others who reduced not only flesh and measurements, but their beauty, their dispositions, their usefulness, the proper functioning of their vital organs. The answer? Just the difference between a sane course and an overdose, whether it be freak diet or a too ambitious and too quick reducing method. Fanatic reducing is happily a thing of the past.

Dangerous Methods.

Women are learning to cut down on starches, sweets, fatty foods, but that does not mean they are cutting them out entirely, because the body needs repair and tissue-building elements.

Women are no longer taking internal medicines, drugs, glandular treatment, salts and such, except under the direction and personal supervision of their physicians.

The last few years have made women wiser. They know that mechanical aids are fine as occasional, secondary measures, but that diet and exercise continue to come first. They know, too, that Turkish baths are valuable cleansing mediums and may be indulged in occasionally; but they are weakening and not satisfactory reducing mediums, except when they supplement diet and exercise. They know that an occasional cathartic or colonic irrigation helps to cleanse the system of waste, and if the body needs this artificial assistance to facilitate elimination—fine. But it is a mistake to make this purging a habit. Constipation is a health and beauty curse and often responsible for excess weight. Green vegetables, cereals, prunes, bran, mineral oil, &c., and some good bending exercises will help to regulate bowel movement.

Skin Shows.

Next to the danger to general health is the destructive effect that too rapid reducing has on skin and contour. The skin becomes tinged and sallow, looks cloudy instead of clear and glowing. As for the contour, remember that our skin is elastic. It has been stretched to cover the cushion of fat beneath. When this cushion melts away too quickly and the skin without encouragement does not spring back into place, the result is bagginess, sagging, a bewrinkled appearance. That's what little Johnny referred to when he innocently said Aunt Agatha looked just like a turkey. To avoid this, reducing should be sure but slow and, while reducing, a good skin food and astringent should be used daily, with under-the-chin tie-up a few times a week.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Fresh English Muffins or Crumpets Obtainable on Order; Spring Salads Suggested by Many Crisp Garden Products; Pastries on Sale Today.

One of Washington's most skillful pastry chefs offers his patrons English muffins. He asks that the muffins be ordered 24 hours before they are to be used so that a fresh product may be guaranteed. The English muffins are made in special rings and often are known as crumpets. Frequently readers of Market Meanderings have inquired where to find these particularly nice English-inspired products. The Meanderer will tell you where to telephone your order for them if you will call National 4205, Extension 52.

Ginger ice-box cookies, crisp and full of spicy goodness, sell regularly for 15 cents a dozen in a market well out on Wisconsin avenue, composed of a group of women from farms nearby. It is there that Swedish timbale cases sell for only 90 cents a dozen; that the freshest of country eggs are 25 and 30 cents a dozen; that bread dough is shaped into pans of rolls, ready for the customer's home baking, so that piping hot rolls may be served very easily; and there, too, those large loaves of bread in home-made style sell cheaply.

Spring salads are suggested readily when the shopper looks over the crisp green things the Meanderer found in a certain vegetable stand in a market on K street. Today in addition to the usual head lettuce, one may choose from Belgian endive, romaine, chicory, new cabbage, watercress, fresh radishes, tender green onions, fresh tomatoes and cucumbers.

Sweet corn of the Golden Bantam variety from Texas is selling regularly in many food stands, even at the high price of three ears for 25 cents.

Lima beans and asparagus appear regularly, their high prices seeming to be no deterrent to shoppers. Green beans seldom are marked more than 10 cents a pound, and spinach stays within reach of all purses, selling 3 pounds for 25 cents.

The first forsythia the Meanderer has seen this year is in long-sprayed graceful bunches alongside the pussy willows and the flame-colored euphorbia. All these long-branched shrubs and flowers are used attractively with mixed bouquets.

Low prices on genuine Virginia cooked ham are making sales for one meat marketer in a prominent shop in an open market downtown. He asks but 35 cents a pound for these hams, which weight about 11 or 12 pounds.

Little wooden boxes of Camembert cheese from Germany, labeled with gay German pictures contain about a quarter pound of cheese and sell for 20 cents. A larger box of domestic-pack Camembert in three portions is 30 cents, while 8 ounces of genuine Swiss Gruyere, also in wooden packages, are 40 cents.

The fluffiest of cream puffs which sold in the old days for 10 cents everywhere, seldom are priced at more than 5 cents each nowadays. In a popular bake shop in the big market on K street, vanilla and chocolate cream puffs, all eclairs and fresh pastries are 5 cents each; while today, only, fresh custard cream puffs are selling six for 25 cents in bake shops in the heart of the shopping district, one on Fourteenth street and another on F street; whole wheat Danish pastries sell in the last-named shops for 33 cents, just today, and in the same places luscious cocoanut layer cakes are 39 cents, and fruit bars are two dozen for 29 cents, Tuesday specials only.

Water French bread, made of very white flour in long, crusty loaves is a favorite at the White House, the Meanderer learns. This bread sells daily in a bake shop in the food selling place on K street so frequently visited by discriminating shoppers. Danish pies, filled with pineapple or cherries and covered with strips of pastry, weigh about 4 pounds and sell in this same bake shop for 60 cents.

Potted chives, which supply tasty seasoning, as well as an attractive kitchen plant, are but 20 cents in a downtown market the Meanderer visits.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ERYSIPELAS.

ERYSIPELAS is an illustration of a disease which is changing its status, and every change is making for human security. Within a half century it was regarded as in the same class with cholera, yellow fever and smallpox. It was a contagious disease and epidemics of it swept across communities. About the first halfway scientific epidemiologic study made in Chicago was one of an epidemic of erysipelas made by Dr. Edmund Andrews.

Even long after it was regarded as a community epidemic disease, it was held to be responsible for house epidemics and particularly hospital epidemics. More than one surgical hospital has been condemned because it was regarded as a breeding place for erysipelas, and obstetric service has been abandoned in one hospital ward for the same reason.

Fifty years ago there was common talk about burning down certain hospitals because they were regarded as erysipelas breeders. Now erysipelas is not a cause of either community or house epidemics, though it is still regarded as contagious, and certain restrictions against intimate exposures are placed by law on those who have the disease.

A step forward has been established in the cure of the disease. It is now treated very successfully with erysipelas antitoxin. Drs. D. Symmers and K. M. Lewis report the result of using it for treatment in Bellevue Hospital for the last five years. Something more than 600 cases of this disorder came into that hospital yearly. In five years they have treated 3,300 cases with the antitoxin. They compared the results with the results of treatment during the previous five-year period and with cases treated otherwise during the same period. The total experience, therefore, covers about 10,000 cases and every one will agree that here is ample experience from which to draw conclusions. In fact, when these physicians reported to the same effect about three years ago they were told they had spoken too quickly, and to go back and gain some more experience. Having met the requirements they are back to tell teacher of it.

In cases otherwise treated ten cases die out of each one hundred. When antitoxin is used this proportion is reduced to seven. The length of the illness is cut to less than half when antitoxin is used. Given a man with head swollen, eyes closed and temperature of 104, we expect in one day after the use of the dose of antitoxin that the temperature will be 100, that the eyes will be open, and that the swelling will be greatly reduced. It is given by injection into the muscles. Six injections are given at intervals of twelve hours.

The remedy appears to have no effect in about five cases out of every one hundred. Those who are most endangered by erysipelas are the old, the chronic alcoholics and infants.

BATH ITCH.

C. writes: I have a prickly sensation, together with blue pimples over my body, after a bath lasting for several minutes. I have used all kinds of soap to no avail; water is always soft and lukewarm. I have had this trouble for years. What can it be and what do you suggest as a remedy?

REPLY.

This is one of the first chapters in the twenty-second or 1932-33 edition of our serial on household itches.

CHANGE THE SPIGOT.

R. J. U. writes: What happens when you contact brass with grape wine? In other words, what are the results when you put a brass faucet for an indefinite period of time on a keg of wine?

REPLY.

The metal would dissolve very slowly. Probably the wine would never pick up a dangerous dose of metal, but why take a chance, since the supply of wooden spigots is ample?

Fifth Avenue Fashions

For all its smartness, it's exceedingly simple. Inverted tucks make the bodice "fitting" at the waistline and snug at the hips. They're decorative too.

Style No. 3401 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards 35 or 39 inches, and ⅞ yard 39-inch contrasting. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

We are proud of our new Fashion Magazine for spring. It's much larger and different than any issue previously published. It's 48 pages.

This book contains all of the new spring styles for women, misses and children.

In addition, it contains the most interesting illustrated articles—"Beauty Hints," "Hairdressing," "How to Reduce Sensibly," "Poise as Aid to Fashions," "Dressmaking Hints," "Knitted Sweaters, Quilts and Embroidery, &c."

A GOLF CHAMPION AS A BRIDGE PLAYER.

MR. C. ROSS SOMERVILLE is the present holder of the United States amateur golf championship title. He also has the distinction of being the first Canadian to win this coveted trophy, which left the United States last summer for the first time in 30 years. Mr. Somerville's prowess, however, is by no means confined to the golf links. He has, for some years, been an outstanding figure in rugby and hockey, and that he is as much at home at the card table as on the fairway is shown by his bidding and play of the hand below, which was played in an important tournament conducted by the Tecumseh Bridge Club at London, Ont., recently:

South—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Mr. C. Somerville

The bidding:

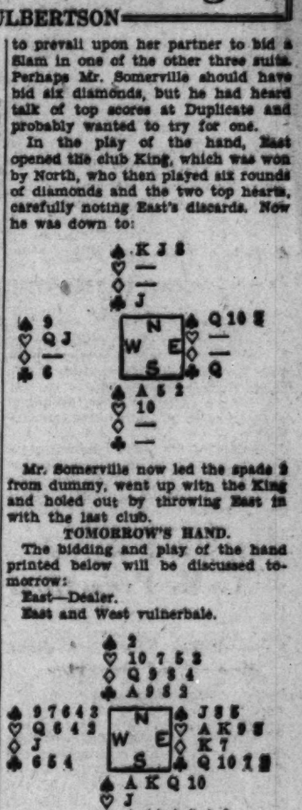
3♣	Pass	3NT	Pass
4♣	Pass	4NT	Pass
5♣	Pass	5NT	Pass
6♣	Pass	6NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

A remarkable feature of the bidding was Mrs. Skinner's persistent call of the opponents' suit in an effort to prevail upon her partner to bid a Slam in one of the other three suits. Perhaps Mr. Somerville should have bid six diamonds, but he had heard talk of top scores at Duplicate and probably wanted to try for one.

In the play of the hand, East opened the club King, which was won by North, who then played six rounds of diamonds and the two top hearts, carefully noting East's discards. Now he was down to:



Mr. Somerville now led the spade 9 from dummy, went up with the King and holed out by throwing East in with the last club.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

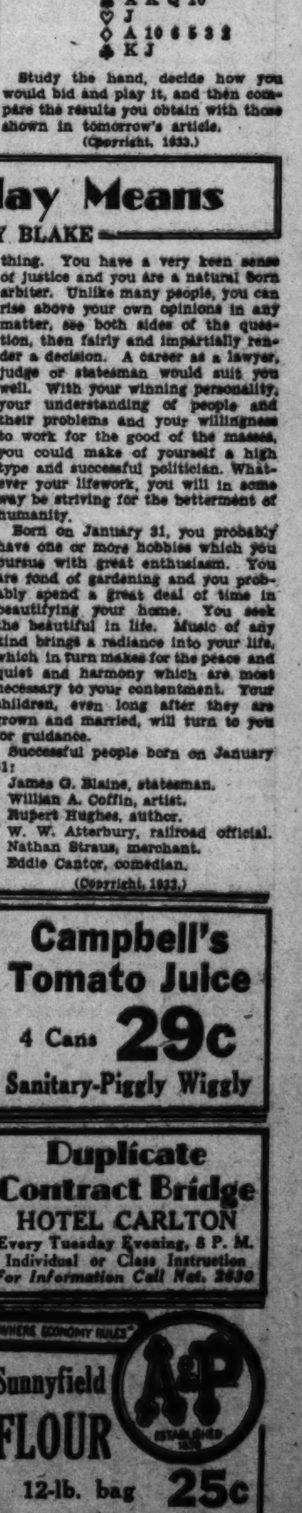
East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 a. m. to 8:15 a. m., from 11:50 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m.

You will carry your cares and responsibilities lightly on this January 31. You will not be inclined to worry. Weddings occurring on this day will get off to a good start and would seem destined to bring much sound happiness to the two concerned. If you can avoid any great amount of travel on this day it would seem well to do so, although there is no danger involved should one be forced to journey any great distance.

The child born on this January 31 will not be possessed of the "fire" or spirit that makes one will to do great things. Rather, the child will be an onlooker. His experiences at school and after will be those of the average run of people. He will have his minor defeats and triumphs as all do, but in all probability nothing of a startling nature will be heard from him. Kind and honest.

If January 31 is the date of your birth, you belong to that group of people who invariably do the right thing. You have a very keen sense of justice and you are a natural born arbiter. Unlike many people, you can rise above your own opinions in any matter, see both sides of the question, then fairly and impartially render a decision. A career as a lawyer, judge or statesman would suit you well. With your winning personality, your understanding of people and their problems and your willingness to work for the good of the masses, you could make of yourself a high type and successful politician. Whatever your lifework, you will in some way be striving for the betterment of humanity.

Born on January 31, you probably have one or more hobbies which you pursue with great enthusiasm. You are fond of gardening and you probably spend a great deal of time in beautifying your home. You seek the beautiful in life. Music of any kind brings a radiance into your life, which in turn makes for the peace and quiet and harmony which are most necessary to your contentment. Your children, even long after they are grown and married, will turn to you for guidance.

Successful people born on January 31:

James G. Blaine, statesman.
Willian A. Coffin, artist.
Rupert Hughes, author.
W. W. Atterbury, railroad official.
Nathan Straus, merchant.
Eddie Cantor, comedian.

Smeeman Waits Missouri Officers

Ohioan, Free in Colorado, Hopes for Further Clemency.

Canon City, Colo., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Glenn Smeeman, music publisher of Cleveland, Ohio, who returned recently to Colorado after being a fugitive for fifteen years, completed his automobile theft sentence in the State penitentiary today, but remained in the prison voluntarily awaiting arrival of an officer from St. Louis.

Warden Roy Best said he had been advised Chief of Police J. J. Pitzsimmons, of St. Louis, would arrive tomorrow to return Smeeman to Missouri, where he jumped bail years ago after being sentenced to two years on another automobile theft charge.

Smeeman's sentence in Colorado was commuted by Gov. Edwin C. Johnson. The prisoner, who presented evidence that he had lived an upright life after his escape from a Colorado prison road gang, expressed hope that clemency would be extended him in Missouri.

DALADIER TO FINISH PARIS CABINET TASK

Socialist Refusal to Support Him Fails to Defeat War Minister.

Paris (Tuesday), Jan. 31 (U.P.).—Edouard Daladier announced early today that despite refusal of Socialist Party leaders to offer cooperation, he will complete a new French Cabinet this morning to succeed that of Joseph Paul-Boncour.

Daladier, who said he would present his completed cabinet to President Albert Lebrun this morning, also announced that he would remain war minister as well as premier.

Four others who will have posts in the new cabinet, he said, are Georges Bonnett, finance minister; Camille Chautemps, minister of the interior; Lucien Lamoureux, minister of the budget, and M. Paul-Boncour, minister of foreign affairs.

Socialists withheld their support because of their opposition to a financial program suggested by Daladier as a means of balancing the budget.

GUNFIRE FOLLOWS NAMING OF HITLER

members of the Steel Helmet War Veterans Association—after many ups and downs since they met for common effort at Harzburg in October, 1931.

A proclamation emphasizing that the present cabinet is not truly representative of Hitlerism and the Nazi organization was issued yesterday by Hitler.

In it the chieftain of the Brown Shirts announced a determination to "carry on the fight within the government as tenaciously as we fought outside."

"After a 13-year struggle the National Socialist movement has succeeded in breaking through to the government—the struggle to win the German nation, however, is only beginning," the proclamation said.

Two Named to Cabinet.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg placed the highest political office of the reich in the hands of the former Austrian corporal, and at the same time appointed Dr. Wilhelm Frick and Hermann Goering (Nazi lieutenants), Nationalist Leader Hugenberg and Steel Helmet Leader Franz Seldte to the cabinet.

Presiding over the first session of his cabinet of "national concentration," Chancellor Hitler last night put through unanimous motions against all policies of suppression, economic adventures or financial experimentation.

He adjured his fellow cabinet members "under no circumstances to disappoint the manifestation of faith and trust which today found spontaneous expression among the rank and file of the German people."

In a press conference, the chancellor, through Dr. Frick, the new interior minister, assured German and foreign correspondents that "the new government seeks to live in peace and friendship with all the world."

Dr. Frick further asserted that the Hitler cabinet intends to govern strictly constitutionally, adding that it does not even desire to govern with the aid of article 48 of the constitution, which grants the administration drastic powers in times of emergency.

Thousands of brown-shirted Nazi storm troopers and members of the Steel Helmet War Veterans Association, wearing their field gray uniforms, participated in a public demonstration of the new political unity.

Thousands Are Massed.

President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hitler, standing in separate wings of the chancellory, accepted the combined salutes and hopes of several thousands of these demonstrators massed in Wilhelmplatz and the Wilhelmstrasse.

Not until late Sunday was Hitler persuaded to accept the chancellorship under the limitations imposed by the president nor was Von Hindenburg ready to hand the highest office to the Nazi chieftain.

Two men managed to bridge the chasm between the field marshal and the former corporal. Former Chancellor Franz von Papen prevailed upon Von Hindenburg to accept Hitler, and Goering won out over Joseph Goebbels, another Hitler lieutenant, in insisting that the Nazi leader must no longer decline to put his shoulder to the wheel.

Hindenburg's Limitation.

The president's limitation consisted in associating with the new chancellor men having his personal confidence, such as Lieut. Col. von Papen, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Gen. Werner von Blomberg and Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosick. Also, the president provided a check by putting in the new administration men of different political persuasions from Hitler, such as Dr. Hugenberg and Seldte. At the same time he acceded to Hitler's taking into the cabinet two of his trusted lieutenants, Goering and Frick.

Moreover, Hitler, in the presence of President von Hindenburg, vowed with a handshake to Von Papen and Seldte that he would not endeavor to rid himself of the non-Nazi members of the cabinet nor would he try to oust tried and trusted government functionaries from office to make room for Nazis.

Assured of 247 Votes.

The parties supporting the new regime are assured of 247 votes in the Reichstag, while the majority needed consists of 293. The new regime hopes that the Centrists will at least tolerate a Hitler cabinet, thereby preventing adoption of a nonconfidence vote by the Reichstag.

The cabinet personnel includes: Chancellor, Hitler; vice chancellor and Prussian commissar, Franz von Papen; foreign minister, Konstantin von Neurath; finance, Lutz Schwerin von Krosick; interior, William Frick; defense, Gen. Werner von Blomberg; economics and agriculture, Alfred Hugenberg; labor, Franz Seldte; posts and transportation, Eits von Reubenach; minister without portfolio, Hermann Goering; justice, unfilled; employment commissioner, Guenther Gereke.

NO DEPRESSION IN CAPITAL

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ARTHUR J. BECKHARD, who staged his own highly successful productions of "Another Language" and "Goodbye Again," has taken over the direction of "Forsaking All Others," the Arch Selwyn production which will bring Tallulah Bankhead back to Washington and the legitimate stage at the National Theater on Monday, February 6, which is by way of being the next Monday there is.

This is the word that was dropped upon the Washington dramatic desks yesterday by Miss Jean Dalrymple, the charming and efficient young publicist who commutes these latter days between New York and the Capital by plane, in behalf of both Miss Bankhead's new vehicle and "Maedchen in Uniform," the film sensation soon to be seen on F street at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater.

Miss Dalrymple flitted into town yesterday morning and flew out again at 5 in the afternoon under slightly less nervous strain than a week ago when a 4 o'clock plane had to be held momentarily while she packed her reticule. It seems that the anxiety to get away on that occasion was due to an engagement with her husband, Ward Morehouse, to attend the New York premiere of Noel Coward's "Design for Living," with Mr. Coward, Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt starred—an event, by the way, worth hurrying a little for.

But about Mr. Beckhard. The original director of "Forsaking All Others," Harry Wagstaff Gribble, was taken ill with the flu last week—evidently a slave of fashion, Mr. Gribble—and when it became apparent that he would not be sufficiently recovered to have the play ready for opening on schedule, Mr. Selwyn approached his old friend, Arthur Beckhard, and asked if he would step into the breach.

Mr. Beckhard, already at work on plans for a new production of his own, immediately laid them aside and started work on the vehicle of Miss Bankhead's return to her original metier after a considerable experiment in the celluloids.

There is, it seems, an old adage in the theater something to the effect that "the show must go on."

I suspect that last week-end was a busy time for the New York City panegyric pounder-outers, because, in addition to Miss Dalrymple's interesting item about Mr. Beckhard and the Archer of the Selwyns, a paragraph or two of interest to such Washingtonians, particularly, as will journey to Baltimore the week of February 13, for one of the premieres Washington missed, filter in from Ray Henderson typewriting in the interests of Miss Cornell from the Belasco Theater in Manhattan.

Mr. Henderson, at the moment, is intrigued by the fact that his principal, Miss Katharine Cornell, has three leading men in Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn," which has its first performance on any stage in the Maryland Theater, Baltimore, Md., on Monday night, February 13.

James Rennie, who played important roles in such plays as "The Best People," "The Great Gatsby," "Crime," "Young Love" and "Bridal Wise," is seen as Conway, husband of a society leader of musical ambition. Siegfried Rumann, the German actor, who scored heavily in New York in "The Channel Road," "Half Gods" and "Grand Hotel," appears as Brandt, retired Viennese concert violinist, father of Elsa (Miss Cornell), and Luther Adler, a member of the famous Yiddish actor-family, who came into prominence on the English-speaking stage this season in "Success Story," acts Julian Entwhistle, a poetic, young professor.

All three men love Elsa—each in his own way. Conway's regard for her would shut out her aspirations for a musical career. Her father would have her abandon everything for music, while Julian loves her both as an artist and as a woman.

Other players in the cast of "Alien Corn" are Charles Waldron, Lily Cahill, Charles D. Brown, Jessie Busley, Richard Sterling, E. J. Ballantine, Frank Moran and James Vincent.

"Alien Corn" will have its New York premiere in the Belasco Theater on Monday night, February 20.

Speaking of the week of February 13, as we certainly were, did you get a peek at those box-office lines trailing away from the ticket wickets at the National Theater all day yesterday and last night?

That would be, probably, 99 per cent "The Green Pastures" and 1 per cent the extra performance of "Of Thee I Sing," next Sunday night.

There may still be a depression, but "Design for Living," "Of Thee I Sing" and "The Green Pastures," coming almost on the heels of one another, lend a little credence to the belief that in the theater as everywhere else, if you have what the public wants, the public can and will buy it.

A Washington visitor yesterday, for the day only, was John Peter Toohey, general press representative for the Sam H. Harris enterprises, who maneuvered a deft bit of publicity for "Of Thee I Sing," current at the National.

Mr. Toohey not only contrived to put stories of the dinner party attended by the Hon. John Nance Garner, Speaker of the House and Vice President-elect, and Victor Moore, who plays Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom on the stage, on all the news service wires, but also engineered the newsreel coverage of a meeting between Mr. Garner and Mr. Moore on the steps of the U. S. Capitol yesterday afternoon.

Content in the knowledge of a good day's work well done, Mr. Toohey, a former staff feature writer on this honorable family journal, returned to New York on a late train last night. It was Mr. Toohey, in case you have forgotten, who covered the first public flight of a Wright Brothers' heavier-than-air machine from Fort Myer to Alexandria and back for The Post.

Let me see, that must have been back about 1792!

Incidentally, if you will revert a moment to Miss Bankhead and her new play, when "Forsaking All Others" opens at the National next Monday night there will be a considerable party of New Yorkers in attendance.

Miss Dalrymple tells me that in her party, in addition to her husband, Ward Morehouse, there will be John S. Cohen, jr., son of Senator John S. Cohen, proprietor of the Atlanta Journal; Richard Watts, jr., of the New York Herald Tribune, and Mark Barron, of the Associated Press—all commentators upon the theater in its various manifestations.

If the party does not assume too generous proportions, they will fly down the day of the opening in a specially chartered plane, returning to New York immediately after the final curtain.

Afterthoughts on "Of Thee I Sing:" It is nice to have Victor Moore, cast in the role of Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom, back on the local boards again. . . A great many of us remember when he and Emma Littlefield were among the foremost diversions of the two-a-day in such skits as "Change Your Act" and "Back Where We Started." . . . That was both before and after George M. Cohan lifted Mr. Moore and his drolleries out of the varieties to do for "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" what Tom Lewis had done a little earlier for "Little Johnny Jones." . . . Make it funny, I mean. . . . And he did . . . Along with Fay Templeton and a few others. . . And now, by an odd coincidence, he is working under the management of Sam H. Harris, who for years was George M.'s partner. . . "The world has revolved a few times," as the Music Master would put it. . . . Lois Moran, playing Mary Turner—but not the one in "Within the Law"—to those seeing her in the flesh for the first time, is just as youthful, demure and refreshing as they had hoped she would be from having enjoyed such of her screen appearances, say, as that with the late Belle Bennett in "Stella Dallas," which these two conspired to make one of the outstanding pictures of its season. . . That was back in the old silent days. . . Edward H. Robins, the Senator Carver Jones, a former leading man with the old Poli Stock Company, as I recall it, just missed being a Belasco star by an eyelash. . . He was cast in a play Belasco was to produce, but the author craved quicker action than Belasco thought expedient, withdrew his play in favor of another producer, Mr. Robins went with it and it was a flop. . . Not because Mr. Robins was in on it, but because Mr. Belasco wasn't. . . George Murphy and June O'Dea are a nice pair of fast steppers. . . Miss O'Dea strikingly resembling a composite of Estelle Taylor and Charlotte Greenwood. . . Facially, I mean, to say. . . Personal nomination for the funniest crack in the play: Vice President Throttlebottom's comment that the Senate resolution that something be done about Paul Revere's horse, Jenny, dead since 1805, was sure enough "unfinished business" if he ever saw any!

You certainly can't say that about this!

HOOVER EULOGIZES M'KINLEY AT RITES

Talks to Ohio State Society at Observance; Fess Also Speaks.

Referring to the martyred President as "one of the men most revered in all our history," President Hoover said "his was a regime in which the American people find particular satisfaction."

The President remarked that he had a remote right to associate with an Ohio society. "I have never been able to work out exactly the relationship of a man to a State," he said. "I am a son of Iowa, but my father came from Ohio, and my family has lived there for four full generations."

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, gave his personal impressions of the former President. He said President McKinley was one of the finest products of a democratic Nation. The celebration marked the ninetieth birthday anniversary of the twenty-fourth President.

Judge I. M. Foster and R. W. Dunlop, president of the society, acted as chairman of the memorial meeting. Other officers of the organization are: A. Rea Williams, secretary, and Miss Irene Nelkirk, treasurer.

GAYETY

"TOM AND JERRI GIRLS." Empire Burlesque attraction, starring Jerri McCauley and featuring Gladys Clark, guest star; Marian Morgan, Rose Marie, Ruth Bradley, Joy St. Clair, "Bimbo" Davis, Sam Raynor, Bob Sandberg, Sid Gold, Nora Murray and Jimmy Dugan. Reviewed Monday night.

Impresario Jimmie Lake, Washington's P. T. Barnum of burlesque, this week emulates the showmanly procedure of the late Oscar Hammerstein, who used to present so many topline acts at his old Victoria Theater in New York that it would take a whole season to see one of his bills filter through to the hinterland, as they did, in time, at the rate of one turn a week. Jimmie, the old-master, is fairly stuffing his weekly parades of pulchritude with feminine stars, packing them full of capable comics and staging his shows with an opulence that burlesque hasn't known in the Capital for years, if ever. This week marks the high point to date of his prodigacy.

Any one show that can boast such torso-tossing temptresses as the Junoesque Jerri McCauley, dynamic Gladys Clark, sinuous Marian Morgan and plump little Rose Marie is bound to exert as much voltage as an unchained streak of lightning. Each is a star in her field and each is costumed—momentarily at least—handsomely and completely, although each, fortunately, knows where all the fastenings are!

One glimpse at this week's entertainment at the Gayety is proof enough that the day of the inflated bladder and the putty nose is forever gone from burlesque. Sam Raynor, "Bimbo" Davis, Jimmy Dugan and all the other comics named in the small-type paragraph preceding these casual remarks, work straight and put their material over by cleverness and sheer force of personality rather than grease paint and grotesquerie. Jimmy Dugan is especially adroit in his methods.

In Sid Gold, Ruth Bradley and Nora Murray, the "Tom and Jerri Girls" Troupe has three voices well above the usual burlesque average, and in "The Web of Love" and one or two other numbers scenes of unaccustomed spectacular splendor. The chorus of sixteen youngsters is harder working than it is to look at.

But the Misses Morgan, Clark and McCauley are the big revelations. They outstrip all their competitors!

Glass-Steagall Bill Is Approved by House

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday passed the Glass-Steagall bill to continue another year the provisions to broaden the base of paper eligible for rediscount purposes at Federal Reserve Banks, thereby releasing gold reserves.

President Hoover is expected to sign the measure.

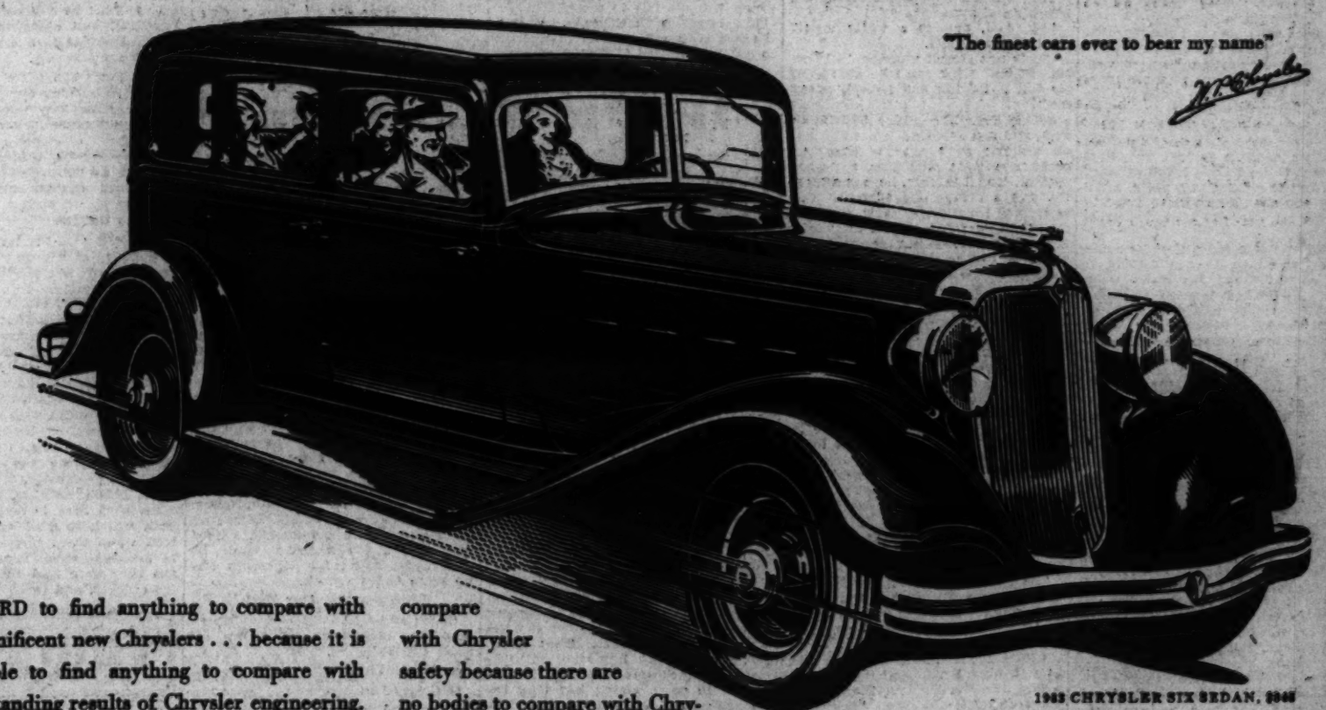
New CHRYSLERS that climax nine years of engineering greatness



"The finest cars ever to bear my name"
Walter P. Chrysler

1933 CHRYSLER SIX SEDAN, $845

IT'S HARD to find anything to compare with the magnificent new Chryslers . . . because it is impossible to find anything to compare with the outstanding results of Chrysler engineering.

The originality of Chrysler engineering was apparent in the very first Chryslers. Ever since, for nine straight years, Chrysler has widened its lead in all the factors that make for faster, safer, smoother motor cars.

There's a nine year lead behind the flashing action of the new Chryslers that makes all other performance seem pale.

There's a nine year lead back of their All-Silent transmissions . . . silent in all speeds including reverse . . . behind their celebrated Chrysler patented Floating Power which wipes out all engine tremor.

Today there is no safety to compare with Chrysler safety because there are no bodies to compare with Chrysler's all-steel bodies, insulated against heat and cold . . . no brakes to compare with Chrysler's matchless hydraulics.

There are years of pioneering behind Chrysler's Oilite squeak-proof springs that never need lubrication . . . behind Chrysler's new alloy steel valve seats that greatly reduce valve grinding . . . increasing performance by scientifically sealing compression.

It's hard to take the lead if you're busy catching up . . . Leadership is the reason why Chrysler is so far ahead in design and so far ahead in value.

CENTRAL AND TECH FIVES CLASH TODAY IN SERIES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

As they say of the stake horse entered in a selling plater race, Joe Judge may be dropping down into cheaper company with Brooklyn in the National League, thus enabling him to continue a career in the majors which, as far as the American League was concerned, had terminated last summer when Joe Kuhel won Judge's job with Washington.

The suspicion has been current for several seasons that the National League has been falling a bit short of the caliber of baseball that the American League has exhibited. This theory has found support in the past six world series clashes, which has seen the American Leaguers beat back the National League pennant winners five times in the half dozen years from 1927 to 1932, inclusive.

The American League has been in the ascendancy dating from 1927, when the Yankees' murderers row annihilated the Pirates in four straight games. The Yankees repeated this feat against the Cardinals in 1928, and in 1929 the Athletics beat back the Cubs in four out of five clashes. In 1930 the Athletics repulsed the Cardinals again in four games out of six, and in 1931 the National League won its first world series since 1926, the Cardinals beating the A's four out of seven. Last fall, however, the Yankees quickly terminated National League supremacy by crushing the Cubs in four straight.

American Won Five of Last Six Series.

Thus in the last six postseason series, the American League has triumphed five times over the National League pennant winners and the margin of victory has been convincing. Of the 30 games played during these six years, the American League has won 23.

The finger of suspicion is pointed at the National League's weakness in another and equally convincing manner, however. A glance over the club rosters of both league reveals that whereas only three former National Leaguers found their way into the American League records of 1932, no less than 13 former players of the American League had been able to catch on with National League clubs.

Chief among these men who were waived out of the American League were Tom Zachary, of the Braves, and Hollis Thurston, of the Dodgers, both of whom were able to show successful records in the National League last year after an appraisal by American League managers had found them wanting.

Koenig Made Good With Cubs.

There was Mark Koenig, who was not good enough for the Yankee infield and was cut loose two years ago, who bobbed up last season with the pennant-winning Chicago Cubs of the National League as a ranking star. And there was also Leo Durocher, another former member of the Yankee infield cast, who was waived out of the league only to earn a regular berth with Cincinnati.

Harry Heilmann wouldn't do for the Tigers three years ago, but he was able to hold on at Cincinnati, dividing his time between first base and the outfield. Two players who weren't good enough to hang on with the seventh place White Sox in the American League, Catcher Bill McCurdy and First Baseman Bud Clancy, both obtained employment with the National—McCurdy with the Phillies and Clancy with Brooklyn.

There was also Val Picinich, formerly catcher for the Nats, who is now on the Brooklyn staff; Pitcher Fred Heimach, who failed with the Athletics and Yankees, also with Brooklyn; Pitcher Owen Carroll, who bounced back to the minors from Detroit several times only to wind up with the Reds, and Lance Richbourg, former Nat outfielder, who made good in a small way with Chicago.

Joe Judge Seen as Brooklyn Regular.

Opposed to this lineup of former American Leaguers who could earn salaries in the National, are only three former National Leaguers noted among the American League clubs last year. Earl Webb, who received a tryout with the Cubs several years ago, became a star with Boston and Detroit, but Evar Swanson, former Cincinnati outfielder, and Bob Cooney, former Braves' pitcher, did not out much of a swath with the White Sox and Browns, respectively.

At Brooklyn, Joe Judge will have only Del Bissonette and Buddy Clancy to contend with and it is this department's opinion that Judge, barring a collapse of his underpinning, can stake both of his rivals to their youth and still outplay them around first base by puh-lenty. Bissonette's legs are as much a gamble as Judge's and the best thing that Clancy does around first base is make the easy ones look hard. And the National League pitching may prove the needed tonic for Judge's batting average.

Allen, Frisch Balking at Contracts

Young Yank Pitcher Unsigned Despite Salary Raise.

Cardinals' Veteran Complaining of Deep Cut.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Johnny Allen, young right-hander of the New York Yankees, can be added to the holdout list on the basis of reports received here today from Florida.

Allen and Vernon Gomez were the only players on the Yankee roster who were given increases, but both balked on the grounds that they thought their work in 1932 entitled them to bigger salary boosts. Gomez came to terms several days ago and the Yankees probably will be able to swing Allen into line with a minimum of trouble.

6 of Yankees Sign.

The Yankees today disclosed the receipt of signed contracts for 1933 from six members of the shock troops.

The latest in the fold are Lyn Lary and Bill Werber, infielders, the latter recalled from Buffalo; Sammy Byrd, the golfing outfielder; Wiley Moore, veteran pitcher whose "sinker ball" baffled the Cubs in the last game of the 1932 world series; Walter Brown, big speed-ball pitcher who developed fast in the closing stages of last season; and Marvin Duke, recruit right-hander who won 23 games for Erie (Pa.) in the Central League.

New York, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Frankie Frisch, second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, today became a semiholdout when he announced he was not satisfied with the 1933 contract which the mailman delivered this afternoon at his New Rochelle home.

"I'm not going to send my contract back," Frankie said. "I believe the matter can be ironed out in a conference with Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey. I'm sure they'll treat me fairly.

"Sure they gave me a salary cut. Was it larger than I expected? Well, I'll let you use your imagination on that."

Last year Frisch is understood to have received a salary of $18,500. He complained that it was a reduction of about $1,500 from his reported $20,000 wage for 1931.

But this season Branch Rickey frankly admitted to the press that "any player in the major leagues receiving more than $10,00 for 1933 will be mighty lucky."

From the tone of Frankie's voice it is believed he was not one of the lucky ones to receive more than ten grand. Sam Breadon said last autumn: "Frisch played at the rate of $6,500 for the Cardinals in 1932."

In 1932, Frankie played in 115 games, was at bat 486 times for 142 hits and a percentage of .2931.

Bottomley Balks At $5,000 Cut.

Nokomis, Ill., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, first baseman traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Cincinnati Reds, said at his home here today that he had been asked by the Reds to take a $5,000 salary cut, compared with his 1932 pay, and added he would not sign for "that kind of a salary."

"The Cincinnati club has sent me a contract calling for $8,000," Bottomley said. "That's just $5,000 less than I received from the Cardinals last season."

Asked if he might compromise, Bottomley said:

"I see no reason why I should compromise. It's my idea that it is customary when a player is traded that he receive from the club he is traded to the same salary he has been getting."

Bottomley is to be married soon, and now is making plans for his honeymoon.

Guilford College, N. C., Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Rick Ferrell, St. Louis Browns' catcher, announced today he had returned, unsigned, his 1933 contract because of a drastic salary cut contained therein.

After the announcement, he joined his brother, Wesley, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, also a holdout, in a game of golf.

Hamas and Ramage Sign for Third Bout

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Steve Hamas, Passaic (N. J.) heavyweight, was signed here today to fight Lee Ramage, of San Diego, Calif., in a ten-round bout at the Olympic, February 28.

The two young boxers have met twice. Ramage won the first bout and then dropped a decision to the former Penn State football player in an outdoor fight during the Olympic games. Ramage suffered a broken jaw in the scrap, but returned to the fistic wars here recently to defeat Tuffy Griffiths.

The Boards

Tried By Wykoff for First Time and He Likes Them.

FRANK WYCOFF.

By EWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Frank Wykoff, sandy haired youngster who had his turn at being "the world's fastest human," pulled on his first pair of indoor spiked shoes today, tried a wooden indoor track for the first time in his life, and came away slightly mixed in his emotions.

"It feels pretty under foot" he said. "But that wind—g-r-r—I've never been so cold in all my life."

The day provided the Pacific Coast flier, who finished his scholastic career at Southern California last week and headed East for his first crack at indoor sprinting, with several "firsts."

Bought First Indoor Spiked Shoes.

He bought his first pair of indoor spiked shoes, ran on an indoor track outdoors in the bitter winds that swept New York University's track playground, went uptown to the East Side of New York on the West Side

GALLAGHER, KENNEDY ON EDGE

Heavies Meet Tonight in Feature Match at Portner's.

MARTY GALLAGHER, Washington's one time heavyweight pride who vigorously contends he has lost none of his old punch and pep, will come back to his ring wars tonight at Portner's Arena in Alexandria, with Les Kennedy, towering Butte, Mont., battler, as his opponent in the 8-round feature match on the program for the benefit of the Day Nursery.

Looking in the pink of physical condition, tipping the beams at 205 pounds, and fresh from three weeks of steady training, the husky Gallagher swings into action for the first time in four months. He has not had a fight since he lost to Babe Hunt in Atlanta back in October.

Kennedy Defeated Godwin.

Kenndy made his debut at Portner's in December, decisioning Bob Goodwin, fourth ranking light-heavyweight, in an 8-rounder. Kennedy finished strong in this bout, and, while the verdict was not unanimous he was good enough to score a clean-cut margin on points in five rounds. Kennedy is reputed to have a strong right punch. His left also is very dangerous. Two years ago he was a sensation on the Pacific Coast, where he whipped Max Baer and Dynamite Jackson. Late next month he is slated to take on Tuffy Griffiths in Chicago.

Gallagher's five fights in this section saw him win from Reds Barry and Herman Weiner, and bow to Natie Brown, Reds Barry and Bob Tow. If his right is in fine fettle, Gallagher is apt to give Kennedy much trouble.

His name scratched off the card last week because of an injured hand, Herman Weiner, Baltimore's lanky heavyweight, yesterday was given permission by his physician to go through with the eight-round semi-final match with Bob Tow, Birmingham, Ala., fighter. Matchmaker Frankie Mann received a wire from Emil Frante's manager, Jack Laken, that the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission had ruled against the Marine heavyweight fighting at Portner's because of a scheduled bout in Philadelphia on Friday night. Frante last week consented to substitute in place of Weiner.

Weiner's Hand in Fair Shape.

Weiner yesterday consented to fulfil the engagement after the physician pronounced his hand in fair shape.

Heading the preliminary cast are Bucky Taylor, Baltimore slugger, and Willie Essenger. They will step six rounds. Cary Wright goes against Sailor Leonard in a four, and Marino Marini meets Charlie Parker in another four. The first bout starts at 8:30.

Tickets will be on sale at Rinaldi's, 722 Ninth street northwest, Promoter Mann announced.

BOXING BITS SELECTIONS.

Kennedy to beat Gallagher, Tow to beat Weiner, Taylor to beat Essinger, Wright to beat Leonard, Marini to beat Parker.

Marines Easy For Colonial Tossers

Devil Dogs Routed by 69-18 Score on G. W.'s Court.

Howell Leads Home Five; Posik Star of Marines.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY overwhelmed a doughty little band of Marines last night in a one-sided game that ended with the local team on the better side of a 69-18 score. As the figures indicate, it was all George Washington. The visitors were left at the barrier, lapped and overlapped several times.

Outsmarted at every turn of the game, outpassed and literally played off their journey-weary feet, the Marines registered only 5 points in the first half while their hosts were busy accumulating the tidy sum of 32.

Jimmy Howell, blond forward, topped the Colonials in scoring with 20 points. Scowling Bill Noonan was next in line with 11. All but Fred Mulvey had a hand in the stew so distasteful to the Leathernecks.

Posik was the only member of the visiting quintet to measure up to expectations. He sank a trio of field goals and as many fouls for nine points.

The team as a whole looked bad. Nervous and flushed with excitement the Marine passes went awry, usually were picked out of the air by a Colonial. Their shots missed the hoop consistently and their inability to follow up stood out in bold relief as George Washington regained possession of the ball and promptly rushed it down the floor for another basket.

Campbell Car Arrives At Scene of Trials

Daytona Beach, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Assembled and ready for Sir Malcolm Campbell's attempt on his own 253-mile-an-hour record on the beach here, his giant Bluebird racer arrived this afternoon in a trim blue crate that filled a box car.

It was accompanied by a spare motor, chassis, tires and parts, to make a quick change if need be.

Two freight cars were required to bring the 27-foot 4½-ton machine and the extra equipment here.

Eighteen inches longer than last year, carrying 2,500 horsepower in the fastest type of motor ever built, the Bluebird will be all set for test runs as soon as Sir Malcolm is ready to try it out in preparation for the trials February 10 to 20. Sir Malcolm will join his mechanics here in a few days. He is expected to land in New York tomorrow.

Chicago May Stage Schmeling-Baer Go

Chicago, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Jack Dempsey arrived in Chicago today and immediately began efforts forts which may bring next summer's heavyweight wrangle between Max Schmeling and Max Baer to Chicago.

The erstwhile champion has Schmeling and Baer signed up. His next step is to find the right spot for the bout. And then all he has to do is to persuade a lot of people to pay a lot of money to see it.

Dempsey bobbed around Chicago today in the same manner he used to bob around the ring. He was met at the depot this morning by Charley Fitzmorris, former chief of police and now secretary to George Getz, chairman of the World's Fair sports committee. Jack and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, had lunch with Mayor Cermak and they probably talked about the fight. Everybody was pleasant and happy. But beyond that no committing statements were dropped.

"I'm very much in favor of staging the fight here," said Dempsey. "But I want to look over the prospects myself. One important matter must be settled. The bout will have to be at 15 rounds."

Post's Baseball Contest Fans Reminded Of Walter Johnson's 36 Victories in 1913

The big fellow under the little cap is Walter Perry Johnson, pictured in 1907 when he broke into the big leagues here to startle the baseball world with the speed that earned him more records than any other pitcher. At right is Johnson at the age of 26 in 1913 when he led the American League pitchers with 36 victories and 7 defeats.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Bobby Jones Gets 69 In Hollywood Match

Here for a second fling at motion pictures, the former grand-slam champion shot a 69, one under par, on the sodden Lakeside Country Club course today.

Teamed with George Marshall, motion picture director, he lost 2 and 1, to the Dutra brothers, Olin, National P. G. A. champion, and Mortie, now of Detroit.

Olin, who leaves Thursday for the Florida tournaments, matched par for a 70 and his brother shot a 71, despite the slow greens and soggy fairways. Marshall, a 6-handicap player, had an 82.

Spirited Team of That Year Was Second to Athletics.

LOOK back, you Washington baseball fans, through the musty layers of Time. Back to a dustier Griffith Stadium without any center field bleachers or amplifiers or Coco-Cola ads. Back to 1913, when men were men and women weren't admitted free on Fridays. Let your mind's eye review this old scene; let it sweep around the diamond itself and silently regard the players—now wrinkled and gray, then full of the sap of youth.

It is September, and hot. Washington is concluding a splendid season, but there are bitter pills to be taken by the most rabid fans. Philadelphia has won the pennant by two or three games. But Washington, with but two .300 hitters on the club, had made a beautiful fight of it all the way. The Senators were the brainiest team in the league. They were outhit practically everywhere, and got by on team-play, smartness and willingness to take a chance.

Slugging Chick Gandil On First Base.

Look!—there's Chick Gandil on first base. Dark, sort of sinister-looking, but a swell fielder. He has ears like Mickey Cochrane of a generation later. Nobody knows how many games he won by timely bingles. He was a clean-up man. Frank Laporte, a newcomer, is on second and the one and only George McBride on short. And Eddie Foster on third.

The crowd buzzes while the infield warms up. There is an occasional salvo of applause as McBride, the most perfect fielder in the league, lazily scoops up grounders and throws them unerringly to Gandil. The outfield is slightly changed since 1912, with Clarence Walker in left in place of Howard Shanks; Danny Moeller in right and Clyde Milan in center.

There is an unmistakable cry of joy from the stands when Manager Griffith makes motions to the bull pen and two men separate themselves from the other pitchers and catchers and slowly saunter out on the diamond. Eddie Ainsmith, rugged, unerring receiver and gangling Walter Johnson—sober, confident in the first bloom of a glorious career.

Johnson Mows Down White Sox.

The world had long since decided upon Johnson as a diamond idol. The year before, in 1912, he had yanked Washington by the seat of its pants out of the cellar into second place by the superb pitching record of 32 wins and 8 losses. Now today he stood with 35 wins and 7 losses and it was his last appearance of the year.

Chicago was so much apple pie that day. Johnson mowed them down with speed that was untouchable. The White Sox amassed four scattred hits and Johnson had ended up a season with an even three dozen pitching victories.

It was one of Washington's greatest teams. With an exception here and there it was the same as the 1912 outfit, and it remained until 1915, when young Joe Judge started the break-up by beating out Gandil at first.

What about this '13 team, you baseball fans? Are there any players on it that you will put on your team? The Post and the Washington Baseball Club will make it worth your while to win this contest. Eight box seats to the opening game of 1933, against Philadelphia on April 12, are the reward for taking first place. And first place, of course, depends on how close your team comes to the team which will be selected for The Post by Clark Griffith himself.

College Boy Spirit Marks Team.

Whether it means anything or not, Griffith said yesterday that no team

Jones Knocks Out Slaughter in 7th

Akron Boy Gains N. B. A. Middle-Weight Crown; Jeby Is Winner.

Cleveland, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Gorilla Jones, Akron, Ohio, fighter, knocked out Sammy Slaughter, of Terre Haute, Ind., in the seventh round of a 12-round bout tonight, thereby gaining the American middleweight championship as recognized by the National Boxing Association. Jones weighed 152 and Slaughter, 156½.

Jones won the title with a short but dynamic right cross to Slaughter's face.

Both fighters were wary in the opening rounds, but began to open up in the third. Jones held a slight advantage in the fourth and began cutting loose with his right cross in the fifth. Slaughter stirred the crowd with a series of sharp rights and lefts to Jones' jaw.

Ben Jeby, 159½, of New York, was awarded a technical knockout over Paul Pirrone, 162, of Cleveland, by Referee Freddy Block shortly after the bell rang for the opening of the sixth round of their 12-round fight.

Pirrone, floored nine times in the first five rounds, stayed in his corner for nine seconds as the sixth round opened, while Jeby rushed over, swinging at him and asking for action.

When Pirrone finally stood up, Jeby's seconds called the New York fighter to retire. Pirrone then advanced to the center, but Jeby refused to go on, contending the fight was over.

Brotherly Love, Ebbing Cash Cost Duke Star

Durham, N. C., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Brotherly love and lack of finances cost the Duke basket ball team a star guard today when Fred Lewis withdrew from school in order that his brother, Henry, also a star member of the Blue Devil quint, might continue his scholastic and athletic career.

With enough money only for one of them to matriculate for the second semester, Fred, the elder, turned in his basket ball uniform and dropped out of school.

Result Holds Key to Title Situation

Boyd Relying on His Shifted Line-Up to Stay in Race

Eastern Five Meets Western; Roosevelt Loses Sherman.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

BUOYED up by the prospect of being rescued from the isle of lost hopes, Tech raises its tattered banner once again in the interhigh school basket ball series today in an effort to attract attention as a possible champion. Central faces the Maroon and Gray tossers in the first game at the Tech gym. It will be their second meeting of the year and if Tech loses it will be definitely marooned and grayer than ever before.

The second fray on the schedule brings the hapless Western recruits before the sharp and unerring gunfire of Eastern, leading the series by a half game.

When an irresistible force meets an immovable object in basket ball, the result usually is a foul and two shots for the former. In the case of teams one of two things is possible. Either the immovable one moves over and allows the other to pass, or the irresistible one discovers its powers of resistance weakened and is defeated.

Central Won Earlier Game.

Central was irresistible when it tangled with Tech the first time, but Tech was supposed to have an immovable zone defense. But the Blue clad youngsters found a way of moving it and won by a score of 41-36.

Since then Coach Artie Boyd has weighted down Tech's defense by shifting Daly from center to guard and inserting Olverson at the tap-off post. While not weakening the team at center to a noticeable extent, it brings a tall man into the back court where tall men are most needed in the style of play.

Tech goes into battle with the psychological handicap of knowing that it must win to remain in the running, but it is prepared for the game of its career.

Central, too, expects a bitter struggle, the old overconfidence has disappeared from the vicinity of Thirteenth and Clifton streets. All is grim determination.

For Jack Moulton it will be the final game. He graduates from Central tonight and he leaves a commendable record.

Eastern expects little trouble from Western, but will be ready for any emergencies. Its play against Roosevelt last Friday was ragged and Coach Mike Kelley plans to start today in an effort to smooth the edges.

Sherman Fails in Study.

Only one scholastic casualty among the five teams was reported yesterday. Joe Sherman, Roosevelt forward and one of the outstanding stars of the series, missed on the English test and accordingly is barred from participation in athletics. Cliff Keyser, who played last year, becomes eligible at Central and is being counted on to replace the departing Moulton.

3-Cushion Contenders Accept Hoppe's Defi

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, perennial champion at 18.1 balkline billiards, has challenged the winner of the world three-cushion championship tournament here, and all four players still in the running for the title, have accepted.

Hoppe offered a side bet of $1,000 that he could defeat the title winner, and Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, himself a master of balkline; J. N. Bozeman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif.; Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, and Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., felt so confident that each stated willingness to play Hoppe for a side wager of $5,000.

Layton Defeats Kieckhefer, 50-33

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Johnny Layton, the redheaded billiard star from Sedalia, Mo., tonight remained in the battle for the world three-cushion championship by defeating the defending champion, Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, 50 to 33, in 47 innings. The setback wrecked Kieckhefer's chances of retaining the title he won a year ago.

The struggle for the title involves Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, and J. N. Bozeman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif., who were tied for the lead with five victories and one defeat, in addition to Layton, who tonight accounted for his fifth triumph in seven matches.

The three contenders will be in action tomorrow, Cochran meeting Kieckhefer in the second afternoon match, and Bozeman tackling Layton at night. Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, and Clarence Jackson, of Detroit, meet in the first afternoon contest.

Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, N. Y., finished his schedule today by defeating Jackson, 40 to 46, in 65 innings, and Denton defeated Allen Hall, of Chicago, 50 to 40, in 42 innings, in the latter's final test.

SEKYRA STOPS GASTANAGA.

Referee Jack Watson stopped the bout because Gastanaga's both eyes were closed.

Semaphore's Late Rush Fails

Unsettled, at $55.20, Draws Away to Win in Third Race.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 30 (A. P.).—A contemplated riding duel between JohnnyGilbert and Hank Mills in the Panama City Purse went wrong here this afternoon when Gilbert's mount, Big Beau, failed to break with his field and had no chance. Hank's mount, Cathop, representing the R. M. Eastman estate, managed to squeeze home a winner by a head, with the Greentree Stable's Semaphore, Coucci up, accounting for the place. Jubilate, from the Brookmeade Stable, was beaten two lengths for the place.

Cathop was a 2-to-1 shot and ran the 7 furlongs in the good time of 1:24 2-5. Big Beau, the favorite, broke last, but made up useless ground to finish fourth. Espinetta also broke badly and had little chance.

Mills Lucky to Get Mount.

Mills was lucky to get the mount on Cathop. Alfred Robertson had been slated to ride the son of Supremus, but he would have had to carry overweight, hence the job for "Hurry Up" Hank. Mills did a good job, sending Cathop right to the front and letting him draw two lengths clear of Jubilate and Gift of Roses. Semaphore closed with a cyclonic rush in the stretch and would have caught the winner in another stride or two.

Gilbert and Mrs. H. D. Cox's Capacity fooled the talent in the first race, passing the judges four lengths in the van to return $42.80 for a $2 ticket. H. D. Cox, trainer of the winner, is Gilbert's former contract employer and now his agent. Contribute, the favorite, saved the place by a neck from Miss Corinne. Capacity rushed right into a long lead and, though never in danger, Gilbert rode him out to insure victory. Contribute was hard urged all the way while Miss Corinne made up a lot of ground to finish in the picture.

Idolatry, Field Horse, Wins Baby Race.

The success of outside position 2-year-olds continued when the Greentree Stable's Idolatry, grouped in the field, won the second contest by a length and a half from Interruption. The latter took the place by a head from Distrust, with Sun Vestal a close fourth. Interruption held a slight advantage for the first furlong, but Idolatry responded to Jockey Coucci's urging to win going away. The winner paid $5.90.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 30.

Mike met his friend Tony today in the paddock. "Well, whata you like?" asked Mike. "I heard that they were shootin' today with Claremont. Please keep it quiet," answered Tony. "What looks good to you?" he inquired. "I understand Snider will have a fit mare out there today. I mean Laura Gal. The stable's down," said Mike. They parted and as the field lined up they met again. "What did you bet?" asked Tony. "I took that thing of yours," admitted Mike. "And I took that nag of yours!" confessed Tony. So they watched with sagging chins as Gilbert brought Capacity home at 20-1. Then both turned over a page of their programs. "Say, you bum, whata you like in the next?" asked Tony. "That's what I was going to ask you," said Mike. BILL.

FIRST RACE—OPINION showed a speedy effort here and off that must be given heavy consideration in this. DORSAYS, a B. B. Stable representative, seems the likely place horse with SCALLION is well regarded but will have the top one to catch. We'll hear from WHITE THORN later. This one beat some good fields in Maryland.

FIFTH RACE—DON LEON appears to be the solid one in this sprint. Ran Gold Step to a nose here and should go on to a victory tomorrow. HIBALA and MOUNTAIN ELK to battle it out for the place. The last named is a possible good-priced winner. PADDOCK JABBER was aimed his way today.

SIXTH RACE—BANK SHOT did excellently the last time and can hardly be crowded off the top of this heap. SUPERCHARGE is a game filly, liable to turn on a winning dash in the stretch at any time. BOLILEE for the third honors.

SEVENTH RACE—GARLIC and SOLACE will stage the main fight for the purse in this and I look for the first named to pick up his rival in the last eighth. WORKLESS could be the show figure.

Dunbar Wins to Make 3-Way Basket Ball Tie

A triple tie for the lead in the race for the colored high school championship was created yesterday by Dunbar's 63-to-40 victory over Cardozo. Pree led the scoring with 22 points, closely followed by Matthews, with 15. The winners led at the half by a score of 24 to 14.

MACKENZIE SIGNED AS CLUB PRO

Former D. C. Amateur to Teach Golf in Colorado.

ROLAND MACKENZIE'S ambition to become a resident golf club professional was realized with the announcement yesterday from Colorado Springs, Colo., that he had accepted the post as tutor at the Broadmoor Golf Club, of that city.

Mackenzie, former Columbia Country Club star, who basked in the national spotlight by virtue of his brilliance in national amateur championships during the past nine years and in Walker cup competition, will not take over the professional reins until April 1. He succeeds Jimmy Thomson, former Richmond, Va., and Knoxville, Tenn., pro.

Four months ago the 25-year-old Mackenzie announced he had abandoned the simon-pure ranks and turned professional. In his first big money battle, at Coral Gables in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore, Mackenzie failed to finish in the money. Moving over to the Pacific Coast, he participated in the San Francisco, Pasadena and Los Angeles opens—each of which was won by Craig Wood—and despite his good early round scores, was unable to bag any money.

Mackenzie played in only two events in the District last year. He defeated J. Monro Hunter, jr., for the Chevy Chase invitation championship, and placed fourth in the sectional tests for the national amateur at Chevy Chase. At the eleventh hour, Mackenzie decided not to compete in the amateur classic at Five Farms because of a previous illness and operation.

County School Fives In Four Games Today

High school tossers of Prince Georges County will be active on the hardwood today. Four contests are scheduled for the scholastics.

Two games are listed on the Mount Rainier High court, Rockville High girls' sextet visiting for an encounter in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, while at 8 o'clock the Charlotte Hall quint, from southern Maryland, will be the guests of the Mounts' boys team.

Hyattsville High boys' and girls' combinations will travel to Sandy Spring this afternoon for a double-header with the Sherwood High teams. These games will be the first of a home-and-home series.

Amateur Leaguers Active This Week

Boys' Club, which is enmeshed in a triple deadlock for top honors in the District of Columbia Amateur Basket Ball League with Central Y. M. C. A. and Delaware & Hudson, will open the loop's activities for the week with a game tomorrow night at its home court with the Saranacs. The contest will start at 8:30.

Thursday night Red Sox and Griffith Consumers clash at Hyattsville at 7:30 o'clock, while an hour later on the same floor Takoma Business Men and Company F come to grips.

Three contests are slated Friday night. Shade Shop and Terry's vie at Hine Junior High at 9 o'clock; "Y" is host to the Takoma Business Men at 7:30 and the Fraters engage the Boys' Club at the Boys' Club at 8:30.

The league standings:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Boys Club	4	0	1.000
"Y"	4	0	1.000
Delaware & Hudson	3	0	1.000
Fraters	1	1	.500

TEMPLE FIVE PLAYS HERE TOMORROW

Meets G. U. at Tech; Maryland, C. U. Away Tonight.

THERE are no local college basket ball games tonight, but Catholic University will drop down to Quantico to take on the Marines and Maryland will meet a venerable foe in Virginia, at Charlottesville. Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday sees much in the way of local games.

The first appearance of an Eastern intercollegiate team in Washington is scheduled for tomorrow night, when Temple invades Tech High to do battle with Georgetown. Some idea of Temple's strength may be gained from the fact that it beat St. John's, of Brooklyn, last week. Temple has a record of two wins and two losses in league competition. Georgetown has the two losses, but no wins.

Rosan Hub of Temple Team.

The hub of the Temple Team is big Red Rosan, who has scored 35 points in his league games to date. He is second high scorer in the league.

Thursday night is another barren spot on the local card, the only college stirring being Gallaudet, which plays Philadelphia College, at Philly.

Friday night commences one of the most active week-ends of the year. Maryland plays North Carolina University at Ritchie Coliseum, American comes Randolph-Macon at A. U., and Gallaudet runs up against Upsala, at East Orange.

Saturday night Maryland offers perhaps the feature of the week, the basket ball team meeting up with Georgia, Southern Conference champions, and the boxing squad taking on Duke's leather pushers. Also on Saturday night George Washington University plays old Elon at G. W., Georgetown meets Loyola at Baltimore, Catholic U. tackles Baltimore at C. U., and Gallaudet meets Long Island U., at Brooklyn.

Oddly enough, so far as tonight's game between Virginia and Maryland is concerned, both teams have beaten V. M. I. by single points.

W. C. C. Golfwomen Name Officers Today

The annual meeting and election of women members of the Washington Golf and Country Club will be held this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, present chairman of the golf committee, is expected to be asked to serve again.

A dinner and golf tournament will follow the election.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

APPARENTLY money is not to be considered in the newest offensive of the National Association of Broadcasters against the American Society of Composers, whom they charge with exacting excessive fees for the privilege of broadcasting copyrighted music. The legal services of Newton D. Baker, just retained by the broadcasters, will very likely cost them a minimum of $50,000, two prominent lawyers estimated. One of them said he believed the fee of a man of Mr. Baker's prominence might easily be $75,000 in this case, while the other said, in his opinion, it could run as high as $250,000, depending upon how much work was involved.

As a preliminary to securing the services of Mr. Baker the broadcasters had retained Oswald F. Schuette at a fee commonly reported to be $18,000 yearly. Mr. Schuette took a conspicuous part in the R. C. A. antitrust case.

Thus it would seem, adding office rental, traveling expenses, and so on, that the broadcasters expect to draw on their war chest for at least $100,000 during the coming year. Possibly more, because it is certain that the composers will retain equally high-priced counsel and that it will be a fight to the finish.

Already Mr. Schuette has drawn the fire of Mr. Mills by alleging that the broadcasters were forced into signing the composers' contracts and that they were of a "racketeering nature."

Mr. Mills retorted that any broadcaster who felt that he had entered into the present license arrangement with the American Society of Composers under duress was under no further obligation to retain it, and the society offered to negotiate a new contract in each such case.

MR. MILLS added, however, that while the composers are willing to confer with any individual broadcaster or any representative committee of broadcasters, the society will have no more dealings with Mr. Schuette. Nevertheless he is apparently pleased at the entrance of Newton D. Baker into the melee.

"The selection of Mr. Baker as counselor is the most intelligent step the broadcasters have taken in this controversy," said Mr. Mills. "We welcome a man of his ability and standing. And we feel sure that when Mr. Baker has studied the case, on his own judgment he will ratify that we are fairly paid. He will be our proponent instead of an opponent. He has the ability to weigh the equities in the case and we have no fear of the outcome."

Kathryn Meisle, American contralto, whose previous engagement to sing with Josef Bonime's orchestra in the Five Star Theater was postponed because of illness, will present the program she originally planned when she faces the microphones from 10 to 10:30 p. m. tonight. She has chosen "Ah Mon Fils," from Meyerbeer's opera, "Le Prophete," and two songs, "Coming Home," by Willeby, and "Les Filles des Cadiz," by Delebes.

The Bonime Orchestra will play the following selections: "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 14" (Liszt), "Norwegian Dances" (Grieg), "Tabatiere a Musique" ((Liadov), and "The Beautiful Blue Danube" (Strauss).

A FORERUNNER to the controversy as to whether or not the advertising of liquor should be allowed over the radio is a letter in the current bulletin of the National Committee on Education by Radio. It is from Mrs. Henrietta C. Munford, of Glendale, Calif., and reads, in part, as follows:

"I wish I had language emphatic enough to express just how much I do not want my home invaded by liquor advertising over the radio. I have four children, three of whom are boys, ranging in age from 16 to 5 years. I will junk my radio before I will allow them to listen to the seductive arguments the liquor interests have always used to entice young people.

"In the name of the young people of America, do all you can to keep John Barleycorn off the air."

Anatole Friedland, producer and composer, will present some of his newest proteges appearing in his revue current at Loew's Fox, in a special broadcast as a guest of Radio Joe over Station WMAL at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Irvin S. Cobb, who appeared with Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit last week, will participate in the same hour tonight (WRC, 8 o'clock). Crumit's new song, "Brother Ezra and Sister Susan," will be repeated by request as another feature of the program.

WHEN Maynard Owen Williams, world traveler, delivered his lecture before the National Geographic Society, "Across the Face of Asia," it was noted in these columns that radio commentators would do well to follow his example of pausing frequently to allow what was being said to "sink in." Let every radio announcer carefully heed what the explorer now has to say about "silence."

"I'm afraid I can't take much credit for the pauses in my lecture," Mr. Williams said, "but I did learn a bit about the power of silence to command attention from one of the men who handled a machine gun during a serio-comic battle we had with some Chinese bandits while crossing Asia with the Citroen-Haardt Expedition.

"In war, noise doesn't mean a thing. Everyone's accustomed to noise. But silence bowls 'em over. So when I used the machine gun, I did it to impress the Chinese, not to hit them. Four shots, as rapidly as possible. That means a machine gun. Then a wave of silence. That gives 'em a chance to think what it's all about. Then four shots. Then silence. Then four shots. That way, you give them three lessons they can't ignore instead of one long one that confuses them."

Albert L. Rule, compiler and narrator of "The Big Drive," a history of the World War as the veterans saw it, culled from the motion picture archives of eight of the warring nations, both the allies and central powers, will be interviewed tonight by Bob Trout, over WJSV at 7:15 o'clock.

Rule, a former service man, has spent the past fourteen years securing and assembling "The Big Drive," which is currently being shown at RKO Keith's Theater.

SPONSORS of the Chesterfield program announce that Leonard Hayton's Orchestra, augmented to concert size and presenting a full quarter-hour of modern music, will feature the Tuesday and Friday evening periods of the nightly 9 o'clock series on WJSV, effective tonight. These concerts will supplant the comedy programs, with Tom Howard and George Shelton and Betty Barthell, previously cofeatured in the series.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: My daughter is eighteen and wants to marry a man 10 years her senior. Am I wrong in insisting she wait for three years?

Answer: Yes. You can not insist. You may only suggest. Eighteen is young. Twenty-eight is a matured age. If you hold no objections against the young man and his family connection is such of which you approve, do not hold out against the marriage. Remember, you are fighting an aggregate of 46 years of virile life. The fact that your daughter desires to marry this man and has told you so is indicative that the relationship is wholesome and proper. To interfere immediately places a secrecy about their activities and lays you open to being deceived and hurt.

Accept your daughter's confidences; let her feel your friendship and companionship. That is a mother's duty. An eagle folds her wings so that her young, whom she has so long carried, may fly. Parenthood ends at that same time. To attempt to exercise undue influence after this period is dangerous.

Eighteen is not too young to be married. If the call is holy and sincere, more beauty is attached to marriage, because of the delicacy of years.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Texas to Pick Garner's Successor on April 22

Austin, Tex., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson issued a proclamation today fixing April 22 as the date for the final election to choose a successor in Congress to Speaker John N. Garner, Vice President-elect.

The Fifteenth District Democratic executive committee will set the dates for two Democratic primaries to be held prior to the election for reduction of the party field of 15 candidates. Garner will become Vice President March 4.

Stocks Maintain Strength In Dullest Dealing of Year

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Stocks were quietly firm today in the dullest trading since last October 31.

The market, obviously awaiting dividend announcements scheduled for later this week, was sustained in its vigil by another moderate rise among rail stocks.

Also, the hope that springs eternal probably caused traders to look for a reduction rather than complete omission of the United States Steel preferred disbursement at tomorrow afternoon's meeting. Wall street learned last week that some change was coming, though its extent was left a matter for conjecture.

Markets were unperturbed by the fall of two European cabinets. Hitler's accession to the Reich chancellorship was accompanied by reactions in German bonds and an easy mark, but there were no other noticeable repercussions to an event which a year or more ago was anticipated with uneasiness by the financial community. Europe's internal politics, even though it may appear at times to overlap international boundaries, has ceased to exert much influence here.

Railroad stocks made a creditable showing, with New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Lackawanna and Delaware & Hudson up from minor fractions to 2 points. Canadian Pacific also picked up a point. Carriers have been giving the market most of its support over the past week, and traders who look to that group for cues as to probable trends are getting crumbs of encouragement from such firmness. December earnings proved better than expected; also the National Transportation Committee's report, expected in a fortnight, is being counted on for constructive recommendations.

U. S. Steel shares closed steady. The preferred, after a small early setback, was up half a point net while the common finished unchanged. Bethlehem sagged slightly, American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Harvester, Case, American Telephone, National Dairy and several others bettered themselves slightly. General Motors, whose dividend meeting comes Wednesday, closed with a small gain. Borden was steady. Standard Oil of New Jersey drifted off for a time but hardened; Wall street is wondering whether the usual extra payment will be voted this week. Tobaccos firmed toward the close. Sales totaled 476,885 shares.

Foreign exchanges took an irregular course. Strength of sterling and firmness in some Far Easterns, which rallied with a fresh spurt in silver metal, contrasted with a heavy Canadian dollar and a weak Danish currency. The latter reflected suspension of exchange business at Copenhagen.

The business news budget was limited to routine reports.

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	165	88
Declines	204	174
Unchanged	131	110
Total issues	500	372

Stocks.

Quiet firmness was maintained in spite of the dullest dealing since last October. The market waited on dividend announcements. An average gain of two-tents of a point was recorded. Sales dropped to 476,885 shares.

Bonds.

Weakness of German dollar loans failed to influence bonds. The market held firm with an average advance of one-tenth of a point. Trading volume dropped to $8,900,000.

Curb.

Prices were almost stationary as traders adopted watchful waiting attitudes. Sales decreased to 90,000 shares. Oils stiffened a little in spots. Utilities moved narrowly with heavy tendencies.

Wheat.

British predictions of an upward trend in prices sent wheat higher at Chicago. A greatly reduced world stock was forecast. Other gains declined. May wheat sold at 47½ to 47⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Prices eased about 50 cents per bale on Southern hedge selling and liquidation. March sold at 6.00. The general market was down 9 to 12 points. Liverpool reported a quiet market with prices declining under Indian selling and continental political news.

CURB PRICES STAND IN QUIETER DEALING

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The curb market began the new week today with prices holding all but stationary in exertmely light trading, as speculators were still content to adhere to their watchful waiting attitude.

The turnover for the session was only 90,000 shares, against 110,000 on Friday, and most price changes were limited to narrow fractions.

Oils stiffened a little in spots. Gulf and Humble were up fractionally. Standard of Indiana and Imperial were steady. In the mining issues activity cropped out in Wright Hargreaves, a Canadian gold and silver producer, the stock advancing ¼ to a price of 4. Lake Shore, one of the principal Canadian gold mining issues, eased a small fraction.

Utilities moved narrowly with a slight heavy tendency developing. Electric Bond & Share closed unchanged, American Gas & Electric and Niagara Hudson each off ¾. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore sagged a fraction and Commonwealth Edison a point.

In the investment trusts, Niagara Shares B was a firm spot, rising to 7, and closing at 6½, up ⅞ of a point, in response to its report placing asset value far above current market levels of the stock. Industrials were quiet and mostly steady.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Gold mining shares on the stock exchange continued their rise on South African buying. However, the best prices in other sections were not maintained and they turned quietly easy on continental political developments. German bonds were weak early in the session, but recovered partially later. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were irregular, being influenced by domestic and foreign events including the appointment of Adolf Hitler as chancellor of Germany. The close was better orientated.

Berlin—Owing to inner political developments, trading on the boerse was stagnant, transactions being the smallest in some time. The closing was a trifle weaker.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Cotton goods moved in small quantities at steady prices today. Rayons were in better demand. Burlap was steady. Women's wear wool goods fabrics were in improved demand.

Du Pont President Says Gain Of Trade Began During 1932

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Since the middle of 1932, in the opinion of Lammot du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., "there has been a noticeable improvement in some important branches of industry."

The downward trend of industrial activity of the preceding two years, said Mr. du Pont, in commenting on conditions in the corporation's annual report for the past year, issued today, was continued during the first half of 1932. The du Pont company, he added, participated in the improvement which has been under way since then.

Mr. du Pont's comment did not include the specific branches of industry in which he said he had noted improvement.

"The success of business will be secure when confidence fully returns," he asserted. "Confidence can not return until fears arising from the threat of unwise and disturbing legislative projects are allayed."

Most important of all steps in the restoration of confidence Mr. du Pont declared, is the further drastic curtailment of public expenditures and a lowering of the tax burden. Unless the "immediate and substantial reduction of Federal, State and municipal expenditures" is effected, he warned, "any real business recovery will be greatly retarded."

"We have endured great trials during recent years," Mr. du Pont said. "Many readjustments, painful though they may have been, are now behind us. There are many reasons to hope that better times are ahead of us. It is no time to experiment with unsound theories. We should, instead, place our confidence in those principles and institutions which have served us so well through generations. The country may then expect to emerge from its recent atmosphere of fear and despair into one of courage, confidence and security. With this change of sentiment, individuals and corporations will increase their purchases for current consumption, will renew and put into effect their plans for the future, and industrial activity will go forward again and attain previous or even greater heights."

As shown previously in the preliminary report, the company's earnings applicable to common stock were $19,769,395, equal to $1.82 a share, compared with $47,216,932, or $4.29 a share in 1931 on a somewhat larger number of outstanding shares. Net income, after Federal taxes, bond interest, &c., totaled $26,234,778, equal to four times the debenture stock dividends, against $53,190,060 in the previous year.

The company's income from investments was $16,948,295, including $12,500,273 from its General Motors Stock dividends. This is comparable with $34,377,602 and $29,942,929 in 1931. Business, expressed in dollar terms, was off about 27 per cent from the previous period.

Total current assets at the end of 1932 were $107,325,753 and total current liabilities $10,630,857, a ratio of 10 to 1. Surplus as of December 31, last, aggregated $178,717,373.

BONDS HOLD FIRM WITH SLIGHT RISES

Trading Volume Declines to $8,900,000 as Dealers Wait for News.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Despite the weakness of German dollar issues, following the appointment of Adolph Hitler to the chancellorship of the Reich, the bond market today maintained a cautious but fairly firm tone.

Trading volume was considerably under that of recent weeks, as the speculative element and most investors sought seclusion on the sidelines while they attempted to interpret European political developments. Sales totaled only $8,900,000, par value, but the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced one-tenth of a point.

Although the utilities and industrials showed some hesitancy, a number of gains ranging from fractions to a point or more in the rail section helped to keep the market on an even keel. The United States Government department was quiet and slightly irregular.

German obligations slumped at the opening upon the announcement of Hitler's ascension to the seat of power. A number of them rallied moderately later, but final quotations showed losses of fractions to as much as 5¾ points in government, state, municipal and corporate issues. Polish bonds also reflected the German political upheaval by exhibiting a heavy tone. On the other hand, French bonds improved fractionally in the face of cabinet difficulties at Paris.

Domestic carriers responded to improved earnings statements now making their appearance and to the agreement "in principle" of the railmotor conferees of the national transportation committee that all commercial highway users should be subjected to Federal regulation.

Moving picture company bonds were still soft, although they closed above their lows of the day. Most of the oils were lower and United Drug 5s and United American Biscuit 6s were under pressure. New Orleans Public Service 5s of 1955 dropped a point and a number of other power and light company securities eased a trifle.

Ancillary Receiver Sought.

Boston, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Appointment of an ancillary receiver for Massachusetts properties of the Paramount Publix Corporation was asked today in a petition filed in Federal District Court. The petition was filed in behalf of Lawrence J. Levin, of Boston, who said he held six $1,000 bonds of the corporation. Hearing was set for Thursday. Receivers were appointed for the corporation in New York last week.

Business Revives Hope As Prices Become Firm

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Business found some basis for hope this month that commodity prices are gradually stabilizing around their present levels.

When, beginning last September, commodities began again to fade away, after a strong rally in the late summer, fears were expressed that the level might continue downward even far below the levels of last summer. But during January, prices of most basic commodities held about unchanged, bracing themselves when they reached, and occasionally dipped below, their 1932 low points which were established by several commodities in late December.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SOUTHERN SALES

March Closes at 6.00 as General Market Sags 9 to 12 Points.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Cotton eased about 50 cents a bale today on Southern hedge selling and liquidation.

March contracts after selling at 6.07 declined to 6.00 at the close. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 9 to 12 points.

After opening 7 to 10 points lower active months extended their losses a few points more on selling by houses with Liverpool and continental connections and scattering liquidation.

Offerings were absorbed by trade buying and the market steadied around midday, but selling increased near the close with a number of the active positions making new lows for the day in the late trading.

Quiet at Liverpool.

Liverpool reported a quiet market, with prices easing under some Indian selling and liquidation on the political news from the continent.

For the first five months of the current season world's consumption of American cotton, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, aggregated 5,648,000 bales against 5,039,000 last season.

The decline in consumption from November to December of this year was somewhat less than the average. A local spot interest reported the Southern spot markets quiet and narrow with the basis firm. Exports today 47,940 bales, making 4,953,039 so far this season. Port receipts, 28,921 bales; United States port stocks, 4,811,710 bales.

NORFOLK & WESTERN PROFITS $16,811,918

Other Roads Record Gains in Operating Incomes Over 1931 Period.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 30. (A.P.).—The Norfolk & Western Railway Co. showed a net income for 1932 of $16,811,918.46, according to the annual financial statement issued from the general offices here today.

Continuing a budget balancing program that in 1931 amounted to a $9,080,910 reduction in operating expenses, the company effected a decrease of $12,849,281 in 1932.

The month by month increase in net income started in July, with a pick-up in coal traffic, was continued in December, the month showing a gain in this item of $575,152,37. Net income for December was $2,050,901.

In the twelve months period the railway's freight revenues totaled $58,851,539, as compared with $79,854,747 in 1931. Passenger, mail and express business registered a substanital drop, totaling $3,183,590 in 1932, as compared with $4,457,475 in 1931. Total revenues for the year were $82,775,611.

Operating expenses were $37,745,532, as compared with $50,594,815 in 1931. Maintenance of way and structure expenses were cut over $3,000,000; maintenance of equipment was reduced over $4,000,000, while rail line transportation was cut approximately $5,000,000.

The first 64 railroads to report for December had aggregate net operating income of $28,749,000, compared with $25,264,000 in December, 1931, an increase of 13.7 per cent. For November the same roads reported a 6.8 per cent loss in net operating income as compared with the 1931 period.

Of the roads reporting to date 39 showed gains in net operating income over the previous year. Nine disclosed net operating deficits against eight in November.

Maintaining the generally favorable showing of figures published previously, railroad statements for December issued today disclosed numerous gains in net railway operating income over December, 1931.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON BRITISH OUTLOOK

World Stocks Seen Reduced During Year; Other Grains Decline.

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Stimulated by reports that an upward leap of wheat prices further along in the season was predicted by British government advisers, breadstuffs here advanced today.

British trade authorities were represented as having come to a conclusion that during the present year the world stocks of wheat would be greatly reduced and that supply and demand would approximate more nearly to economic adjustment than had been the case for a long time. Another strengthening influence was that Washington official advices indicated European wheat consumption had not been curtailed to any large extent because of high import duties of various countries.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛ to ⅜ above Saturday's finish; corn, unchanged, to ⅛ lower; oats, ⅛ down, and provisions unchanged, to 5 cents decline.

A decrease of 1,751,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total today reduced the aggregate stock to 153,649,000 bushels, compared with 204,298,000 a year ago. Undoing of a large speculative spread trade between wheat and corn tended further to impart rallying power to wheat, although acting as a weight on the corn market.

In the absence of aggressive support, corn and oats averaged lower, and May corn sold within 1 cent of the season's bottom level.

12 TREW VALUES in FORDS
It would be difficult to imagine a more economical car to operate than a Ford. The investment is low and further depreciation is at a minimum. Operating cost is probably as low as that of any car, new or used. Service can be obtained from any one of 10,000 Ford dealers when necessary.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE MAINSTAY OF TRANQUILLITY.

"Japan must be regarded as the mainstay of tranquillity in the East."—Statement by Japanese Foreign Minister.

THE mainstays of tranquillity are we—
We start a little war (or two or three);
We ignore all others' rights
In the conduct of our fights,
But it's done to stimulate tranquillity!

II

We're the very spirit of civility,
Even when we seem to show pugnacity
When we pounce upon a nation
It is just an indication
Of a tranquil disposition, don't you see?

III

All aggressiveness is something we deplore—
We are little rays of sunshine, nothing more;
Calling treaties scraps of paper
We regard the proper caper;
Perfect peace is what we're always striving for.

IV

When we run amuck in Asia you should know
That it's done to keep the love of man aglow;
All the concentrated shelling
Shows our tender hearts are swelling
With affection for the victim, friend or foe.

V

And it needs Japan to drive its fear away;
If we devastate a city
It reflects a mood of pity

VI

Should we spring upon a neighbor in the night
And proceed to pummel him with all our might,
It's to notify the border
We're promoting law and order,
And our agents both of sweetness and of light.

VII

When we swoop down on some other fellow's land
And for all his goods and chattels make demand,
It is just our way of sealing
Little bonds of tender feeling—
And we hope the League will try to understand.

VIII

If it happens that we like to thumb our nose
At the diplomats through whom resentment flows,
It's a gesture showing clearly
That we love outsiders dearly

A GOOD SHOW.

The man who says there are no more first-class clowns performing today doesn't ever read about the Senate sessions

ONLY NATURAL.

You have to excuse those temperamental outbursts of Premier Stalin. He is always seeing red.

Our notion of the Most To Be Pitied American is the fellow who took the Beer by Christmas promise so seriously that he sent a boy to the brewery with a pitcher last November.

Ellipse Workman Hurt; May Lose His Left Hand

He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where it was reported it may become necessary to amputate the number.

D. C. Play Institute Has Debut Tonight

First 1932 Session to Be Divided Between Dance and Drama Study.

The first session of the 1933 District of Columbia Play Institute, conducted under the supervision of the Community Center Department, will be held tonight in the Roosevelt High School, under the sponsorship of leading recreational agencies and leaders.

The session tonight will be devoted to drama and dancing, one-half of the group will engage in dancing and the other in drama for the two-hour period.

The leaders will meet for a brief period, preceding the study period, under the leadership of Miss Ruby F. Neal, chairman of the institute. The drama sessions will be conducted by Mrs. Phyllis Wilson Huff, of the Marjorie Webster School, assisted by the Misses Maxine Mitchell and Jean Hausman. Miss Evelyn Davis will be in charge of the dance study, aided by Mrs. Grace Houchens and Miss Ivy Randall.

Man May Get 45 Years in 2 Crimes

Metal Worker, 23, Guilty of Robbery and Assault.

A possible sentence of 45 years faces John T. Phillips, 23, sheet metal worker, as the result of the action of a jury in the Court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in finding him guilty of assault and robbery late yesterday.

On the former charge the maximum prison sentence is 30 years, and on the robbery charge the maximum sentence is 15 years.

Through Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica, the Government proved that Phillips attacked a married woman in her apartment on V street northwest. Medical testimony corroborated the woman's testimony. The attack occurred last November. Phillips was arrested three days later. He was represented by Attorney F. Joseph Donohue. Sentence will be imposed by Chief Justice Wheat late this week.

2 ALLEGED NARCOTIC VENDERS ARRESTED; TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Police Declare Pair Sold to Regular Patrons on Street Corners.

After nearly 24 hours of questioning and deprivation of narcotics for the same period by members of the Federal and police narcotic squads, two alleged drug peddlers, who were arrested early Sunday, were sent to Gallinger Hospital yesterday for treatment.

The two men, Elwood O. Stevens, 38, and William Tierney, 36, of 235 H street northeast, refused to tell questioners where they got their supply except that it came from New York. They almost let the information slip several times, but seemed bound by "ethics" of their world, not to "squeal."

Purchased Alleged Heroin.

Detectives D. H. Jones and R. H. Sanders, of the police narcotic squad, arrested the men at Fourth and N streets northwest after they purchased a quantity of alleged heroin.

Drugs said to be worth nearly $300 were found in their car after Jones and Sanders arrested them on completion of the alleged sale.

Investigators learned that the alleged peddlers had 30 regular customers on their books and are endeavoring to locate the list of names. It also was learned that the salesmen kept regular hours with their patrons.

Kept Regular Hours.

According to L. B. Connell, assistant supervisor of the Fifth Federal narcotic district, the men met their customers at 11 a. m., 5 p. m. and 11 p. m. at various designated street corners, at which a sale was never repeated a second time.

The arrest of the two men was the result of two months' investigation on the part of both the Federal and police narcotic squads.

L. C. Rocchiccolli and A. R. Rathel of the Federal squad also participated in the case. The men will be questioned again as soon as their conditions improve.

Burglary and Narcotic Charges Follow Arrests

Four men arrested last week were charged yesterday with housebreaking. Two of them also were charged with violation of the Harrison narcotic law, in connection with robberies of some 20 drug stores the last few months.

Archie Lyles, 22, of 1322 Twelfth street northwest, and Jimmy Moy, 22, of 731 Fifth street northwest, were charged with violation of the narcotic law as well as housebreaking. Charles Kennedy, 22, of 918 G street northwest, and Herbert Shepherd, 21, of Fifth and F streets northwest, were charged with housebreaking.

Nearly $400 worth of prescription liquor and a small quantity of drugs were recovered.

Dr. Bernard Van Zandt, proprietor of a drug store at 4940 Wisconsin avenue northwest, identified the drugs recovered as part of $100 worth stolen from his store several weeks ago.

Part of the liquor was identified as belonging to James A. Simpson, owner of a drug store at Sixty-first and Dix streets northeast, and Walter Armstrong, druggist, with a store at Eleventh and Park road northwest.

1,500 to Get Jobs Under Relief Plan

Departments Give Reports on Number Estimated for Made Work.

Reports were made by the several District departments which can use unemployed men in made-work projects at a meeting of the recently appointed committee on job assignments for the Emergency Relief Bureau.

Capt. Howard F. Clark, chairman, said the departments which can use the largest number of workmen are the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, the sewer and water divisions, the Highway Department, the construction division, and Gallinger Hospital.

The committee estimates that between 1,500 and 1,600 men can be given work each week under the $625,000 relief appropriation. Its purpose is to make the work they do of a more useful nature than formerly.

Child Education Lecture Topic.

The third of a series of lectures on modern trends in music, art, emotional control and other features of child education was delivered at the Town and Country School yesterday by Mrs. Alvin Barber, who discussed Franz Cizek, creator of the modern art school for children in Vienna.

GRADUATION CLASS HEARS DR. BALLOU

Speaker Sees Depression as Both an Opportunity and Challenge.

Addressing the first graduating class to leave Roosevelt High School, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, told the 70 recipients of diplomas, at commencement exercises last night, that the present financial depression is both a challenge and an opportunity to them.

"It is a challenge," he said, "which will test the results and the qualities of your education and your moral character, and an opportunity to join with the present generation in improving present conditions and making the world a better place in which to live.

"It is the irony of fate," he added, "that you, who have been in no way responsible for creating this financial situation, should have its distressing effects visited on you."

Return Expected.

In return for the vast sums of money spent by the public on public schools the public expects the graduates to contribute to public welfare and live worthy lives in the community, the superintendent pointed out.

He stressed the importance of education in public schools in creating a market for the products of the world. "Education," he observed, "is not only increasing the wealth of the Nation; it is also creating and maintaining a form of Government that protects both property and personal rights.

Dr. Johnson Presides.

Diplomas were awarded the following:

Lillian Allainer, Margaret Amos, Sylvia May Aaronson, Molly Ashensky, Olga Nancy Briguglio, Frances L. Buehlow, Eleanor Frances Callan, Lois Jeanette Catlett, Bessie Blanche Chadwell, Rose Cohen, Margaret Edith Cooksey, Ines English, Julia Barbara Fr. $60 in Gold Is Stolen From Three Dentists

Three dentists with offices in the Medical Science Building, 2001 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday reported that gold worth $60 had been stolen from their offices by thieves using duplicate keys.

Dr. Albert W. Davis reported the loss of $40 worth of gold; Dr. Manly Michaels, $15, and Dr. Samuel B. Ginsburg, $5.

Eliot, Hine, Langley and Macfarland Diplomas Presented; Six Others to Hold Exercises Today; Dr. Clinchy Among Graduation Speakers.

Commencement exercises were held at four white junior high schools yesterday afternoon and last night—Eliot, Hine, Langley and Macfarland. Exercises will be held today at Deal, Gordon, Jefferson, Paul, Powell and Stuart.

The diplomas were presented by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools. Robert C. Shipley, president of the class, gave an address of welcome and Aaron Davis, the valedictory. The Rev. Simpson B. Daugherty, of the Church of United Brethren, offered the invocation.

The program at the Eliot Junior High School was featured by musical renditions and recitations by the members of the graduating class. J. J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools, presented the diplomas. The Rev. Clifford H. Jope gave the invocation.

Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent, presented the diplomas to the graduates at the Hine Junior High School. The invocation was given by the Rev. C. D. Brewington. Aurelio John Dorio gave the class history, and Antoinett Torre, the valedictory.

Graduates of the Macfarland School received their diplomas from Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education. The Rev. J. J. Rives gave the invocation. Members of the graduating class presented the program, which included a salutatory by Alice Berry and a valedictory by Josephine Elliott.

Dunbar High School Holds Mid-Year Graduation Rites

Graduation exercises of the mid-year class at Dunbar High School were held last night in the school auditorium, when 47 students were given diplomas, on behalf of the Board of Education, by Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools. The graduates entered the auditorium to the "Marche aux Flambeaux" (Clark), played by the All-High-School Orchestra, directed by Henry L. Grant.

The invocation was said by the Rev. E. L. Harrison, pastor the Shiloh Baptist Church. Dr. Benjamin G. Brawley, professor of history at Howard University, made the principal address, discussing the man of culture as one who makes application of his training, who has faith, and a fine regard for things spiritual.

In discussing things spiritual he referred to "The Green Pastures" and its forthcoming appearance here, calling upon the graduates to make application of their training until they broke down the barriers of discrimination which would not permit them to see the performance by Negro actors because of their racial identity. Musical numbers include "Valse Caprice" (Rogers), Mattie B. Robinson, and "Arabesque" (Lechetizky), Arthur Ellis.

The list of graduates included:

Dr. Caliver Speaks At Cardozo School

Dr. Johnson Gives Diplomas to Negro Graduates of Business.

Dr. Ambrose Caliver, specialist in the United States Office of Education, addressed the 29 graduates of Cardozo Business High School yesterday in the school auditorium, discussing the present development of American Negro high schools. The invocation was said by the Rev. Walter English, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education, awarded diplomas. Musical numbers included "The Star," Ruth Loce; "Homing" (Del Riego), Florence Jordan, and selections by the All-High School Orchestra. John Harris, Odessa Holloway and Panya Smith were named members of the National Honor Society of Secondary Schools. The list of graduates included:

James Boston, Luther Bruner, Nathaniel Dyson, James Foster, John Harris, Robert Odelias, Rudolph Payne, John Scott, Thomas Tibbs, Maudens Campbell, Quintella Davis, Mildred Denmark, Odessa Holloway, Minnie Johnson, Evelyn Johnson, Avis Jones, Clarice Jones, Florence Jordan, Ruth Locke, Willie Ruth Lyles, Virgie Lyles, Bennie Mae Murphy, Cynthia Quick, Amelia Shepherd, Panya Smith, Edith Taylor, Della Tolliver, Brittania Williams and Vivian Wright.

Coroner's Jury in Grove Case Reports Tomorrow

A coroner's jury which yesterday adjourned to visit the scene of the fatal accident involving the death of Park Policeman James F. Grove last Saturday in Rock Creek Park will reconvene tomorrow and is expected to reach a verdict before noon.

Grove was hurled from his motorcycle as the result of a collision with an automobile driven by William C. Allison, who was accompanied by two other youths. All three were arrested but later released on bond, pending action of the jury.

Engineer Registration Is Sought in House Bill

Registration of professional engineers in the District, under supervision of a board of five engineers, appointed by the District Commissioners, was proposed yesterday in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee.

A similar measure was introduced in the Senate last session by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Assessor Reports Realty Tax Kicks

Richards Asserts Several Hundred Appeals Are on File.

Several hundred appeals already have been made from this year's real estate tax assessments, William P. Richards, District tax assessor, revealed yesterday, although the 1934 books, opened for review January 3, will not be closed until June 5.

The appeals were based largely on shrinkage of sales prices and reduced rentals, Mr. Richards said, but he contended that his assessments are close to actual valuations. Assessments have been reduced in a number of cases where unusual changes in value have occurred.

On account of these reductions, the annual increase in assessments based on building operations will be largely absorbed, according to Mr. Richards, thus bringing the total valuation of realty properties close to the 1933 figure of $1,229,359,566.

10 Pass January Dentistry Tests

Seven in Group Are From Points Outside of Washington.

The entire group of ten applicants passed the January examination given by the Board of Dental Examiners of the District.

Craftsmen's Club Meets Tonight.

The annual meeting of the Washington Club of Printing House Craftsmen will be held in Harding Auditorium at the Government Printing Office at 8 o'clock tonight. Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and George H. Carter, public printer, will be the principal speakers.

EASTERN HIGH CLASS URGED TO AID NATION

J. A. Reilly, Banker, Tells 50 Graduates to Select Vocations Carefully.

Careful thought in selecting one's life vocation was urged by John A. Reilly, vice president of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., in an address last night to the three-year graduating class of Eastern High School.

He advised the 50 graduates to place no confidence in the false prophets who claim that this country will never again regain its stability. "This Nation of ours," he pointed out, "was born under the most trying conditions, but the courageous spirit of our forefathers guided the early settlers to a brighter day.

"We will all be better citizens as a result of the depression," he added. "America needs you and is counting on your support. Your duty lies straight before you now. I hope you will respond in such a way that it will reflect credit on this venerable institution, that places its stamp of approval on you tonight."

Harry Hine Presides.

The diplomas were presented by Mrs. Arthur C. Bishop, of the Eastern High School Alumni Association. The Rev. Cornelius S. Abbott, of the Church of the Good Shepherd, offered the invocation. Edith Florence Aberg gave the salutatory and Minnie Catherine Sumner, the valedictory. Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, presided.

Three members of the class received special awards for perfect attendance during three years. They are Adeline Edna Estep, Helen Lois Hunter and Josephine Wilhelmina Owens.

Two Painfully Burned As Room Catches Fire

Two colored children, a boy and a girl, 2 and 3 years old, narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon when flames from an open coal stove set fire to the second-floor bedroom in which they were sleeping in their home at 680 Fourth street northeast.

The boy, John Williams, suffered second degree burns to his right leg, while his sister, Carrie, received second degree burns to her arms and legs. They were treated at Casualty Hospital.

Two Youths Sentenced In Newspapers' Theft

Sentences of 90 days in jail were given Lorenzo White, 18, and Elmer Warner, 19, both colored, when they were found guilty of stealing Sunday newspapers from apartment houses in the Connecticut avenue district.

Agents for two local newspapers testified they found the boys with the papers loaded on a small wagon and Judge Gus A. Schuldt found each guilty of petty larceny.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Men who are worried over business of family affairs are potential highway menaces.

A driver who is in this condition not only endangers his own life, but the lives of others as well, as he is not capable of concentrating on his driving.

This situation has been brought to the attention of the authorities more and more the past few years and is developing into quite a problem.

Deaths	9	5
Injuries	315	274
Accidents	671	566

"Be Careful"

GAS MERGER REPORT IS EXPECTED TODAY

House Committee Approves, but Howell Rider May Cause Senate Snag.

A favorable report to the House District Committee on the proposed merger of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. probably will be ordered today by the House District public utilities subcommittee.

Representative Loring Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, chairman of the subcommittee, indciated the bill will be reported without the so-called Howell amendment, which denies the companies the right to include "going concern value" in future valuations.

The subcommittee, which concluded hearings on the project several weeks ago, will consider the measure this morning in executive session, with Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride sitting in.

Although hearings also have been held by the Senate District Committee, the measure generally is believed to have reached an impasse in that body, since Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, insists on his "going concern" amendment.

Officials of the company told the Senate Committee that they may not consent to merge if the Howell proposal is embodied. The bill, as introduced in House and Senate, would permit the company to cut down its bonded indebtedness and effect improvements by issuing additional stock, subject to Public Utilities Commission approval.

Starvation Story Frees Fisherman

Destitute Man Says That He Sought Food for Wife and Child.

Telling a pitiful story of having been out of work for months and having to fish for food for his wife and child, James E. Farrall, of Laurel, charged with fishing without a license, was dismissed in Laurel Police Court yesterday.

Farrall was arrested by State game wardens for fishing in the Patuxent River. He did not know he was violating the law, he told Judge J. Chew Sheriff.

Andrew Stevens and Lester Shupp, also of Laurel, were dismissed on charges of hunting without a license and setting traps without permission of the land owner. The men were walking along with a gun, and a steel trap was found in the pocket of one of them. Judge Sheriff ruled that there was no evidence to show that they were hunting or setting the trap.

Fort Humphreys Postal Job Filled

Mrs. Walker Will Succeed Late Husband; Rosslyn Post Discontinued.

Mrs. Frances Walker yesterday was named acting postmaster at Fort Humphreys, Va., filling the vacancy caused by the death of her husband in December. Mr. Walker was postmaster at the fort for more than eleven years.

The Postoffice Department announced that the second class postoffice at Rosslyn, Va., across the Potomac from Washington would be discontinued and the office would become a branch of the Washington city postoffice.

Other appointments in Virginia made yesterday by President Hoover included: John W. Taliferro, at Mount Solon; Charles E. Nash, at Amonate; Mrs. Rausa G. Meade, at Short, Wise County, and Thomas A. Ryman, at Coniesville.

Optician Reports $24 Loss.

INQUIRY BEING MADE OF 'MISTREATMENT' BY GARFIELD STAFF

Quiz Begun After Complaint Is Registered in Letters by Mrs. Norton.

Charges that Eugene Houghton, of 1203 Clifton street northwest, received "inhuman treatment" at Garfield Hospital and was "made to sit up like a prisoner" in a patrol wagon, transporting him to Gallinger, last night were being investigated by the hospital administration and Superintendent of Police Brown.

Mr. Houghton, injured last Wednesday when struck by an automobile at Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest, was taken to Garfield Hospital, then to Gallinger, where he was found to have a fractured skull. Police booked him as "drunk" at the Tenth Precinct Station.

Mrs. Norton Writes Letters.

The charges of "inhuman treatment" were preferred yesterday in letters from Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, to Dr. F. J. Eiseman, superintendent of Garfield, and District Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby. Commissioner Crosby referred his letter to Superintendent of Police Brown for inquiry. Dr. Eiseman planned to reply to Mrs. Norton today.

"I understand your staff ordered the Police Department to take the man to Gallinger Hospital after first aid treatment, and the policemen handcuffed him because of your report and made him sit up in a patrol wagon all the way to Gallinger Hospital," Mrs. Norton wrote Dr. Eiseman.

"The treatment of the police I shall take up with the Commissioners of the District, but I do condemn the action of your staff in accusing an injured man, unable to speak for himself, of being 'drunk' and ordering him sent like a prisoner to Gallinger Hospital.

Declared Rank Injustice.

"This is rank injustice and it is not the first time I have had complaints against your hospital. I demand that an investigation be made of the matter and your staff publicly apologize for having such unpleasant notoriety published in the local papers concerning an honest, hard-working citizen of the District, known to many for his fine character and his charity."

Mrs. Norton demanded that Commissioner Crosby have the charge of "drunk" expunged from the police records.

"Even though the patrol wagon, rather than an ambulance, was ordered by the medical attendants at Garfield Hospital, I condemn the inhuman treatment administered by the police in charge of the patrol wagon," she wrote the Commissioner. "It seems to me these men should be able to determine the difference between a 'drunken' man and a very sick one."

Violent, Report Says.

The Tenth Precinct police incidental, made out by Policeman John C. Daniels, states that Mr. Houghton was "violent and unruly," and that in placing him in the patrol "it became necessary to handcuff him to prevent him from doing harm to himself." The incidental said that Dr. J. A. Worley, Garfield interne who treated him, "stated in his opinion Houghton was intoxicated," and that on arrival at Gallinger, Dr. White, the interne there, "stated Houghton had been drinking." Daniels said the "drunk" charge was nolle prossed at Police Court Friday.

The Garfield Hospital report makes no reference to the "drunk" charge. It states Mr. Houghton was "very noisy, unruly and highly unmanageable" and when brought to the hospital was "bleeding from the ears and nose and showed signs of head injuries."

Man Will Serve 30 Days; Took Employer's Money

His failure to return to his employer with $15 in change will cost Robert W. Craig, colored, 30, thirty days in jail, Judge Gus A. Schuldt ruled yesterday in Police Court when he found Craig guilty of larceny after trust.

Craig's employer, Harry C. Cox, gave him $15 to get changed for his meat market. The man failed to return with either the change or the bills and he was arrested the next day.
